Village Near Laos Strafed

Possibility Act Was Done by Communists Admitted by U. S.

SAIGON, (AP) — Two jet planes that knifed in from Laos, bombed and strafed the South Vietnamese village of Lang Vei near the Laotian border Thursday night, killing 83 civilians and wounding 200, the U.S. command announced today. The raiders' identity remained undetermined.

One American spokesman said the planes were presumed to have been American or South Vietnamese. But there was speculation the Communists may have staged it as their first air strike into South Vietnam.

"I would say that the possibility of that (as a Communist blow) is so far out it can be discounted," said a U.S. Air Force officer in Da Nang, "but it is possible."

Capt. J. Duffy, 28, San Diego, Calif., who commands a Special Forces camp that overlooks LANG Vei from a hill 500 yards away, said he could not determine the make of the planes, but they were delta-winged.

Not in Area

The Soviet-designed MIG jets that make up the bulk of North Vietnam's air force have this type of swept-back wings.

A U.S. Air Force officer said the only delta-winged American craft operating in South Vietnam is the Air Force's F102.

"It is strictly an air defense bird and there were no F102s in the area," he said.

The bombs and fires they set off destroyed about 100 of the thatch, bamboo and wooden houses over a 400-yard path within the village. It has been home to about 2,000 people, mostly Montagnard mountain tribesmen.

If this was an accidental bombing, it would be the worst such tragedy announced so far in the war.

The bombing took place five hours after a U.S. helicopter was shot down in the area and was carried out virtually under the noses of the Special Forces men stationed on a hill above the village. The village is filled with refugees who had fled from the Viet Cong for government security.

The airstrike just at sunset presumably was also witnessed by U.S. Marines stationed at

Assemblymen Approve State Oleo Hearings

Legislative Clash On Repeal of Ban May be Delayed

MADISON (AP)—An Assembly showdown on oleomargarine may be delayed three or more weeks by a proposal permitting public hearings on the controversial issue throughout the state.

Assemblyman Norbert Nuttelman, R-West Salem, Chairman of the Agriculture Committee, said he hopes a single bill to repeal Wisconsin's 1895 ban on colored oleo could be reported out by early April.

But a resolution approved 55-40 Thursday would allow special statewide hearings and possibly postpone floor debate on any bills, the West Salem dairyman said.

The hearings proposal, which still must be passed by the Senate, sets a May 1 deadline for reporting back to the legislature.

Hopes It's Killed

Nuttelman said he prefers not to hold hearings outside the capitol, but added the rural-dominated Agriculture Committee "may force me to."

"I hope this resolution is killed in the Senate," the chairman said.

A hearing on oleomargarine, scheduled March 15 in Madison, will be held even if other hearings were approved, he said.

Before the Assembly passed the resolution, Nuttelman had said he planned to report out a single bill from his committee.

35,000 Reds Massed Near South's Border

Possible Invasion Force Being Eyed By U. S. Command

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese army has built up a possible invasion force of some 35,000 men along the 17th parallel separating North and South Vietnam, informed sources said today.

The sources said three Communist divisions are in the area — one immediately north of the demilitarized zone dividing Vietnam and two operating from the six-mile zone or the adjoining South Vietnamese province of Quang Tri.

The North Vietnamese have maintained two divisons in this area for several months, intelligence officers say. The additional division apparently moved to within striking distance of the border within the past 30 days, the sources said.

Plans Unknown

Although the U.S. command doesn't know what plans the North Vietnamese have for their troops along the 17th Parallel, informed military sources said the force once again has the capability of attacking across the demilitarized zone.

Such an attack was anticipated last year but the U.S. Marines launched Operation Hasting and badly bloodied North Vietnam's 324B division. U.S. officers said the Reds then had a well developed plan to push two divisions into the northern part of South Vietnam to try to seize control of Quang Tri Province at least.

Informed sources said the present role of the North Vietnamese troops in the area appears to be largely to pin down

Illinois Boys Shot to Death

Two Teen-Agers Forced to Knees Before Shootings

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — Two teen-age cousins were forced to kneel against the stone wall of an isolated park pavilion Thursday night and then were shot to death at point blank range, police said.

Police squads rushed to the area after an anonymous tipster, believed to be a woman, called the Winnebago County sheriff's office and told deputies where to find the bodies.

"To hell with them," the woman shouted over the phone. "Just let them lay there and die."

The bodies of the two boys were found lying on the pavilion's cement slab floor. Each boy had been shot in the stomach and the back of the head with a small-caliber weapon.

Wayne Mullendore, 14, was dead on arrival at Rockford Memorial Hospital. His first cousin, Ronald Johnson, 14, died in the operating room two hours later. He never regained conciousness.

"These were clean-cut, church-going boys," said Sheriff Herb Brown. "They had never been in any trouble. We have no idea why this happened."

Brown County Crash Kills 2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The deaths of two persons in a Brown County accident have brought Wisconsin's 1967 highway toll to 113, compared with 136 on this date a year ago.

Mrs. Vic Lough, 59, and Marvin Gorman, 20, both of Green Bay, were killed around 1:30 this morning in the collision of their cars on U.S. 41 and 141 about eight miles north of Green Bay. Authorities said they were alone in their vehicles.

Military Authority

Some of Lin's Duties Being Done by Chou

TOKYO (AP) — Premier Chou En-lai's star rose higher over turbulent Red China today with an indication from Peking that Mao Tse-tung has given him some of the military authority of Defense Minister Lin Piao.

The Maoist-controlled New China News Agency reported that Chou spoke at a Red Guard rally Feb. 22 on behalf of Mao, Lin and the Communist Party central committee's military affairs commission, the country's supreme military body.

Chou has not been listed as a member of the commission, which Mao heads with Lin as its active director. Continuing reports of agitation against units of the 2.5-million-man Chinese army may have prompted Mao to name Chou to the military commission. As a vice chairman of it, he would be empowered to issue orders to the army, which Lin presumably has not been able to do for some unexplained reason.

Still No. 2

However, the Peking report made clear that Lin is still No. 2 to Mao, referring to him as Mao's "close comrade-in-arms," a distinction accorded no one else.

Lin, who suffers periodically from tuberculosis, has not been reported seen in Peking since last November.

There have been unconfirmed but persistent reports of army rebellion against Mao in Tibet, Sinkiang, Inner Mongolia and Szechuan Province.

Domestic radio broadcasts made available in Tokyo today told of agitation against and resistance to the army — presumably by supporters of President Liu Shao-chi — in the Manchurian city of Changchun and the city of Tsinan, in Shantung Province.

Other domestic broadcasts from Kweichow Province, which the Maoists claim to have seized, and from Yunnan Province next to North Vietnam pointed up the existence of more trouble in rural areas where spring planting is under way.

LBJ, RFK Clash Over N. Vietnam Bombing

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy Thursday night discusses his Senate speech in which he called for a suspension of the bombing of North Vietnam. (AP Wirephoto)

Senator Says Pause Would Lead to Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's icy repudiation of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's call for a peace-seeking halt to bombing of North Vietnam emphasizes their escalating differences.

Johnson twice defended the bombing almost as Kennedy spoke Thursday, but the White House said he would not comment on the Kennedy proposals.

Within hours, however, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. military commander in Vietnam, rejected the New York Democrat's proposal that the United States stop bombing the Communist North and announce: "We are ready to negotiate within the week."

Rusk said the Communists already have spurned such a formula. Westmoreland said in Saigon that any pause in bombing "will cost many additional lives and probably prolong the conflict."

Serious Move

Johnson forearmed a Senate ally with a letter declaring the air attacks imperative and saying they will persist until the Hanoi government makes a serious move toward peace.

It bore Wednesday's date and provided an instant rebuttal when Kennedy stood in the Senate to deliver his well-advertised speech on peace moves in Vietnam.

Shortly before, Johnson had discussed the bombing at a surprise news conference.

Kennedy sent an advance copy of his proposals to the White House — which said the manuscript had been passed on to the State Department.

Harsh Words

While Kennedy began his speech by saying Johnson is "entitled to our hopeful sympathy, our understanding and our support in the search for

Suharto Caught In Middle Over Sukarno Status

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Gen. Suharto has worked himself into a corner over the crisis surrounding President Sukarno. It could vitally affect Suharto's future.

Suharto, strong man of the military forces which in effect rule the country, seems increasingly to be caught between the dangers of having Sukarno dismissed from office or letting him hang on as president in name only.

Informed sources say Suharto believes it would be better to keep Sukarno in office as a stabilizing factor in this divided and troubled land. But powerful forces in the military, in Congress and student groups are pressing to see that Congress dismisses Sukarno when it meets Tuesday.

Sizable Groups

If Suharto forces his will on Congress he will risk alienating sizable political groups. If he goes along with letting Congress dismiss Sukarno, he risks an explosion from increasingly restless pro-Sukarno elemenis.

The 65-year-old Sukarno ruled for 21 years as a near-god. His words, if ever issued, could call literally millions of peasants to his defense.

Marines and police elements in east and central Java, heartland of support for the embattled president, still lean toward Sukarno.

Some elements are hoping Sukarno will leave the country. But Cabinet sources say he has made it clear he won't.

"He is totally unpredictable. He could say that today he will stay and tomorrow change his mind," one source close to the ministers said.

Promise Given

Several high-level political sources here believe Suharto has already given Sukarno a promise that he will not be dismissed by Congress, possibly because a dismissal could disrupt the delicate balance of power.

Or a dismissal could lead to a trial of Sukarno on charges of Communist conspiracies. Military and Congress hawks are pushing hard for this.

Newhouse Buys Cleveland Paper For $50 Million

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Samuel I. Newhouse has purchased the Cleveland Plain Dealer — reportedly for $50 million, the highest price paid for a single newspaper in the history of American journalism.

The short and peppery 72-year-old Newhouse now has 22 newspapers coast to coast, counting morning and evening papers in the same city separately but not counting Sunday editions. Their total circulation is about 3.3 million.

The Plain Dealer — Ohio's largest morning paper with a circulation of 377,089 on weekdays and 526,401 on Sundays — is now the largest in the Newhouse newspaper group.

Mountain Ordeal Ends for 2 Students

Hunger, Cold For 2 Weeks in Baja California

SAN FELIPE, Mexico (AP) — A college student and his bride-to-be, rescued after a two week ordeal of hunger and cold on a desolate Baja California peak, attribute their survival to skill, determination — and a mountain rescue specialist.

"We never panicked. We've both had lots of mountain climbing experience," Miss Eleanor Dart, 20, said Thursday.

And she said that she and Ogden Kellogg Jr., 21, plan to be married.

"We had been talking about it before, but he asked me to marry him while we were on the mountain and I agreed. We don't know when it will be, but we have marriage plans," she said.

Daring Rescue

Kellogg was brought down from the 7,200-foot level of Mt. Diablo late Thursday in a daring helicopter rescue in semi-darkness.

Mountain rescue teams from the San Diego and Los Angeles areas lifted him by rope up a 250-foot cliff from a ledge where he had been trapped since about mid-February.

The helicopter took him to the base camp near the foot of the peak, about 160 miles south of San Diego, Calif., where he had an emotional reunion with Miss Dart.

She was found Wednesday in a canyon on the mountain slopes, and said she last heard Kellogg calling from the ledge about five days before.

"Then I didn't hear any more and I didn't know if he was alive or dead," she said. "I'm so glad he is safe."

Ready to Descend

Miss Dart and Kellogg reached the top of the mountain after about five days and were ready to descend when "the wind blew for two days and it was too cold to travel."

"We just stayed in the sleep-

Judge Dismisses Move to Block Outagamie Site Suit

Wilkie Rules Clarification Unnecessary

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Dane County Circuit Court Judge Edwin Wilkie Thursday dismissed a motion by the state to force Outagamie County to make clear the nature of its complaints brought in a suit to void the selection of the Shorewood golf course site of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay.

The motions, brought against state officials involved in the decision and those charged with releasing money for the construction of the school, are sufficiently clear to allow the case to proceed, he ruled immediately following the presentation of the motion and arguments.

In making his ruling, Wilkie commented that the case is so important to all of the state that it should be brought to trial as soon as possible.

'Frivolous' Suit

He stopped short of agreeing with special counsel for Outagamie County, Stewart Honeck, in saying that the latest state motion was "frivolous," however.

Wilkie made his decision after hearing the arguments, and prefaced his ruling with comments regarding his philosophy that too many courts are allowing cases to be delayed while purely technical matters are decided during the legal process.

The points raised by the state are of a nature which should be deliberated during a pretrial conference between the contending parties, he said, and not in separate motions before the case actually begins.

The state argued that Outagamie County and the individual taxpayers bringing suit against state officials had not made their complaints sufficiently clear as to allow the trial to proceed.

Secrecy Questioned

In the complaints, the county had charged that the actual site selection was made in "secret" sessions of the statutory site selection committee, and that the criteria for the selection of the site of the UW branch campus had been changed after adoption.

Brown County forces had been informed of these changes and of the actual site selection before it was made public, the Outagamie forces charged.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Charles Bleck asked Wilkie to order the attorneys for the county to specify exactly what is meant by "secret" sessions of the site selection committee.

The state's anti-secrecy statute deals with "closed" sessions he pointed out, and does not attempt to contend with allegedly "secret" meetings.

Asks Clarification

What are the duties of participants in "closed" or "secret" meetings to the public and interested parties, he asked, and how did the actions of the site selection committee violate those provisions.

Who was involved in the alleged "secret" sessions, where and when did they take place, and were any decisions reached, he asked.

Bleck said the motion was not frivolous, but the case is of special importance because it is the first to raise such questions under the state's anti-secrecy law. Great care must be taken in bringing the questions to trial, he said.

Change Defendants

Wilkie ruled that the questions were not proper matter for pretrial motions, and should be dealt with at the time of the trial. Most of the answers to the questions, he agreed with Honeck, rest with the state defendants to the suit and not with the Outagamie County plaintiffs, he said.

Wilkie also allowed the attorneys for the contending sides to substitute two new state officials for two former legislators defeated last fall.

Angelo Greco and Frank Nikolay, former Democratic Assemblymen from Milwaukee and Abbotsford, were members of the state building commission and were named as defendants in the original suit.

Substituted were two new Assembly members of the Commission, Robert Kordus, D-Milwaukee and Harvey Gee, R-Wisconsin Rapids.

Joins Peace Corps

Kaukauna Veteran Seeking Duty in Southeastern Asia

KAUKAUNA — A 19 - year-old decorated war veteran is seeking a Peace Corps assignment in the same part of the world where he served on combat duty, and was twice wounded.

Michael F. Brautigan, 1613 Green Bay Road, asked for an appointment to Southeast Asia after completing his Peace Corps placement tests Feb. 18.

Brautigan, a 1965 graduate of Kaukauna High School, enlisted in the U.S. Navy in January, 1965. He was assigned to Vietnam and served with members of the U.S. Marine Corps on maneuvers with the 1st Infantry Division of the U.S. Army.

The youth was wounded by both rifle fire and mortar rounds. The rifle wounds were inflicted while Brautigan participated in a reconnaissance patrol which was ambushed by Viet Cong. That time he suffered arm wounds.

The second time, Brautigan was part of an amphibious assault force landing about 100 miles northeast of Saigon, near Cu Chi. Mortar rounds wounded Brautigan's leg.

He received a medical discharge in May 1966, after spending approximately five months in the Philadelphia Naval Hospital. His decorations include a Distinguished Service Cross, a Bronze Star Medal, two Purple Hearts and a Navy Commendation Medal.

He has been notified by Peace Corps officials that he successfully completed the tests. They did not, however, inform Brautigan of the part of the world to which he will be assigned, or when training will begin.

Peace Corps volunteers in Southeast Asia are serving in the countries of Laos and Thailand.

Money Was Chief Concern At School Candidates Rally

100 Voters Ask Questions About Salaries, Budgets, Federal Aids

Money matters predictably occupied the minds of the five Board of Education positions, and approximately 100 curious voters attending Thursday night's League of Women Voters annual candidates meeting at James Madison Junior High School.

Although the candidates, including two incumbents, repeatedly contended education and money shouldn't be mentioned in the same breath, the major issues discussed concerned financing.

The most surprising statement of the meeting was made by Warren Hahn, a sales engineer seeking his first term on the board, when he said: "The city council shouldn't have anything to say about the school budget. Why can the city set the school budget when the board can't set the city budget?" he asked.

Ask Questions

After brief campaign speeches the candidates were questioned for more than an hour. Incumbents up for re-election are Kenneth Sager, associate professor at Lawrence University, and Victor Sumnicht, a businessman.

Seeking first terms are Hahn, Don C. Smith, general manager of a business consultant firm, and John Stevens, salesman and former teacher. The candidates appeared Tuesday at a meeting of the Appleton Education Association. A story on that meeting appears on page A-3 today. In the primary election next Tuesday one candidate will be eliminated.

Queried about rumors of dissatisfaction among Appleton's teaching staff, Sumnicht said, "We (Appleton) are not paying the highest salaries." He added, however, "We've had, to my knowledge, no difficulty filling vacancies."

Watches Salaries

Sager said the Appleton school system watches with interest other area systems competing for teacher applications. The starting teacher annual salary in Appleton has been increased from $5,200 this year to $5,400 for the 1967-68 term, Sager said.

"The backbone of education is not really the tax dollar," Stevens said. "It is the youngster and the teacher."

Smith said he decided to run for the unsalaried board job when he became "interested due to controversy from the budget hearings last year."

"The dollars we spend out of our tax receipts indicate we need to have people who are willing, and able, to analyze costs," Smith added.

Stevens said Appleton should be made attractive to competent and dedicated teachers. He suggested, "We should try to draw in as much aid for furthering teacher's education as possible."

Sumnicht, referring to last year's budgetary difficulties between the city council and the board, asked for the reinstatement of approximately $8,000 to $10,000 in the schools' budget for use in salvaging a portion of the summer school program. By the end of the hearings last year,

Undersheriff 'Impatient' Over Salary

Spice Asks for Decision to Make Plans for Future

Outagamie County Undersheriff Calvin L. Spice is still drawing $577 a month — the lowest possible salary in his designated pay grade — and he indicated Thursday afternoon that he is growing impatient with county supervisors' indecision over whether to raise it or leave it as it is.

Spice, who appeared briefly at the county board's law enforcement committee meeting, inquired about the status of action on his salary — a matter that has been kicked from committee to committee since the executive committee voted Jan. 4 to set it at the bottom of grade 19.

Spice, who served four years as sheriff, 11 years as county traffic patrolman, and five years on the Kaukauna police force, said he was asking the committee about his salary, "so I will know where I stand," and "... so I will know what plans I should make for the future."

First Indication

It was the first indication from Spice that he might consider other employment if his salary is not raised. Under pay grade 19, he could receive up to $732 monthly.

Appleton Supv. George Greisch, committee chairman, told Spice he "wants to do some checking" on the salary matter. Greisch, who this week was released from a hospital after a two-month stay, indicated he has not been able to study the matter thoroughly. He said he will report to his committee.

Sheriff Norbert Marx submitted a letter to the law enforcement committee Thursday asking for action on Spice's salary. Some members of the law enforcement committee have attempted unsuccessfully to get the executive committee to reconsider its action on the salary.

It was learned Thursday that the law enforcement committee received a letter from Village of Shiocton officials, suggesting that "... a salary schedule be assigned to the undersheriff, commensurate with his past experience as a law enforcement officer." The letter stated that the matter of Spice's salary was brought up at a February village board meeting.

The letter to the committee, through Appleton Supv. John R. Schreiter, former chairman of the committee, was drafted following unanimous approval of the formal motion.

Claim Loss of $236,000 if Site Is Sold

Legislature Told Of Possible Effects Of Lorge Bill

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — It will cost the state $236,000 if Sen. Gerald Lorge's bill to allow the sale of the Shorewood site of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay is enacted into law, the legislature has been told.

In an official fiscal note prepared by the State Department of Administration, the cost-estimate was based on a purchase price of $523,900 for property already obtained for the campus location, a projected loss of $26,195 to the county through the sale of the land through public auction, $10,000 in consultant's fees, and planning costs of $200,000.

Exclude Land

But excluded from the fiscal note is all consideration of the cost of a major part of the proposed property for the campus, including the Shorewood golf course, land which has a reported appraisal price of between $1 million and $2 million. Addition of possible losses to the county from the sale of this land, after purchase, would drastically alter the fiscal impact of the bill on the state.

Under the proposal, all costs incurred by the county in the purchase of the land, and not regained through sale at public auction, would be repaid from the state treasury.

Interest also would be paid by the state on such funds lost to the county.

Hire Firm

The special site selection firm, according to the bill, would be an out-of-state consulting firm which would have specific instructions to exclude the Shorewood site from consideration.

Under the provisions of the Lorge bill, the county could request the sale of the land by the state at any time. The bill also specifies that such procedures will be followed if a pending court case to void the Shorewood site is won by Outagamie County forces who have argued that it is too remote to provide commuter - education opportunities for students from the southern Fox River Valley.

County Judge John Buchen ordered a presentence investigation and set bail at $2,500.

Great Decisions Luncheons

Historian Says Communists Losing Eastern Europe Bloc

Eastern Europe today was viewed as an area of increasing independent political activity and relaxed ideology by J. Michael Hittle, speaker at Thursday's Great Decisions luncheon meeting at the Appleton YMCA.

Hittle referred to the Communist bloc as more of "an alliance of states," than the once solid political-economic cluster of the post World War II period.

Title of Thursday's meeting was "Yugoslavia and Rumania: Whither National Communism?" Hittle, a Lawrence University history instructor, spoke to an audience of 40 persons.

Have Division

A "great division" exists in the satellite ranks, Hittle said. The split is a result of a series of reversals the Communists have experienced in ideological matters, dating back to the beginning of the Krushchev era, he said.

Hittle described Khrushchev as "a genuine moderating influence in Russian leadership" of the bloc states. The Communist leader achieved modest success in loosing governmental reigns on the Russian people, he said, but was less successful elsewhere. The effect of revolts in East Germany, Poland and Hungary was to prove that ideology alone could not hold the bloc together, Hittle said.

The Lawrence instructor pointed to a lack of "institutional" and economic cohesiveness in the late 1950's as a major contributing factor to the weakening of the Eastern European bloc.

Influence Strong

He acknowledged, however, that traditional Communist influence was still strong in the north states — Poland, Czechoslovakia and East Germany — where the fear of West Germany is greatest.

Hittle cautioned that the West should not underestimate the combined strengths of the Soviet bloc, either militarily, politically or economically. He saw considerable growth potential in the bloc's industrial-economic capacities, and acknowledged that the states' underlying political motives remained largely unchanged.

Following Hittle's talk, discussion centered on trade possibilities with the satellites. There was equally strong support for a policy of "building bridges" in East-West relations, and for withholding any economic support which might strengthen the Soviet bloc.

County Employes To Select Desired Local Representation

Two separate groups, one formed of caseworkers in the Outagamie County Welfare Department, will vote on courthouse union representation March 13.

The notice of the election was given today, following a directive by the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board (WERB) allowing caseworkers — as well as other qualified courthouse employes, to determine through secret ballot if they want representation by the Courthouse Employes Association or the Outagamie County Courthouse Employes Local 1761, of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, AFL-CIO.

Prior to the amended directive by the WERB, issued late last month, the caseworkers would not have had the opportunity of voting for representation by Local 1761. A dispute over whether the caseworkers should be allowed to vote for other than the courthouse employes association has held up balloting in the courthouse union matter.

Hours Set

Balloting will be from 3-5 p.m. March 13, in the courthouse annex meeting room.

Welfare department caseworkers will comprise one unit in the voting. Excluded will be department supervisors and office clerical employes.

Comprising the second voting unit designated by the WERB will be courthouse maintenance, custodial and clerical employes, including those employed on a part-time basis, and those working in the welfare department.

Excluded under the second group will be department heads, supervisors, nurses, caseworkers, elected officials, court reporters, secretary to the corporation counsel, and sheriff's department personnel.

Employes will have three choices on the ballots They will vote for representation by Local 1761, continued representation by the courthouse employes association, or no union representation.

Warn Planners on Unfilled Promises

Developers Plans Sometimes Fail to Materialize After Zoning

A northwest side Appleton alderman has warned his council colleagues to beware of developers with "fancy plans that never materialize".

Ald. Arthur Mueller (19th) said Wednesday night the plan commission may be becoming vulnerable to promises based on property rezoning requests.

Mueller raised strong objection to one recommended rezoning but said he would go along with another in his ward because the city planner indicated a proposed apartment complex appeared to be a good plan.

Mueller referred back to the plan commission a recommendation that property on the west side of Birchwood Avenue at Grant Street in Gillett Highlands subdivision be rezoned from single to two-family residential.

Strenuous Objection

"I hesitate to vote on this item," Mueller declared, "and I object strenuously to this type of rezoning in an area less than two blocks from $40,000 and $50,000 homes."

The matter was sent back to the plan commission.

Mueller then said he took a different but a somewhat critical view of the 220-unit apartment complex which was up for approval between Marquette and Pershing streets, west of Lindbergh Street.

Kes-Ler Develoment Corp of Milwaukee says it will build a $2 million complex of two-story apartments on a 10-acre site west of Northside Kiwanis Park.

No rezoning was involved, but the council had to approve a plan change of the Milwaukee firm. Originally, it proposed a multi-million dollar luxury apartment complex, complete with courtyards and a special street layout.

Lacked Financing

However, the developers said they could not obtain the necessary financing and decided to build 220 units rather than 300.

"I might note here that these developers changed their minds after the city vacated an alley and street extension for them," Mueller declared.

Under the revised plan, three-story apartment structures were eliminated from the proposal. Originally, about one-third were to be that height.

The project meets all codes, according to city officials. Kes-Ler Developers took out a permit last summer for the luxury complex but it was voided with the change in construction plans. A new permit will have to be obtained.

Revival Attempted

On another matter an attempt was made to revive the request

12 City Streets Deleted From Trunk System

Appleton to Receive Road Maintenance Aid From State

Removal of portions of 12 Appleton streets from the Outagamie County trunk highway system has been approved by the Wisconsin Highway Commission.

It could result in the city receiving upwards of $12,000 more in state aids. The state pays maintenance aids under a set formula with aid higher for city streets than county trunks.

Confirmation of the commission's action was received by city officials in a letter from V. L. Fiedler, commission secretary.

Previously, the city council petitioned to have the streets removed from the county system, a move which was agreeable to Outagamie County officials.

The city will be responsible for snow and ice removal and general upkeep of the streets, while receiving state aids. In the past the money went to the county.

Pre-Election Voting Scheduled Tonight, Saturday at Appleton

Some pre-election voting will take place at the Appleton city hall tonight and Saturday morning.

City Clerk Elden Broehm announced this is the special time being allotted residents to cast absentee ballots.

The primary is Tuesday.

Broehm will hold special office hours tonight until 8 p.m. and Saturday to noon.

African Educators

Zambia Missionaries Guests in Appleton

Mr. and Mrs. Lester K. Weiner, missionary educators from Zambia, East Africa, will be guests of the First Congregational Church today through Sunday in connection with the church's annual observance of Christian World Mission Sunday.

Weiner, known in the United Church of Christ (UCC) as "The man who proved that writing poetry can be dangerous," will speak at 7 p.m. today at Lawrence Memorial Union. He and his wife will be guests of the First Congregational confirmation class and church school classes Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Weiner

The entire congregation and guests from neighboring churches who wish to meet the missionaries have been invited to a potluck supper at 6 p.m. Saturday at the church, when the couple will give an illustrated report on their life and activities in Africa.

Guest at Services

Weiner will also be the guest preacher at the 9:15 and 11 a.m. services Sunday. His topic will be "Rhodesia and Zambia: Contrasts in Mission."

Reservations for Saturday's supper may be made with the church office.

Weiner, now serving as principal of a school in Zambia, was deported together with his family in 1955 from Rhodesia as a result of a prize-winning poem entitled, "Southern Sonnet," written as a protest against conditions in Rhodesia, where the non-white person has few rights. The use of police dogs against Africans was singled out for mention in the poem as an example of the police brutality observed by the missionaries.

First Prize

Unknown to Weiner, the poem was entered in a national contest and won first prize, bringing the author and his support of the people to widespread attention at a time of increasing strain between white supremacy and its opponents.

The couple met in Rhodesia when Mrs. Weiner was sent to be Weiner's replacement. After their marriage, they both served in the field of educational administration under the UCC Board for World Ministries.

He is presently on furlough in the U.S. and is studying educational administration at Harvard.

PSC Okays $13 Million Stock Issue

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. has been authorized to issue $13,000,000 in par value of common stocks to provide for the financing of capital expenditures involved in a huge expansion program.

The stock will be sold to the parent company, the Wisconsin Electric Co. of Milwaukee, under a plan approved by the Public Service Commission.

Wisconsin Michigan provides electric service to cities in northeastern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan, and operates a gas utility system in Appleton, Menasha and Neenah.

The commission said the company during the year will spend about $27,000,000 for construction, including about $16,100,000 in payments on a nuclear power plant at Point Beach in the Town of Two Creeks near Manitowoc.

Construction Can Start

Bergstrom Treatment Plant Ok'd by State

NEENAH — Approval has been received by Bergstrom Paper Co. from the Water Resources division of the state department of Resource Development to proceed with construction of the firm's $1.2 million waste and water treatment facilities.

State approval was the last step needed before formal construction on the plant could start.

The new waste treatment plant, which will be capable of handling eight million gallons of water a day, will increase the holding and settling time of the waste water three-fold, allowing for greater efficiency in removal of solids, according to company officials.

A new polyelectrolyte coagulant, developed by Bergstrom scientists in cooperation with a chemical company, was cited as a major factor in enabling the company to set a construction time table. The coagulant helps the minute particles adhere to each other until they are large enough to settle out of the water.

The materials removed from the water consist mainly of clay and ink and other materials separated from the waste paper fibers used in Bergstrom's papermaking operations.

All mill waste from the downtown plants will be collected in a circular clairfier, 120 feet in diameter, for the initial settling operation.

The solids then go to the disposal plant where additional water is removed in compaction tanks and through use of a vacuum filter. The de-watered solids are then hauled away to be used as land fill and the water is returned to Little Lake Butte des Morts.

A new water treatment plant also will be constructed to treat the water used in the manufacturing process.

NM Apostolate Ends Services For Juveniles

Director Blames Move on Cut in Red Feather Funds

NEENAH - MENASHA — Official notice to the county court and county welfare department that it was withdrawing its services on juvenile cases effective March 1 was filed this week by the Neenah-Menasha Apostolate.

What is to become of these boys and girls was partly answered today.

Rev. Richard Wochenske, director of the Apostolate, speaking for the N-M Apostolate board advised Judge James G. Sarres, County Court Branch 2, and Norman Whitford, director of the Winnebago County Department of Public Welfare (WCDPW) by letter that the N-M Apostolate "would no longer be able to accept cases of juvenile delinquents assigned to it by the court, nor able to provide services to the court in evaluation prior to a disposition."

Judge Sarres said today that the Apostolate's withdrawal would have serious effects for the boys and girls who need the services the Apostolate has been providing. "We will just have to get along as best we can with a staff which is already inadequate," he said. "It will mean less help for the child.

Rev. Wochenske said, "We felt that withdrawing the juvenile services would have the least serious effect on the agency services, I have talked informally for the past year with Judge Sarres and Whitford about our growing caseload in the other services.

"It may appear that our action was abrupt, but it really was not.

"When it became definite that our requested $24,605 budget from the Neenah-Menasha Community Chest was being cut $2,300 for 1967, we had to act."

Agree on Way To Dispose of Lake Dredgings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army and the Interior Department announced Tuesday night agreement on a program for attacking the problem of disposing of polluted material dredged from Great Lakes harbors.

The department said the agreement shows what the federal government must do "to help preserve the incomparable values of the Great Lakes water resources."

The Army Engineers handle the dredging and interior's federal water pollution control administration will cooperate in the effort to control pollution. Under the program, dredging will proceed this year on 64 of the 108 channel and harbor projects in the Great Lakes.

Also, beginning next month, a pilot program of experimentation will be initiated to develop the most practicable methods for management of pollution problems related to the dredging operations that will be consistent with the national objective of cleaning up rivers and lakes.

Construction Pace Drops In Appleton

New construction in Appleton is falling behind the pace of previous years.

Officials connected with the building industry hope the easing of "tight money" restrictions will reverse the trend.

February proved to be another slow month with permits for $110,236 in new building issued by the department of inspection.

There were no business, commercial or industrial building permits during the past month. Those issued were mostly for residential razing and remodeling. However, the three new home permits was a slight increase over the January total of one. Building Inspector Charles Magnette said the estimated total cost of the three residences was $67,500.

Normally, the weather is blamed for the seasonal building slump but officials say there are other factors involved.

Lower Crab Creek Too Embarrassing

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — The Washington House of Representatives voted Thursday to let the Lower Crab Creek School District change its name.

Rep. Stewart Bledsoe, who represents the area, said the community of Royal has grown up there since the district was named.

Bledsoe said it's embarrassing for pupils of Royal High School to ride to school and to athletic games in buses bearing the name "Lower Crab Creek."

So, if the Senate concurs and a majority of residents of the district approve, the name will be changed to Royal School District.

Ombudsman Not '68 Candidate

GERMANTOWN (AP) — James Buckley, unsuccessful congressional candidate in 1964 and 1966, says he won't run for Congress in 1968, but has not ruled himself out of subsequent election contests.

Buckley is on the staff of Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., as an ombudsman handling complaints from voters in Reuss' Milwaukee district.

Buckley said Monday he expects any Democratic candidate would have a difficult time in 1968 in the 9th Congressional District, currently represented by Republican Glenn R. Davis of New Berlin.

Airmail Bid by Air Wisconsin Turned Down for Second Time

NEENAH — For the second time in a month the common council's health and welfare committee will recommend the council withhold support from Air Wisconsin's bid for a contract to carry airmail.

The council voted against supporting Air Wisconsin on Feb. 15 but the matter was referred back to the health and welfare committee for reconsideration at the request of Ald. Lyle Ernst.

After listening to Del Drumm, executive secretary of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce; Francis Sumnicht, Appleton postmaster, and Preston W. Wilbourne, general manager of Air Wisconsin, Thursday, the committee again voted to recommend against supporting Air Wisconsin.

Test of Mail

Drumm said the Appleton Chamber had surveyed industry in that city and found they wanted guaranteed overnight airmail service, particularly to Washington, D.C., the southwest and the west coast. Drumm said to test the service they mailed three airmail special delivery letters to Washington. One arrived the next day, one took two days and the third took five days.

The chamber executive said Neenah would benefit because they would be able to mail an hour later in the evening and have the mail arrive in Chicago an hour earlier for handling with Air Wisconsin.

Sumnicht told the committee he did not believe an airmail contract for Air Wisconsin would hurt North Central Airlines. He said many firms have quit shipping airmail since North Central ended its Appleton operations because they could not get service. Many of these firms would again ship airmail if the service was provided he said.

Wilbourne said he did not believe Air Wisconsin would be competing against North Central Airlines, but would be supplementing that service.

Four to Five Days

Ernst, who also appeared before the committee, cited similar situations with American Can Co. where it has taken four and five days for delivery of air mail parcels.

Ald. Donald Gomoll, chairman of the committee, said he had surveyed all of the major industries in Neenah and they all had expressed satisfaction with the present service.

Ald. Robert Frank doubted whether service would be improved for Neenah. He said Neenan now has the latest time pickup of airmail going out of Oshkosh and the earliest delivery on the northbound routes.

Ald. Thomas Ryan also suggested leaving the situation as it now is. "We are paying to support the Winnebago County Airport," he noted. He said that perhaps in a year or so, if there was need for a change, they could reconsider the request.

Town Will Have Only NM Contest

NEENAH - MENASHA — The three-way contest for the Wisconsin Supreme Court justice post will be the only item facing the electorate in the cities of Neenah and Menasha during the primary elections next Tuesday.

However, Town of Menasha voters will have a say in two other contests — the five-man Appleton school board race and the three-man town west side supervisor post.

All communities in the state will have primary elections Tuesday to eliminate one candidate from the Supreme Court contest. Challenging 67-year-old Chief Justice George R. Currie for re-election are Circuit Judge Robert W. Hansen, Milwaukee, and attorney Harry Halloway, Whitefish Bay.

Townsmen will also select two of the three candidates for the town's Side Supervisor No. 2. Candidates for all town offices run at-large in the town but side supervisor candidates must specifically run for one of the two posts.

Incumbent Supv. Robert Wisner will be opposed by Theodore Dupont and Peter Krautkramer for the town post.

Some nine town voters, who live in an area encompassed by the Appleton Joint School District, will cast their ballots for five school board candidates at the Spring Road School polls.

The five candidates are running for two seats on the board and one will be eliminated after Tuesday's balloting. Incumbents Victor Sumnicht and Kenneth Sager face opposition from Warren Hahn, Don C. Smith and John Stevens.

The Appleton Toastmistresses Club members and their husbands are invited to attend the speak-off. Leroy Sommers is in charge of arrangements.

Consultant Interviews To Start for Expansion Of Airport Terminal

OSHKOSH — The aviation committee will start interviewing consultants for a proposed addition to the Winnebago County Airport terminal building.

A representative of Howard Needles, Tammen and Bergendorf, consulting firm which conducted an airport survey for the county several years ago, will be the first firm to be called in by the committee. However, other firms also will be called in and then asked to submit proposals.

Funds have been placed in the airport budget for the hiring of a consultant to plan terminal expansion. Space shortage in the building has been becoming critical as a result of North Central Airlines expansion.

Market Shows Sign of Slowing

Margin of Plus Stocks Narrows After Three Days

NEW YORK (AP) — After three days of brisk advance, the stock market showed signs of weariness early this afternoon.

Stocks were higher on balance from the opening. Gainers still outnumbered losers early in the afternoon but the margin of plus signs had narrowed considerably.

The lackluster performance of blue chips was reflected by The Associated Press average of 60 stocks which at noon was off .2 to 315.8 with industrials off .4, rails unchanged and utilities off .2.

In addition, IBM and some other computer stocks were upset by news that the House antitrust subcommittee has decided to make its own study of the computer industry.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon held a trivial gain of .39 at 847.10.

Computer Losses

IBM sank 5 points on the news. Among other computer stocks, Control Data and Sperry Rand lost fractions.

A 1-point loss by Du Pont helped depress averages, as did fractional losses by General Motors, General Foods, General Electric and Liggett & Myers.

Swift advanced about 1½ on overnight news of its proposed stock split.

Household Finance sank a couple of points in response to a report its small loan license may not be renewed in New Hampshire.

Xerox spurted more than 4 points in further response to its development of a new duplicating machine to work from computer print-outs.

Boeing held a gain of more than a point but Douglas Aircraft showed only a fractional advance.

United Aircraft lost 1, Raytheon 2 and Anaconda nearly a point.

Phone Operator Retires After 33-Year Service

Mrs. Edna A. Malliet, 813 W. Fourth St., an operator with the Wisconsin Telephone Co., recently retired after 33 years with the firm.

She began her career with the company as an operator at Appleton in 1933, handling local and later long disttance calls.

A native of Birnamwood, Mrs. Malliet attended schools there before moving to Appleton in 1923.

She is a member of the Christian Mothers Society of St. Mary Catholic Church, the Catholic War Veterans Society and the Knights of Columbus Auxiliary Council 4802.

Mrs. Malliet is also a member of the Telephone Pioneers of America, a social - service organization of telephone workers with 21 years or more of service.

Her husband, James, recently retired from Allis-Chalmers, Appleton, after 20 years of service. The couple has five children and 26 grandchildren.

100 Residents Premature on Complaints

At least 100 Appleton residents jumped the gun on sending in completed questionnaires concerning the city's garbage bag collection experiment.

Those in a three-ward area selected to participate in the trial garbage-rubbish pickup program were asked to fill out questionnaires and send comments on to city hall.

There was only one thing wrong, according to Donald Bengs, assistant public works director.

Persons returned the questionnaires — including strong comments against any collection changes — before the new system was tested in their neighborhoods.

"We were hoping they would give us a chance to see how the experiment appealed to them," Bengs commented.

All-Time High Membership at Appleton's Y

Sign 5,857 Members In Current Drive; Deadline Tuesday

An all time high of 5,857 members, 143 short of the goal, has been signed for the Appleton YMCA during the membership campaign, according to Dr. C. E. Fenlon and Mrs. John Stevens, co-chairmen, who announced the figures at a report night this week.

To reach the 6,000 goal, the campaign has been extended to Tuesday, when final reports will be given by all the committees.

To date, campaigners have brought in a total of 2,013 memberships, 432 new and 1,581 renewals. A 10 per cent savings on current membership rates will continue until March 15, even though the campaign goal may have been met prior to that date, according to Dr. Fenlon.

Those whose memberships are not due until later in the year may take advantage of the savings by promising to renew when their memberships are due.

Gene Jones' division was high for the last report with 50 new members and 170 renewals. John Bartman again was high in the individual category with 67 new and six renewal memberships.

Expansion of Sheriff Area Is Stymied

Property Committee Votes 3-2 Against Remodeled Quarters

By a 3-2 vote Thursday afternoon, the Outagamie County Board's public property committee stymied expansion of sheriff department quarters on the first floor of the courthouse.

The vote was called on plans prepared by an Appleton architectural firm for expansion of the sheriff's department into quarters recently vacated with the relocation of state probation and parole department facilities.

Voting against the plan were Supvs. Patrick Mares, Arthur Hoolihan, and Bernard Tillman. Supvs. Andrew Jimos and Waldemar Klein voted for the project.

Indications were another attempt will be made to win committee or board approval.

Office Space

Architectural plans provided for expansion to include office space for investigators, investigation lieutenant, juvenile officer, sheriff, undersheriff, traffic lieutenant, and traffic sergeant. Also included were space for a squad room, main office, interrogation and storage.

The proposed remodeling of former state probation office quarters would cost about $3,500, supervisors were told. The space has been vacant since the probation office was moved across the first floor hall to larger quarters last year.

The vacant quarters under consideration are immediately south of the sheriff's office. Plans called for knocking out part of the wall separating the sheriff's office from the vacant quarters.

Although public property committee members were meeting alone when they made the decision, members of the board's law enforcement unit, meeting elsewhere in the courthouse, went to the property committee session and requested reconsideration.

Piecemeal Remodelling

Sheriff Norbert Marx said "the sheriff's department cannot operate more effectively unless more room is made available." He said one of the biggest needs is for an interrogation room.

Supv. Emil Diestler of Hortonville, vice chairman of the law enforcement committee, urged the property unit to reconsider its action, explaining more space is needed because the sheriff's department is getting larger in number.

Mares, an Appleton supervisor and vice chairman of the property committee, said he does not want to see "piecemeal" remodeling of the courthouse. He indicated that if the sheriff department remodeling were part of an overall courthouse plan, he would "go for it."

Parents to Hear About Teaching Sex Education

KAUKAUNA — The Rev. Duane Dionne, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Parish, Chilton, and Dr. W. S. Giffin, Medical Arts Clinic, Appleton, will discuss "Sex Education of Your Children" at a meeting of the Holy Cross Home-School Association at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday in the school cafeteria.

The talk will deal with the responsibility of parents to inform their children about the facts of life. Since it is felt this subject is of major importance, the meeting is open to all adults of the parish. Both speakers have frequently addressed area meetings on subjects of interest to parents.

Mothers of third grade students under the direction of Mrs. Richard Giordana and Mrs. Daniel Voet will have charge of the social.

Ecumenical Meeting

Youth to Attend Lecture About Religion, Science

"Religion and Science: Conflict or Challenge?", an illustrated lecture, will highlight the ecumenical youth meeting, scheduled at 6:30 p.m. Sunday at the Appleton Family YMCA.

Dr. Allen Utke, chemistry professor at Wisconsin State University - Oshkosh, (WSU-O)

The event is sponsored by the Ecumenical Youth Steering Committee of First Methodist, First Congregational, First English Lutheran, Zion Lutheran, Emmanuel Evangelical United Brethren, Holy Angels Catholic at Darboy, All Saints' Episcopal, Memorial Presbyterian churches and Xavier High School.

The committee is set up to explore the possibilities of ecumenical ventures in youth ministry. Instrumental in the organization is Miss Mary E. Putt, director of Christian education, First Methodist Church.

Dr. Utke received his bachelor's degree from Augustana College and his masters and doctors degrees in inorganic chemistry from the State University of Iowa.

After working for two years as a senior research chemist for the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., Dr. Utke accepted the position he now holds as assistant professor of chemistry at WSU-O.

He has been interested in the relationship of science and religion for several years and given many lectures in this field.

Money Was Chief Concern At Meeting

$200,000 were trimmed from the budget. The first programs reported to be deleted were the summer school and intramural activities.

"I think we can somehow find a small amount in our operational budget," Sumnicht said, to establish a basic remedial summer school program to teach such things as typing to college-bound students and remedial and speed reading.

Oppose Referendums

An inquisitor asked if the candidates would favor a public referendum on all bonding issues amounting to more than $500,000. All candidates said they would not favor such a requirement and cited lack of voter interest and uninformed public as the major reasons for their opposition.

Another question asked of all the candidates was, "Do you favor federal aid to education?"

Hahn said, "Basically, I'm against federal aid but as long as it's there we might as well use it. I hate to see all that money lying on the table," he said.

All the remaining candidates said they advocated the use of federal funds, and encouraged expansion of the city's federal participation in the federal aid programs.

Mrs. Gordon R. McIntyre was moderator for the school board candidates' meeting.

Aldermen Speak

Earlier in the evening, candidates for aldermen in the city's odd-numbered wards were given an opportunity to speak and answer questions.

Three men are running for alderman in both the Ninth and 11th Wards. The field will be reduced to two in each in Tuesday's primary. Five incumbent aldermen are unopposed. Two-man contests are taking place in the Third, 13th, and 19th Wards.

Candidates present at the meeting were Richard Huisman, (1st); William Wachtendonk, (3rd); John M MacDonald, (7th); James Bethke and Edward R. Maloney, (9th); Albert G. Gerhardt, Arthur J. Hoolihan and Frederick G. Kafura, (11th); Glenn Thompson, (13th); William F. Errington, (15th); Orville A. Strutz, (17th); and Ralph E. McHugh and Ralph C. Gertsch, (19th).

Not attending were Roland H. Voss, (3rd); Alvin E. Tews, (5th); Howard F. Stumpf, (13th) and John R. Kaufman, (9th).

Incumbents seeking re-election are Huisman, Tews, MacDonald, Errington, Strutz, Voss and Thompson.

Plans Fail to Materialize After Rezoning

of Humble Oil Co. to rezone from single family to commercial-light manufacturing, property on the southwest corner of Haskell Street and Prospect Avenue.

Ald. John MacDonald (7th), in whose ward it is located, led the objection to a service station project as he did previously when the council voted it down. The vote to rezone was deadlocked at 10-10.

Mayor Buckley had voted to break the tie — favoring rezoning — when one of the objectors noted a petition had been filed against the project, making a two-third majority approval mandatory.

A recommendation of the plan commission to have the city investigate the purchase of some old airport property for a future industrial park was temporarily halted by an automatic referral back to the commission by Ald. William Errington (15th).

Errington, alderman in the ward in which the property is located, claimed he had not been notified. "The least that can be done is to extend courtesy to the alderman in the ward," Errington said. "I don't think we should expedite things without first taking a real, good look."

The council did approve two rezoning requests:

—Five acres of property between Longview Drive and Northland Avenue, and between Brookdale Court and Helen Street, from single to multiple family to allow apartment construction.

—Eight lots from multiple family to commercial-light manufacturing — plus vacating an alley — between the service road and Longview Drive near Ullman Street to permit expansion of Doctors Park.

Manpower Sunday Set At Lutheran Parishes

KIMBERLY — Manpower Sunday will be observed by most of the Wisconsin Lutheran Synod Churches Sunday with pastors to speak on the topic, "'Go Ye' — Then and Now'."

Special hymn written for the service is entitled, "A Royal Priesthood, Here We Stand." Inserts have been prepared and will be included in bulletins for three consecutive Sundays asking those who feel they have a calling to the ministry or teaching profession to step forward and be heard.

Although synod educational institutions are experiencing record enrollments, the need for additional teachers and pastors is acute, thus special Sundays have been set aside each year for five years to encourage young people in vocations, the pastors said.

Trade Unions Fret Needlessly Over Crowding

State AFL-CIO Head Claims Rumors To be Groundless

FOND DU LAC (AP) — The state president of the AFL-CIO says trade unions are worrying unnecessarily over "pool room rumors" that industrial unions will crowd them out of a voice in the organization.

John W. Schmitt, AFL-CIO state president less than a year, offered reassurance to trade unions Thursday at a building trades conference after resolutions were submitted for a trade union organization separate from the AFL-CIO.

Urging trade and construction unions not to bolt the state AFL-CIO, Schmitt told more than 200 delegates they should ignore rumors that industrial unions might shift the organization's balance of power away from a fair share for trades workers.

Appleton Resolution

Resolutions suggesting creation of a separate building trades council were submitted by delegates from Madison, Eau Claire and Appleton.

There are an estimated 30,000 tradesmen affiliated with the state AFL-CIO which has about 280,000 members.

The AFL-CIO has not concealed its concern over the loss of a bloc of members, each paying 10 cents a month to the state organization.

Milwaukee delegates, meanwhile, introduced a resolution calling trade union conventions four times a year. They said the move might offset the demand for a separate organization.

Utility Connection Hearing Adjourned to After April 1

MADISON — The Public Service Commission hearing on the proposed interconnection between the Menasha and Kaukauna municipal electric utilities has been adjourned until sometime after April 1.

The adjournment, by the hearing examiner Maurice H. Van Susteren, is to allow PSC engineers time to study the exhibits submitted by the interconnection committee of the utilities and to study the transcript of testimony given by witnesses called by the committee before starting cross-examination.

Efforts Wednesday by Town of Menasha Chairman Roland Kampo to have a petition, signed by 31 town residents along Plank Road, objecting to proposed routing of the high-voltage transmission lines, admitted as evidence were rejected by Van Susteren. The examiner ruled that the petitioners must appear in person to have the petition entered as evidence. However, he said the petition could be filed with the commission.

Kampo told Van Susteren residents had requested the hearing be held in the Fox Cities are to permit attendance. Van Susteren said the residents could still petition the commission to have the remainder of the hearing held locally.

Large Rescue Squad Frees Tiny Finger of Little Girl

The small cover on the glass jar read "Safe for Children."

But Christine Marie Behnke learned the hard way this morning that the phrase applied to what was inside the jar and certainly not the jar cover.

With the curiosity that has a way of overcoming 5½-year-old girls, Christine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Behnke, 1738 N. Richmond St., put her finger through a small hole in the tin cover.

It came free, but not without the assistance of four Appleton firemen who were summoned to the home after an unsuccessful rescue attempt by the girl's mother.

Firemen, who responded to the call with the department's large rescue unit (standard procedure when it is believed special tools might be needed), had the girl free shortly after they arrived about 8:10 a.m. They used a side cutter tin snips.

Firemen then applied a dressing to Christine's finger which was cut and bleeding from the sharp edge around the hole in the cover.

Firemen "confiscated" the cover.

Friends Will Admire Your Shamrock of Green Sponge

BY CAPPY DICK

A novelty wall decoration is easy to make from a green synthetic sponge. As shown in Figures 2 and 3 it is a big, green shamrock.

Mark With Pen

After selecting a suitable sponge, use a felt-tip marking pen to outline the shamrock as in Figure 1.

Carefully cut it out, following the outline very closely It is advisable to cut slowly to avoid making errors

With mending tape attach a picture hook to the back of the shamrock and hang it on the wall above the desk as the boy has done in Figure 3 It is sure to attract the attention of your visitors who will want to know where you obtained it You will then have fun explaining how the cutout was made.

You can make a four-leaf clover instead of a shamrock if you wish. This is accomplished simply by adding a fourth leaf when you outline the design and do the cutting.

MU Wins Final Tilt Of Regular Season

Wolf Scores 26 Against Detroit '5'

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Marquette basketball coach Al McGuire says Thursday night's victory over Detroit may have built some momentum for his tournament-bound Warriors, but he is 'leery" of an upcoming layoff.

Marquette plays its first game in the National Invitational Tournament March 11. The Warriors carry an 18-8 record into the tourney.

"Normally our freshman team would be finished for the season," McGuire said, "but we are going to keep them for a week and have about four hard - nosed scrimmages before the tournament."

I think the boys reached mid-season form," Mc Guire said after the Warriors downed Detroit 71-64 and avenged an earlier loss to the Titans. "We were jumping and shooting like we did when we had our mid - season win streak," Mc Guire said.

Bob Wolf, playing the last home game of his brilliant career, sparked the Warriors to victory with 26 points.

"Wolf is a ball player's ball player," said Mc Guire. "He always gives 110 per cent, and if he hadn't had that misfortune with his father, he would have broken all our scoring records."

Wolf's father died at midseason and, although Wolf missed only one game, his scoring average was way off for several games after that.

Top Scoring Award

Wolf, the Warrior captain, is the highest scoring guard in Marquette history and the second highest scorer ever.

George Thompson added 19 points to the Warrior effort before he fouled out late in the game.

Mc Guire said the Warriors "keyed our defense" on Jerry Swartzfager, who scored 30 points when the Titans downed Marquette in overtime 94-92 at Detroit earlier this year. Swarzfager got only three points Thursday night.

"I assigned Brian Brunkhorst to cover Swartzfager and they took each other out of the game," McGuire said.

Detroit, 10-15 for the season, was led by Bruce Rodwan's 17 points and 16 points from Larry Salci.

Salci hit on a jump shot and Rodwan scored with a layup as the Titans pulled to within two points of the Warriors at 30-28 at the intermission.

Wolf scored eight points and Thompson hit seven in the early minutes of the second half to boost the Warriors' margin to 49-39.

Al McIntosh, who finished with 15 points, sparked the Titans then as they came back to within two points at 61-59 with about three minutes left.

But the Warriors went into a stall then and padded their margin with free throws by Wolf, Thompson, Brunkhorst and Brad Luchini and a layup by Thompson.

Rodwan converted a three-point play as the final gun sounded.

Marquette got its third sellout of the season as 11,138 fans turned out for the game.

Climbing out of the proverbial frying pan and into the fire is the prospect the Lawrence University basketball team faces Saturday night, when the Vikes journey to Ripon to take on the Redmen for the second time in eight days.

The Midwest Conference game is slated for a 7:30 p.m. tipoff.

The contest will mark the final road appearance for the Vikes, who wind up the season with a double bill at home next weekend against Cornell and Grinnell.

Coach Clyde Rusk's cagers, now 5-10 in the league play and 8-11 in all games, absorbed a 88-70 licking at the Redmen's hands last Saturday on the Lawrence floor. The loss kept the Vikes entrenched in eighth place in the loop race, while Ripon (9-6) increased its chance for a high first division finish.

Beloit Faces Cornell

The Lawrence-Ripon tussle is one of nine MC games slated for the weekend. Of major importance to the conference race is tonight's battle between Beloit (12-3) and Cornell (11-3) on the Rams' court. Cornell currently rides in second place, a half game behind the league-leading Bucaneers.

Beloit defeated Cornell, 74-63, in the first game, but may be at a disadvantage going into the Friday tilt. The Bucs' leading point-producer Jim Jones, who also tops the conference scoring race, was out last weekend with a severely sprained ankle. He has averaged 20.4 to date.

In a midweek contest, St. Olaf tipped cross-town rival Carleton, 63-61, to boost the Oies into fifth place ahead of the defending champion Carls. Carleton slipped into a tie for sixth with Monmouth at 8-8.

The Vikes have dropped three in a row — to St. Olaf, Carleton, and Ripon — since tripping Coe, 91-78, and Beloit, 64-63, on successive nights three weeks ago. Lack of tough rebounding and mediocre shooting have led to the string of defeats.

In the last game, the Redmen — led by conference high jump champion Dave Minor — dominated the boards to the tune of 54-38. Ripon also outshot the Lawrence five, 45.9 per cent to 39.7, and hit 20 of 23 free throws. The Vikes, meantime, could connect on only 20 of 35 charity tosses.

Bil Mikolyzk paced the Redmen to the victory with 21 points, raising his season average to an even 13 points-per-game. Minor contributed 18 points to the Ripon cause to raise his team-high average to 14.1.

Dick Schultz was the lone bright spot in the Vikes' assault with 19 points and upped his conference season total to 204, or 13.6 per game. Running mate at guard Brian Bock, who wore a protective wrestling headguard in the Ripon game after catching an elbow in the ear in practice, managed to throw in 11 points and now has 177 (11.8) for the MC season.

The 1966-67 all-Fox River Valley Conference basketball team features unanimous choices Dick Diener, Dennis Gutzman and Steve Fischer.

Fond du Lac's Diener was named the conference's "player of the year" by the Fox Valley Sportswriters Association, which also selected the first and second teams.

Grouped with Diener, Green Bay West's Gutzman and Sheboygan South's Fischer on the first team are Oshkosh's Jon Weber and Preble's Don Donarski.

Appleton's George Hoffman was chosen on the second team. Rounding out the second quint are Sheboygan North's Mike Hotz, Manitowoc's Pete Wilke, Oshkosh's Bob Kleinschmidt and Manitowoc's Bob Rosinsky.

State's Large Schools Begin Tourney Trail In Earnest Tonight

Eau Claire Memorial Upends Rival North In Regional Test

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eau Claire Memorial threw a blanket over the state's prep player of the week Thursday night as it continued its bid for a repeat appearance in the Wisconsin high school basketball tourney.

Memorial downed Eau Claire North 51-37 in regional semifinal competition, and Monona Grove overcame a 16-point deficit to defeat Madison Memorial 81-72.

North's Jim De Cremer, completing his season having averaged 32.8 points a game, was The Associated Press player of the week. Memorial held him to 16 points, and allowed him to hit only five of eight field goal attempts.

The Old Abes, who seek the Chippewa Falls regional title Saturday were among last year's eight finalists in the state tournament. Memorial is 16-4 for the season.

Madison Memorial blew a 16 point lead in the first half. Monona Grove put the game on ice scoring 41 points in the final 10 minutes of the game.

Wisconsin's major high school powers, led by mighty Milwaukee Lincoln, swing into action tonight as the state's annual basketball donnybrook enters the telltale stage.

The smaller schools had the arena virtually all to themselves Tuesday night when subregional play began, while the bigger schools, such as top-ranked Lincoln and second-ranked Monroe, waited in the wings.

The initial tests cut the original 426-team field to a mere 256 for games tonight, when the list of challengers to Lincoln's state title will be halved.

A mere 64 teams will still be competing for the eight berths in the annual state tournament at Madison when subsectional play opens Tuesday night.

Average Over 100

Lincoln (17-1), averaging better than 100 points per game, is scheduled to lower the boom on Waukesha in a regional semifinal test leading to the Racine sectional.

Messmer '5' Opens Defense of State Catholic Crown

7 Different Teams Have Won The Championship Since 1959

BY KEN HARTNETT

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Milwaukee Messmer, bucking precedent and a tall, tough field that includes high-scoring Appleton Xavier and tournament - tested Eau Claire Regis, opens defense of its Wisconsin Catholic high school basketball championship today.

Messmer, seeking to be the first since 1959 to win back-to-back titles, meets Wausau Newman (15-7) in one of four opening round games.

Xavier, victorious in 21 of 22 games, meets DePere Pennings (13-10) in the first contest in an afternoon doubleheader.

Regis (19-3), the Central Wisconsin Catholic Conference champion, plays Kenosha St. Joseph (14-8) in the second afternoon game.

Meets Campion

The Messmer-Newman game is the first on the nighttime card with Milwaukee Marquette (18-4) meeting Prairie du Chien Campion (10-12) in the finale.

Seven different teams have won the Catholic title since 1959. If the pattern holds, neither Messmer, Marquette, nor Xavier will be in the winner's circle when the tournament ends Sunday afternoon.

Marquette won the prize in 1965 and Xavier did it in 1963.

Neither St. Joseph's nor Newman has ever won the state title. Pennings has won it six times, but not once since 1957. Campion's last title, its third, came in 1932. Regis last won the crown, its third, in 1952.

Messmer, which finished behind co-champion Marquette in the Milwaukee Catholic Conference race, has won eight straight games and brings an 18-4 record into the tournament.

All-Stater John Johnson, the key to the Bishops' 1966 triumph has been graduated, but Roberto Woolfork, who played spectacularly as a sophomore last year, is back, a year older and wiser.

Newman, which almost matches Xavier in scoring punch with a per game average of 72 points, has four starters who stand 6-foot-3 or better. Two of them, Tom Sowinski, and Jim De Lisle, are averaging 17 rebounds each.

Highest Average

Xavier, a loser only to Marinette Central Catholic, has been averaging 73 points per game—more than any team in the tournament.

The perennial Fox Valley Catholic titlist also has a record of winning in the clutch. Seven of the Hawks' victories have been by five points or less.

Pennings has lost twice to the Hawks this season, the last time by four points.

Regis is led by the superb Dan Fisher, an all-tournament selection last season and a second - team All-Stater. Fisher 6-foot - 7 rebounds and shoots with the best in Wisconsin and his presence makes Regis a definite title threat.

St. Joseph's winner in eight of its last nine games, must stop Fisher. Assigned that task will be John Wojtak and Rick Polanski, both 6-foot - 5. Wojtak missed five games this season with a bad knee. His return to form coincided with the Lancers' second-half spurt.

Marquette has the gifted Tom Sonnenberg as its main scoring threat and relies on Al McGuire Jr., son of the Marquette University coach, for the heavy work under the boards.

The Hilltoppers have the best defensive average of all the tournament teams, holding foes to an average of 47 points per game.

Campion, the only tournament team with a losing record lost six of its first eight games, but won five of the last six.

The Knights are a defensive-minded team. Not one of their starters is averaging better than 12 points per game.

Jim Grabowski Will Go on Active Duty

Should Complete National Guard Tour in August

OSHKOSH, Wis. (AP)—A Wisconsin National Guard spokesman said Thursday Jim Grabowski, young fullback of the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League, will go on active duty some time between March 21 and 27. He will complete the tour about the third week in August.

Grabowski is attached to Company C, 2nd Battalion, 127th Infantry of the National Guard. His company superior, Sgt. Richard Konkol of Menasha, said active training periods under the current program run 17 to 19 weeks, depending upon occupational specialty.

Grabowski's primary specialty is supply, with clerical and light weapons secondary specialties. Infantrymen in that category have been averaging 17 to 19 weeks of active duty, Konkol said. If this applies, Grabowski will be out before the opening of the National League season.

Spartans' Baylor Suspended After Missing Classes

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State Basketball Coach John Benington Thursday suspended junior forward Art Baylor for cutting too many classes.

The suspension is indefinite, Benington said, but will last at least through this Saturday's game with Purdue and a Monday meeting with Minnesota.

Baylor, from Washington, D. C., had a 5.1 scoring average. He worked mostly in a reserve role but had started a few games for the Spartans.

Dr. Henry Makes 45-Minute Appeal

Faculty Group Mulls Illinois Sentence

CHICAGO (AP) — The jury of Big Ten faculty representatives deliberated today the sentence for the University of Illinois, which has admitted recruiting irregularities and has asked for leniency.

Marcus Plant of Michigan, secretary of the faculty group and president of the NCAA, said he was not certain exactly when a decision would be announced. The annual March business meetings of the conference end Saturday.

University President Dr. David D. Henry, faculty representative and acting athletic director Leslie Bryan, and university attorney James Costello presented a day-long appeal by Illinois Thursday.

The session started with a 45-minute appeal from Dr. Henry for a softening of last week's mandate by the conference's athletic directors that Illinois fire coaches Pete Elliott, Harry Combes and Howard Braun or show cause why the university should not be suspended or expelled from the Big Ten.

The coaches are guilty of distributing payments from an illegal $21,000 petty fund uncovered by the university in December. Dr. Henry turned all evidence over to the Big Ten, placed Elliott and Combes on a year's probation and ruled 12 football and basketball players ineligible.

It was disclosed Thursday that actually there were 14 cases presented involving athletes. Their eligibility also is being studied by the faculty men.

Dr. Henry said that he "spoke of Illinois' historic position in the conference and the way in which we have fully participated in all its activities through the years."

"The full effect of my being here was to try and convince the faculty representatives that the penalty was too harsh," he added. "Although I didn't really go into the cases of the individual athletes because that will be handled later by our other representatives, I did ask that the greatest possible leniency be given in their cases.

"I believe the representatives are going to go into detail on each individual athlete and decide each case that way."

Dr. Henry said he did not think there was any alternative but for the university to have done what it did in December and turn over all records of slush fund to the Big Ten office.

"We have followed the conference rules closely all these years," he said. "There is a definite rule against this sort of thing. To know about it and not to make a report to the league office would be hypocrisy of the first order.

"We just had to make the full report and let the chips fall where they may. I have been told, though, that the fact we turned the evidence in ourselves has been appreciated by the representatives."

Paces AAL League; Pat Jack Cracks 951 at Hortonville Lanes

JoAnn Goettel blasted three games over the 200 mark and finished with a 620 national honor count in the AAL Women's League at Sabre Lanes Thursday night.

JoAnn, who is a once-a-week bowler with an average of 162, started out with a 216 game and followed with a 201. In her last line she boomed a 203 to go well beyond the 600 mark.

The national set was the 19th recorded by women on Fox Cities area lanes this season. It was the second of the campaign at Sabre and the highest series at the establishment by a woman bowler.

Other top scores in the AAL loop included a 191 game and 520 series by Celia Truesdale, a 500 by Elaine Van Wagner and a 517 by Betty Marzahl.

Bombs 591 Set

Pat Jack came within nine pins of a national honor count as she pounded a 218 game and 591 series in the Hortonville Women's League at Hortonville Lanes last night. Bernice Mompier was next in line with a 517 series which included a 192 game.

Other high scores at Hortonville included Bonnie Griesbach 211-511; Gerry Bellile 502; Lil Gitter 500; Marsha Griesbach 196; Verna Krueger 194; Joann Schaenzer 191 and Millie Kluge 191.

sectional honors, opens against Kenosha Bradford.

Second-ranked Monroe (17-1), unbeaten against Wisconsin competition, begins its bid for second state title in three seasons by tackling Edgerton at Monroe.

Platteville (18-0), like Monroe a contender for the Janesville sectional berth, seeks a second tournament victory in a regional semifinal with Lancaster.

Rockets, Terrors Tangle

Neenah (17-1), ranked fourth, meets a dangerous Fox Valley Conference team, Appleton, as the Rockets go after the Neenah sectional prize.

Wausau (16 - 2), ranked fifth, meets Merrill, a late-blooming Wisconsin Valley power, as the Lumberjacks begin their drive toward the Wisconsin Rapids Sectional title.

Seventh-ranked Whitefish Bay (17-1), meets Glendale Nicolet in its opener in the Oconomowoc Sectional campaign.

Eighth-ranked Appleton Xavier (21-1), and ninth-ranked Eau Claire Regis (19-3), are competing for the state Catholic title this weekend.

La Crosse Central (16-3), 10th-ranked, seeks its second tournament victory. Central is matched with crosstown rival Logan in a regional semifinal on the road to the La Crosse sectional.

Alma Tests Arkansaw

Alma (19-0), the top - ranked team in the "Little Ten" and the La Crosse Sectional winner a year ago, meets Arkansaw, a team that came within a hair of beating Alma two weeks ago.

Wausaukee (19-0), ranked second among the smaller schools, goes against sixth - ranked Wabeno (17-0), in a game that's destined to trim the list of Wisconsin's unbeaten teams. There are only four.

The winner stands a fairly good chance of going on to take top honors in the weaker than usual Green Bay sectional.

Hillsboro (17-1), third-ranked small power, plays Necedah in a subregional at Wonewoc.

Fourth-ranked Lake Mills (18-1), plays Lodi in a subregional in an Oconomowoc Sectional subregional.

Seventh-ranked South Wayne (18-1), battles Shullsburg in a subregional at Belmont in the Janesville sectional.

Winneconne Hosts North Fondy

Fighth - ranked Winneconne (14-2), play a touch North Fond du Lac team at Winneconne in a Neenah Sectional subregional.

Ninth - ranked Royall (17 - 2) plays Mauston at Mauston in a La Crosse Sectional subregional and 10th-ranked Glidden (18-1), goes against Mellen in a subregional in the Spooner competition.

Seven of the eight teams that made it to Madison last March are still in contention.

The only casualty so far has been Wisconsin Rapids, the 1966 runnerup, a loser to Schofield Tuesday night.

Other teams besides Lincoln, Alma, Grafton, and Neenah, in the Madison field a year ago were Green Bay West, Madison East, and Eau Claire Memorial.

The women's national honor count is the first here since Mrs. Louis (Dolly) Shest bowled a 603 several years ago.

Austrian Pair Battles for Skate Crown

Schwarz, Danzer Top Men's Competition; USA's Allen Fourth

By HANS BENEDICT

VIENNA (AP) — Two Austrian archrivals were set today for a decisive battle for the men's crown at the 1967 World Figure Skating Championships.

Pressed hard by a Canadian-American phalanx, title holder Emmerich Danzer and his inseparable runner-up, Wolfgang Schwarz, took a double-barrelled lead in the compulsory events Thursday to launch them safely into the free skating competition.

Danzer trailed Schwarz by 15.8 points after a somewhat shaky three-day compulsory performance, but was virtually certain to regain his supremacy on the strength of his highly-polished jumps and pirouettes.

Wide Open Race

The race for third, fourth and fifth places were wide open among Canada's Donald Knight and two Americans, Scotty Allen of Smoke Rise, N.J., and Gary Visconti, of Detroit, who emerged from the compulsories in that order.

Allen, at 18 a veteran of three world championships, was 13.4 points ahead of Visconti, but judging from his practice jumps he might find it difficult to retain this position.

The men's free skating follows Britain's 11th world title in the dance, won Thursday night in superb fashion by title holders Diane Towler and Bernard Ford. The London pair displayed a style matched only by their musical taste in a combination of waltz and the haunting tune of Zorba the Greek.

Seattle Couple Second

Second place went to Lorna Dyer and John Darrell of Seattle, Wash., who broke into the British phalanx leaving Yvonne Suddick-Malcolm Cannon in third and Janet Sawbridge-Jon Lane in fourth place.

In the women's division, world champion Peggy Fleming of Colorado Springs, Colo., seemed a sure bet to skate off with her second title in Saturday's free skating, grand finale of the championships.

Miss Fleming's lead from the last compulsories Thursday, totalling 1,223.4 points, can hardly be challenged by second place Valerie Jones of Canada and East Germany's Gabriele Seyfert, the European champion, who had to settle for third after a disappointing compulsory performance.

Dave Laux thundered a 277 game, and Roger Koehn had a 670 series to share honors in the 41 Bowl Classic League Thursday night.

Laux finished one pin behind Koehn in series with a 669 and a host of other top scores were recorded including "Kayo" Kruse 254-654, Jim Green 236-650, Wally Moore 255-653 and Bernie Davis 634.

Both the Hahn's and 41 Bowl teams had high game of 1,073 scratch and three teams went over the 3,000 mark in series with 41 Bowl hitting 3,087. Hahn's had 3,057 and Green's Pharmacy posted 3,051.

In the Grocers League at the 41 Bowl, Bill Matey smacked a 247 game and Pete Schmidt rocked a 669 series. Schmidt had a 244 game, Matey also hit a 244 with the 247 and finished with a 657 series.

The Banta Men's League at Sabre Lanes last night was led by George Korth with a 234 game and 593 series while Denny Laux added a 554 set.

Al Kalkoske had a 612 series and Don Marshall fired a 233 game to share honors in the KCA General Office League at the 41 Bowl Thursday night. Marshall finished with a 553.

Don Boyle powered nine strikes in one game for a 265 count in the Tap-a-Keg League at Sabre Lanes last night. He started with five in a row, then had a split and followed with four more strikes. Earl Heinritz had high series in the loop with a 553.

Black Hawks Whip Bruins

Win Gives Chicago 15-Point Lead Over New York '6'

BOSTON (AP) — The Chicago Black Hawks are winging their way toward the National Hockey League championship and even Coach Billy Reay is confident the club will win the Prince of Wales Trophy for the first time in its history.

"I think it would take some kind of a miracle to beat us out of it now," Reay said Thursday night after the Hawks boosted their lead to 15 points over New York in a 5-2 romp against the Boston Bruins.

"There's tremendous spirit on the club, and no one is going to catch us," Reay said. "They said we collapsed when we were beaten out in past years. However, I don't buy that. The Montreal Canadiens won by beating us in key games. This year we're not losing key games."

5 Players Score

Five players, including Stan Mikita and Bobby Hull, scored as the Hawks followed a 6-1 rout of the Rangers Wednesday night by humbling the Bruins for the sixth straight time in Boston this season.

The Black Hawks were outshot 33-21 by the last-place Bruins, but Chicago goalie Glenn Hall turned in a spectacular performance, grudgingly surrendering a first period goal to Ed Westfall and a tally by Wayne Connelly in the finale.

Mikita, helped by Hull, tied the count 1-1 on a picturesque power play goal in the first period. It was the NHL scoring leader's 30th goal of the campaign and hoisted his point production to 81.

Rookie defenseman Ed Van Impe put the Hawks in front to stay late in the first period. After a scoreless middle session, Chico Maki, Dennis Hull and Bobby Hull struck in the third period.

Bobby Hull, assisted by Mikita, continued his bid for another 50-goal season with his 44th

Pellman Drops Bundle

Promoter Not Discouraged Over Poor 'Take' at Bouts

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Not only is John Pellmann not discouraged by poor gate receipts at this week's National Golden Gloves tourney, he plans to continue sponsoring the state boxing competition and has an eye on the 1968 Olympics.

Pellmann, a Milwaukee businessman and president of Golden Gloves Inc., said Thursday he "dropped a bundle" on his group's sponsorship of the amateur affair in Milwaukee.

"But I'm going ahead with plans to bring back the regional and state tourney in 1968," he said. "Furthermore, I may take a bid for the United States Olympic trials in 1968."

Pellman said the gross gate take for state Golden Gloves competition, about $30,000

"Anyone who knows what it takes to promote two tournaments such as these also knows that the take won't come close to meeting the nut," he said.

He also gets revenue for national television broadcasts of the fights, but he said the sum is uncertain.

The turnout for the bouts, he said, was disappointing, "but I still feel amateur boxing is worth the effort."

Goukas Stars As 76ers Top San Francisco

Celtics Remain 6½ Games Out of Lead After Beating Bulls

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Anytime the Boston Celtics and the Philadelphia 76ers are on the same court, even in a doubleheader, all eyes usually are on Boston's Bill Russell and the 76ers Wilt Chamberlain.

But Thursday, the night really belonged to Matt Guokas, the 76ers' 20-year-old rookie who helped boost the National Basketball Association leaders to another victory.

Guokas played 20 minutes in the game between Philadelphia and San Francisco, made 5-8 from the field, and 4-6 on the foul line and had five assists, as the 76ers downed the Warriors, 136-128.

In the first half of the doubleheader, the Boston Celtics survived a late comeback by the Chicago Bulls for a 114-108 victory which kept Boston 6½ games behind Philadelphia.

Reserve Till Now

Guokas, who was drafted first by the 76ers and left St. Joseph's College after his junior year, has been on the bench most of the season.

Lately, Guokas has shown more aggressiveness in his play. Wally Jones, who has had foul troubles in recent games, fouled out as the third quarter ended Guokas came in and played the whole fourth quarter and helped to spark the 76ers' victory.

Guokas' spark spread to his teammates in the fourth quarter and that turned the tide. The 76ers outscored the Warriors 18-2 in a four minute period to run off with the game.

Barry Hits 37

Earlier, Rick Barry, who was sidelined most of the first half by foul trouble, scored 21 of his game-leading 37 points in the third period to pace the Warriors to a 102-95 lead.

Chamberlain scored 24 and grabbed 38 rebounds for the 76ers.

In the first game, the Celtics blew all but 4 points of their 20-point lead, but came out of danger with a series of last minute free throws. Boston led 97-77 at the end of the third quarter, and coach Bill Russell began calling in substitutes. But the Bulls began pecking away at the lead until with less than three minutes remaining they had narrowed the margin to 4.

However, the Celtics gathered six free throws and a field goal by Sam Jones to insure their victory.

Buford, Stroud, Williams Bid for Leadoff Spot

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—Manager Eddie Stanky of the Chicago White Sox nominated three candidates Thursday for the leadoff spot in his lineup.

They included third baseman Don Buford and two rookie outfield hopefuls, Ed Stroud and Walter (No-Neck) Williams.

"I want a leadoff man who can get on base at least 250 times," Stanky said as the Sox cavorted in their second day of full scale drills.

Buford, who led off frequently for the Sox last season, was on base 217 times on walks and hits. Both playing in the Pacific Coast League, Stroud got on base 240 times for Indianapolis and Williams 234 times for Tulsa.

TAOS, N.M. — It's no place for the faint-hearted. Nor the beginner or intermediate skier.

Taos Ski Valley stands tall — more than two miles high. It has to. It's located in the sand and sun state of New Mexico and few outsiders would believe the "Land of Enchantment" also comes complete with Rockies and snow.

The top of Rubezahl stands at 11,600 feet above sea level. The run drops 2,400 feet along its seven-mile combination of bowls, catwalks and trails.

Other runs drop faster. Many skiers do too.

Of the 28 runs which wind and race through the firs, only a handful are safe for semi-skilled skiers. The bunny hill would be classied intermediate in the Midwest.

Resort Manager Ernie Blake likes it that way. Taos is only 10 years old and already it has a world-wide reputation as a real challenger. Expert ski bums flock to the resort. But not for apres ski. A couple of terrifying runs in the most rarified air in the country and few skiers have any strength or breath to break out in song around the fireplaces in the five cabins at the base.

One run, White Feather, drops 2,000 feet in 3½ miles. It's considered one of the easiest on the mountain. It is, if you can keep your equilibrium down the chutes and along the narrow catwalks.

Snake Dance drops 1,800 feet in a little more than a mile. Others are even steeper. The most expert skiers feel a need to dig their toes into the crust at the top before descending slopes of better than 40 degrees.

Taos isn't touristy. Not a sign nor a person greets you as you land on the dirt runway, located at the edge of Ttaos. The desert stretches up the elevated valley from Sante Fe. But beyond the sand and sagebrush, white peaks glisten in the distance.

The historic village of Taos is populated by writers, such as D. H. Lawrence, and artists — the latest count of legitimate painters and sculptors is 135.

The ski valley is populated by foreign accents. A touch of French seems to go a long way. And not an American meal on the menu.

But to get to the slopes is another story. For VIP's, Blake might come down the mountain. Others have to hail the town's lone taxi for the 18-mile trip uphill. And wait a couple of hours if the Volkswagon is at the wrong end of the line.

Taos Ski Valley can teach Midwesterners a few things. The meaning of fear is one of them.

However, Upper Michigan hills can teach Taos a few things. One is friendliness. Another is snow.

A good year at Taos calls for about 200 inches of snow. But this year, if the sunny, dry air continues, the depth won't reach half that much. Both Powderhorn and Indianhead have already had 16 feet of snow. At least another 6 to 10 feet can be expected.

The warning which is usually given to Midwesterners who ski in the Rockies is: careful with the deep powder. No one says: watch out for the stumps.

Blancas Leads Doral Tourney

Fires Record-Tying Six-Under-Par for One-Stroke Margin

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Homero Blancas, a fun-loving Latin who has dramatic ups and downs on the golf trail, led the $100,000 Doral Open into today's second round with a record-tying six-under-par 65, but plenty of people were breathing down his neck.

Joe Goldstrand, who used to play on the University of Houston golf team, and Tommy Aaron, a seven-year pro still looking for his first tournament victory stood just one stroke back.

And, even more formidable in Blancas' immediate future, Arnold Palmer lurked just two strokes back and Jack Nicklaus, bunched with seven others at 68, was in quick striking position.

Early Spotlight

Blancas and Goldstrand grabbed the early spotlight in the opening days's play Thursday as they chopped up the 7,002-yard Doral Blue Monster course with apparent ease.

Collecting six birdies, the 28-year-old Blancas posted a score that has been equalled only by Doug Sanders in 1965 and Kermit Zarley last year.

Blancas, Rookie of the Year in 1965, looked like he was well in the clear until Goldstrand, who isn't even listed in the PGA player catalog, came winging home with a 66.

Then Aaron, former University of Florida star, matched Goldstrand's score and a battle royal was on.

Nicklaus was tied with George Archer, Bob Goalby, Bert Greene, Harold Henning, Doug Sanders and Tom Weiskopf at 68.

MSU Favored In Big Ten's Track Meet

UW to be Host; Long Jump Final Slated Tonight

MADISON (AP) — Michigan State is expected to lead a record-shattering display en route to its second straight team title in the 57th Big Ten Indoor Track Championships today and Saturday.

During preliminaries tonight in Wisconsin's Camp Randall Memorial Building, one final will be held—the long jump. Best effort of the season in this event is 23 feet 3¾ inches by Ohio State's Ralph Marinello.

The finals Saturday afternoon should produce some of the finest Big Ten performances in years, with at least seven meet records in the balance and MSU battling the strong bids of Wisconsin, Iowa and Michigan.

These three finished in that order behind the Spartans last year.

The four schools have monopolized the championship since 1958 when Illinois broke through for the crown.

Individual champions return in 10 of 14 events and two of them, Michigan State's Gene Washington and Dick Sharkey, are in a starring group of performers who have bettered records this season.

Whipple Defends Title

Other defending champions are Wisconsin's Steve Whipple in the 440 and Ken Latigolal, 880; Iowa's Mike Mondane, 600, and Larry Wieczorek, mile; Michigan's Jim Mercer, 1000, and Jack Harvey, shot put, and Minnesota's Tom Stuart, high jump.

Washington is the ruler in both hurdles.

Sharkey is set to compete in both the mile and two mile. He has a 4:05.1 in the century against the record of 4:09.4. Wieczorek has bettered the mark three times with a best of 4:05.6. Wisconsin's Ray Arrington has 4:06.8.

The 880 record of 1:51.8 has been bettered by Wisconsin's Arrington in 1:50.3 and the Spartans' John Spain in 1:51.1.

Select Wooden Coach of Year

Princeton Mentor Comes in Second In AP Balloting

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Wooden of the unbeaten and top-ranked UCLA Bruins was named the college basketball Coach of the Year by The Associated Press today.

The 56-year-old Wooden, whose UCLA teams have won 99 and lost only 10 in their last 109 games, is favored to lead his boys to the national championship this year for the third time in four seasons.

The Man from Indiana or the Wizard of Westwood, as the native of Martinsville, Ind. is sometimes called, beat out Bill van Breda Kolff, of Princeton, to win the first Coach of the Year poll held by The Associated Press.

Wooden received 75 votes to 59 for van Breda Kolff in balloting by 277 sports writers and broadcasters.

Dean Smith of North Carolina was third in the voting with 26. Bernard (Peck) Hickman of Louisville was fourth with 17 and Ray Mears of Tennessee fifth with 12.

Roy Skinner of Vanderbilt, Johnny Oldham of Western Kentucky and Ralph Miller of Iowa each received nine votes. Rounding out the first 10 were Bob Nichols of Toledo and Jack Hartman of Southern Illinois who tied with eight.

Larry Glass of Northwestern, with six votes, and Bob Cousy of Boston College, with five, headed an additional list of 20 coaches who received one or more votes.

John Benington of Michigan State and Moe Iba, of Memphis State, each got four votes. Guy Lewis of Houston, Don Haskins of Texas Western, Joe Swank of Tulsa and Lou Henson of New Mexico State tied at three each. Lou Watson of Indiana and Vic Bubas of Duke each got two.

Mets Will Try Boyer at First

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Veteran Ken Boyer will start working out at first base, Manager Wes Westrum of the New York Mets said Thursday. All the regular third baseman needs is a right-handed first baseman's glove.

None could be found in the Mets' training camp and Westrum said one would have to be purchased. The manager added he hoped to use Boyer as an occasional replacement for regular first baseman, Ed Kranepool. The latter throws left-handed.

Buckingham Sets U. S. Swim Record

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Stanford's Greg Buckingham broke his own American record in the 500-meter freestyle Thursday night in the Pacific-8 swimming championships at the University of Oregon.

Buckingham swam the event in 4:42.3 in the final, easily defeating Mike Burton of UCLA who was five seconds back. Buckingham broke his own record of 4:42.5 set earlier this year.

Reed Reportedly Asks 2-Year Suspensions for 14 Athletes

CHICAGO (AP) — The father of a University of Illinois basketball player accused of receiving payments from an illegal slush fund told the Chicago Tribune Thursday night that Big Ten Commissioner Bill Reed has recommended two-year suspensions for all 14 Illini athletes involved.

Felix Kuberski of Moline, Ill., whose son, Steve, a sophomore, was one of the athletes, said:

"Reed came out with a recommendation of suspension for two years, Steve told me. I thought that was too harsh. For Steve, that would take him into his senior year."

Kuberski and his wife apeared before the Big Ten faculty representatives hearing the Illini slush fund case.

Kuberski told the Tribune further about his son's involment.

"Steve was authorized by the Illinois coaches to do it (take the money). We were told the money came from a sponsor in Moline....that he got it for working in a Moline plant on semester and holiday breaks.

"That money went from Moline to the slush fund. We thought the money was coming from the place he worked. If we had known it was from the slush fund, Steve never would have gone to Illinois in the first place."

season, failed to make either the top team or the second quint this time. Handicapped somewhat by a football injury, Anderson failed to regain his 1965-6 form.

Diener and Gutzman, the only other "player of the year" nominee, moved up from last season's second team.

Diener, who owns the new FRVC career record (856 points), posted the league's scoring average — 24.5 points— this season. Diener was second in total points to Fischer (380 to 367), but he played in one less game.

Fischer set an "asterisk" 1-season scoring record. He totaled 380 points in 16 games, compared to the 367 East's Pat Harrington accumulated in 14 games in 1963-4.

Some question existed about the "proper" position for Fischer, since he was a combination guard-forward in most games for South. He was nominated as a guard and voted upon in that category.

Gutzman, probably the circuit's top clutch player this season, finished fifth in over-all scoring, with a 300-point total. Weber, a non-letterman, came on strong for Oshkosh to finish fourth in league scoring, with 309 points.

Donarski finished seventh in FRVC scoring, with 261 points. Hoffman, a top all-around player, led AHS this season and finished 11th in league scoring, with 217 points.

Hotz, who placed third in league scoring (with 333 points) led the second team voting, with seven points — on the basis of two for a first-team vote and one for second.

Indiana Leads Big 10 Swimming Meet; Wisconsin Sixth

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)— Indiana remained the favorite today in the Big Ten Swimming championships. Wisconsin was sixth after Thursday's action.

Team scores moving into today's competition were Indiana 139 points, Michigan 94, Michigan State 90, Ohio State 55, Minnesota 44, Wisconsin 43, Illinois 34, Purdue 24, Northwestern 13, Iowa 10.

Julian Krug of Wisconsin was seventh in the one-meter springboard diving competition Thursday, teammate Gill La Croix was ninth in the 200-yard individual medley, and Wisconsin's Fred Hogan was third in the 50-yard freestyle.

In the 400-yard medley relay, Wisconsin was fifth.

Kondla Leads Big 10 Scoring

CHICAGO (AP) — Minnesota may not be going anywhere in the Big Ten basketball title struggle but its Tom Kondla has taken over the scoring lead and will be a marked man against Northwestern Saturday.

Kondla, according to official conference statistics, has ballooned his average to 27.9 by averaging 33.3 points in his last eight games in a bid to become the Gophers' first league scoring champion in 50 years.

Minnesota has won four of 12 games and could jolt Northwestern's hopes for at least a share of the title with victory on the Wildcats' floor Saturday night. The Cats are tied with Michigan State for second place, each with 7-4, while Indiana leads with 8-3. All three teams have three games remaining.

Indiana, Illinois Battle

In the only other game Saturday night, Ohio State (5-7) is at Iowa (6-5). In the afternoon, Indiana is at Illinois (5-6) in what could be a key game of the race: Purdue (6-5) at Michigan State (7-4) and Michigan (2-9) at Wisconsin (6-5) on television.

Iowa's Sam Williams, who has led the scoring race virtually all season, dropped to second with 25.7, followed by Jim Dawson of Illinois with 25.6; Bill Hosket, Ohio State, 23.0; Jim Burns, Northwestern, and Craig Dill, Michigan, each 21.1; Chuck Nagle, Wisconsin, 20.5; Dave Scholz, Illinois, 20.0; Butch Joyner, Indiana, 19.7, and Gerry Jones, Iowa, 18.6.

Top Marks

Other individual leaders:

Field goal average — Hosket .556 and Joyner .519; free throw average — Mike Weaver, Northwestern, .842, and Tom Chapman, Iowa, .840; rebound average — Joe Franklin, Wisconsin, 13.4, and Hosket 13.2.

Team leaders:

Offense average — Northwestern 91.7 and Illinois 87.6; defense average — MSU 72.6 and Ohio State 78.8; rebound average—Northwestern 49.4 and Indiana 44.2; field goal average— Purdue .472 and Iowa .457; free throw average—Iowa .758 and Northwestern .729.

If the price-earnings ratio of the company in which you own stock is 7, what does this suggest about its prospects — and your prospects — for future profits?

What key clues to the financial health of a company can you get from its annual report?

Sylvia Porter

Here, following up on yesterday's column, is a glossary of the major items found in today's typical annual report, prepared with the help of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith — and brief guidelines on how to interpret them:

1) The President's Letter to Stockholders is the first place to look for a summary of your company's financial highlights for 1966, plus the reasons why profits were up or down. This letter or the subsequent text also should give you the company's own assessment of its long-term outlook, with supporting facts.

Income Statement

2) The "Income Statement" or "Earnings Report" is a summary of 1966 sales volume, other income, costs, profits or losses with comparative figures for 1965. The initial figure is the company's net income or net profit and this figure should be compared to profits over the previous 5 or 10 years (usually summarized separately).

prime indicator of your company's efficiency and you can figure it by dividing total net profit by total net sales. This ratio today may range from 1 per cent to 30 per cent or more, so you must compare 1966's record against the record for previous years, and against the performance of other companies in its industry.

4) The Price-Earnings Ratio is a measure of how the overall investment community views your company. The ratio won't appear in an annual report, but you can calculate it by dividing the current market price of a share of your stock by the company's 1966 per-share earnings noted in the earnings report. The average price-earnings ratio today for the 30 stocks in the Dow-Jones Industrial average is about 15. A ratio well below this figure may reflect investor wariness of the future profit potential of the company and-or the industry.

5) The "Retained Earnings Statement" tells you what share of company profits are being returned to you as dividends and what share is being held back. If the proportion going to you in dividends declines sharply, look for an explanation of how the extra funds are being reinvested.

Assets, Liabilities

6) The Ratio of Current Assets to Current Liabilities tells you how much of a financial cushion your company would have left it if paid off all the current debts. As a very rough rule of thumb, many industrial coprorations maintain twice as large a volume of current assets as the volume of current liabilities.

7) The "Debt to Equity Ratio" (or "leverage factor") is a measure of the amount of long term debt your company is carrying in relation to stockholders' investment. This ratio is figured by adding total stockholders' equity. Normally, this ratio is above 50 per cent for manufacturing companies.

8) Footnotes often reveal important information. A footnote, for instance, might tell you that an unusually high profit stemmed from a one-shot ("non-recurring") financial windfall. It may be tedious, but you should read the footnotes.

If the annual report you receive does not contain at least these basic items of information, or the facts from which to calculate them yourself, ask your stock broker for further details. He also can provide you with the industry-wide record. This is the minimum you should know about the company and the industry in which you are investing your savings.

Backing Given to Plan For Filming of Tipsy Drivers

Manitowoc County Dist. Atty. Robert E. Koutnik has given "moral support" to proponents of a plan whereby suspected tipsy drivers in Outagamie County would have their actions recorded on film.

Koutnik, in reply to a letter from A. W. Ponath, Outagamie County corporation counsel, stated in a letter read Thursday by the members of the county board's law enforcement committee, that he believes the taking and showing of movies to defense attorneys has resulted in a greater number of guilty pleas in tipsy driving cases in Manitowoc County.

Admitted in Court

The Manitowoc County prosecutor said he believed movie cameras can be admitted in court on the same basis as photographs and tape recordings.

"You have to, of course, qualify the person who is taking the pictures, show that the equipment is in good working condition, and identify the movie as accurately representing the scene or individual shown therein," Koutnik said.

Some members of the law enforcement committee and Ponath have been pushing for purchase of movie equipment to film tipsy drivers. The law enforcement committee was to have traveled to Manitowoc Thursday to view the sheriff's department movie program, but plans were changed earlier this week.

Cheese Summary

MADISON (AP) — The Wisconsin cheddar cheese market was steady this week with demand that was fair to good, the agricultural Marketing Service reported today. Supplies ranged ample to more than ample.

American cheese production in the nation for the week ending Feb. 23 was estimated at 24,250,000 pounds. This was a 2 per cent increase from the previous week and 21 per cent more than in the same week a year ago.

Wisconsin Swiss cheese prices were unchanged. The market was steady on top grades and unsettled on lower grades. Production is down seasonally with supplies of grades A and B limited and grades C and D plentiful. Buying interest was slow to fair.

Prisoners in Saigon Accuse Judges of Attempting Bribery

Lodge Vows All Possible Care For U. S. Quartet on Hunger Strike

By JOHN CANTWELL

SAIGON (AP) — Four Americans on a prison hunger strike charged today that a South Vietnamese court falsely convicted three of them after they refused to pay a $10,000 bribe and the U.S Embassy "threw us to the wolves."

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge wrote two of the men that his government "will leave no stone unturned as regards your health and general welfare." He denied the prisoners' claim that the embassy had ignored them, saying consular officials had visited them frequently in prison.

Lodge also warned them that continuation of their fast could injure their health and "also delay your release from prison."

The Americans spoke to newsmen who were taken through suburban Chi Hoa Prison by the South Vietnamese justice minister, Tran Minh Tiet.

Three of the men — Paul Lee Bennett, 37, of Apopka, Fla., Bernard Elman, 33, of 142-30 Sanford Ave., Flushing, N.Y., and Merle Brown, 29, of 528 Park Blvd., Worthington, Ohio — were sentenced to five years in jail last December by a special Vietnamese military court for black market cases.

The fourth, William K Char, 35, of 1130 Lunalillo St., Honolulu, was arrested in December and is awaiting trial on a currency charge. All four worked for American construction firms.

After 24 days of fasting the four men looked weak and thin and were unshaven Elman appeared to be the weakest. Char was hospitalized a week ago but was returned to his cell when his condition improved.

$20,000 Asked

Bennett said a Vietnamese lawyer named Truong Dinh Dzu told them before their trials that for $20,000 he could get them acquitted. After the men said they could not pay. Bennett said the lawyer reduced the amount to $10,000, but the Americans still could not raise the money. Bennett said Dzu told them the money would be paid to the three judges and three prosecutors.

Bennett said U.S. Embassy officials were told of the bribe offer but did not act. Elman said the U.S. officials actually were a hindrance — "they threw us to the wolves."

Elman claimed he and the others had committed no crime and "as far as we can see, we are in here for nothing."

Investigate Charges

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said he had not seen the Americans' charges and declined to comment. Justice Minister Tiet said the Vietnamese government was investigating the charges on orders from Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, but "so far there is no definite proof that members of the special court had anything to do with bribery."

He added that it should be remembered the bribery charges were made by convicted criminals

The men have been on a hunger strike since Feb 8, protesting that the sentences by the military court were too severe. They say they should have been tried by a civilian court. Five years is the special court's minimum sentence and there is no appeal.

Although Pinned Between two of three cars involved in a collision in Montgomery, Ala., Alfred Hooe was not seriously injured. An occupant of another of the cars involved, however, was killed. (AP Wirephoto)

Garrison Calls 'Clay Bertrand' Clay Shaw's Alias During Plotting

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — French Quarter residence, said Clay Bertrand evolved today as the mystery man in Dist. Atty. James Garrison's probe of the Kennedy assassination.

Clay Bertrand, says Garrison, was an alias used by Clay Shaw, the prominent New Orleans resident the district attorney arrested and booked on conspiracy to commit murder.

"I have never used the name 'Clay Bertrand' in my life. I never use it. I never heard of it," said Shaw, free on $10,000 bond, at a 10-minute news conference Thursday.

Clay Bertrand "is mostly a voice on the phone," said attorney Dean Andrews Jr., an attorney and a Warren commission witness summoned to Garrison's office Thursday.

Allege Combination

Garrison's office, in applying for a warrant to search Shaw's in an affidavit that at meetings held in September 1963 "there was an agreement and combination among Clay Shaw (alias Clay Bertrand), Lee Harvey Oswald, and David W. Ferrie and others to kill John F. Kennedy."

The document says the evidence about the meetings came from an unnamed informant, whose statements were corroborated while he was under the influence of sodium pentothal, or truth serum.

Ruby Tie

Oswald, a New Orleans native who was in this city from late April 1963 until Sept. 25, 1963, was named as the assassin of President Kennedy by the Warren commission, which said "the possibility of others being involved with either Oswald or (Jack) Ruby cannot be established categorically, but if there is any such evidence it has been beyond the reach of all the investigative agencies and resources of the United States and has not come to the attention of this commission."

Ferrie, a pilot and part-time investigator, died last week while under investigation by Garrison's office. Coroner Nicholas Chetta says Ferrie's death was due to natural causes. Garrison said it was suicide.

Garrison isn't telling what he knows about Clay Bertrand. The last public appearance by the district attorney was Wednesday night, shortly after the dramatic announcement of the arrest of Shaw. He said Shaw "will be charged with participation in a conspiracy to murder John F. Kennedy."

Shaw, a decorated Army officer in World War II who retired Oct. 1, 1965 after 18 years as managing director of the International Trade Mart here, calmly called his arrest "fantastic" at his news conference.

Earlier in the day, Ramsey Clark, the new U.S. attorney general, said the FBI had investigated Shaw late in 1963 and cleared him of any link with the assassination.

House Gives Nod to Military Provision Bill

Proposal to Ban Bombing Over North Soundly Defeated

By JACK MILLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has rejected an anti-bombing declaration and voted $4.5 billion to finance Vietnam fighting.

After a sometimes fiery 4½-hour debate the House approved by voice vote Thursday the military authorization bill asked by President Johnson. The Senate passed a similar measure Wednesday.

Minutes before the showdown vote, the House defeated 372 to 18 an amendment by Rep. George E. Brown Jr., D-Calif., that would have banned use of the funds to finance military activities "in or over" North Vietnam.

A Senate-House conference committee will hammer out minor differences in the versions of the money measure.

Clark Approved

While House debate swirled around Vietnam, the Senate unanimously approved the nomination of Ramsey Clark as attorney general and argued the merits of a pending congressional reorganization measure

Elsewhere in the capital, the President's Social Security proposals drew Republican fire at a House Ways and Means Committee hearing. And a number of senators expressed pleasure at Johnson's announcement that Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin has agreed to talks on ways to curb the U S-Soviet nuclear arms race.

Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., of the House Armed Services Committee led opposition to the amendment banning use of the $4.5 billion for bombing North Vietnam.

Other Issues

Rivers said regardless of any other issues, "our flesh and blood are in Vietnam, and they need weapons."

A critic of the bombing, Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn., asked Rivers if political aspects of the Vietnam conflict weren't equally as important as military aspects.

Rivers, who recently recommended that Hanoi be leveled by bombing, agreed and said: "I don't think that guns and tanks and planes win wars. You've got to have love in the hearts of people."

Powell Libel Debt Slashed to $56,000

Attorneys Favor Also Appealing Congressman's Expulsion in Court

NEW YORK (AP) — One of Adam Clayton Powell's attorneys said today he thinks federal court action should be taken in efforts to get the Harlem congressman seated in the House.

Attorneys planned to meet with Powell soon to decide on how to fight his exclusion from the House.

"Court action would straighten out the whole matter on whether he had a right to his seat," said Henry Williams, an attorney.

Williams won an appeal Thursday for Powell in the Court of Appeals, New York State's highest court. The state court reduced damages against Powell by $100,000 and gave him a new opportunity to wipe out the remaining $56,000 of his libel debt stemming from a seven-year-old suit by a Harlem widow.

Start of Troubles

It was this legal battle which led in part to Powell's troubles in Congress. The verdict virtually frees Powell from the prospect of being jailed in New York on contempt charges.

"We haven't decided whether we're going into court next week or the week after," said Williams, referring to Powell's congressional troubles. "As I understand the matter, some of the attorneys will confer with Mr. Powell either this week or next week in Bimini (Bahamas), or someplace else in the United States. We haven't finalized any particular course of action. There are various alternatives."

Reached in Washington by telephone, Jean Camper Cahn, an attorney who is coordinator of Powell's legal team, said: "I don't believe in speculating on a course of action until we talk with our client. I think it is a dangerous thing. We will lay every possibility before him and wait and see what he wants. It is his decision, not mine."

Meet in Bimini

Mrs. Cahn said the meeting between the attorneys and Powell probably would be in Bimini, where Powell is relaxing.

Both Williams and Mrs. Cahn said that one alternative would be to take no immediate legal action but simply to let Powell win re-election in the 18th District in Harlem and then let Congress figure out what to do.

Asked if Powell would run again, Williams said, "I think, yes, he would run."

Powell would be almost certain to win re-election. Harlem Negroes were angered by his exclusion from the House. Powell was re-elected last November with 74 per cent of the district's total vote, even though he was unable to campaign in New York because of contempt of court citations stemming from his libel debt which made him subject to arrest if he came to the city.

But Williams said he favored taking federal court action in New York City because even if Powell won re-election, Congress could again exclude him.

There were these other developments in New York Thursday:

— Protest plans were proposed in Harlem ranging from a rally Sunday at Powell's Abyssinian Baptist Church, where he preaches, to Negroes not paying their taxes

— The Manhattan Republican party said it planned an "intensive" campaign against Powell, a Democrat, if he runs for Congress in a special election. One source said party leaders would try to persuade Lionel Hampton, a Negro musician, to run against Powell.

— Formal notification that the seat is vacant was sent by House Speaker John W. McCormack to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller by registered mail. Rockefeller was expected to announce soon the date of a special election. The election cannot be held less than 30 days, or more than 40 days, after the governor's announcement.

Hoffa Seeks 3 Week Reprieve

Bulletin

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A federal judge today denied a request for Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa to be allowed additional time to get his affairs in order befor eentering prison

U.S. Dist. Court Judge Frank W. Wilson issued a memorandum saying Hoffa did not give sufficient cause to delay his commitment to prison March 7

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A federal judge decides today if James R. Hoffa, Teamsters Union president, will be allowed three additional weeks to get his affairs in order before entering prison.

Hoffa, scheduled to report here Tuesday morning to begin an eight-year sentence for jury tampering, is seeking a delay until April 1 — the day after the Teamsters' contract with the 11,000-member national trucking industry expires

U.S. Dist Judge Frank W. Wilson said Thursday night that he would rule today on Hoffa's request for more time

At an informal hearing Thursday, attorneys for Hoffa said he needed "at least two weeks" to transfer union leadership to Frank E Fitzsimmons of Detroit, Hoffa's hand-picked successor.

Trucking Negotiations

At the same time, they said, Hoffa's presence at contract talks with the trucking industry would serve to spur negotiations to a successful conclusion.

However, a Teamsters spokesman said in Washington that trucking industry negotiators had refused to resume talks until Tuesday, the day Judge Wilson has ordered Hoffa, 54, to report here to begin his sentence.

Trucking Employers Inc., whose member firms employ most of the 500,000 workers involved, had no comment on the union accusation.

In St. Louis, a Teamster spokesman said Hoffa had named Harold J. Gibbons director of the central conference of Teamsters to serve while Hoffa is imprisoned.

Hoffa and three others were convicted here three years ago Saturday of seeking to influence jurors during Hoffa's 1962 conspiracy trial in Nashville He has been free on $75,000 bond during numerous appeals.

Continuance Denied

But Wednesday, Judge Wilson ordered an end to Hoffa's freedom by denying a continuance of his bond while he pursues three new trial motions — one in U.S. District Court here and two on appeal to the U.S. 6th Circuit in Cincinnati.

The request for more time was presented by P D Maktos, counsel for Hoffa, and by David Previant, general counsel for the Teamsters Union.

They were supported by two trucking industry representatives who maintained the current contract negotiations could be brought to a more successful conclusion if Hoffa were present at bargaining sessions.

Maktos said Hoffa's intervention halted wildcat Teamsters strikes across the nation after the Supreme Court turned down his appeal last Dec. 12.

Theolore G. Gilinski, a Justice Department attorney, claimed that no date for beginning the sentence would satisfy Hoffa and "any extension would only add to the problems."

Hoffa also named Gibbons, of St. Louis, to head the Teamsters' national warehouse division, national airlines division, national paper division and national professional sports division.

Gibbons also is to handle any special assignments given by Fitzsimmons.

Monkey Shines End Harmlessly

LONDON (AP) — Bimbo, a balky monkey, has been captured without bloodshed after six months on the loose in a freight warehouse at London Airport, casually evading nets, drugs and a hired gunman.

Officials of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said Bimbo finally was grabbed and caged Thursday night, quite unharmed.

A female rhesus now three feet tall, Bimbo escaped from a shipment of 100 monkeys passing through London from India en route to a New York research center.

A spokesman for the RESPCA said she may be taken to a zoo.

Indian Rebels Derail Military Pilot Train

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Rebel Naga tribesmen derailed a military pilot train in the Assam Hills by blowing up a section of track Thursday. They then opened fire on soldiers in the train, killing one and wounding five.

The train was acting as a vanguard for the Assam mail due to travel the line later.

CIA Unhappy With Publicity Showered On Spy Activities

Top Secret Intelligence Agency Has Multi-Million Dollar Budget

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the furor over Central Intelligence Agency handouts to students, no one is questioning the CIA's legal authority to spend large amounts of the taxpayers' money in secret.

The 1949 Central Intelligence Agency Act says the CIA director may spend money "without regard to the provisions of law and regulations relating to the expenditure of government funds." He can do this on a voucher certified by him alone.

Nor does CIA have to report to Congress or to any federal department. It is an independent agency responsible to the President. It does give some information about its activities to a designated group of Congress members.

Must be Quiet

The secrecy laid down by law and practiced by the CIA is in the tradition of the spy business: for espionage to succeed, it must be kept quiet.

Thus the spreading disclosures about CIA payments are not to CIA's liking. And the publicity in each case means that even without the presidentially ordered investigation, CIA would probably want to end that operation.

In historical perspective, CIA is the postwar embodiment of government intelligence activities that date back to the earliest days of the Republic.

The main U.S. intelligence work was, until World War II, carried on by the armed services and by the State Department. The first four CIA directors after the war were admirals or generals.

Huge Business

But during the war, intelligence mushroomed into a huge and complicated business. New cloak and dagger outfits sprang up, most notably the Office of Strategic Services.

With the end of the hot war and the beginning of the cold, the intelligence functions outside of those that were strictly military were lumped in 1947 into a new agency, the CIA.

Today CIA is one of the federal government's biggest operations. Because of the secrecy, few people know just how large it is. Its subsidies for overseas student activities are only a fraction of the total.

By general acknowledgment CIA's annual budget runs into hundreds of millions of dollars, most of it hidden in the multibillion-dollar appropriations Congress votes for defense.

It probably employs several thousand persons, though here again the numbers are secret. The CIA law provides for secrecy on "titles, salaries, or numbers of personnel employed by the agency."

Public Roads

CIA's headquarters in nearby Langley, Va., is one of the largest modern government buildings. It is identified from the adjacent highway only by a sign saying "BPR"—for "Bureau of Public Roads."

Proportionately, only a small percentage of CIA men are overseas in spy roles—although there is probably hardly a country around the world without some sort of CIA presence.

Many personnel are at work on such projects as research on foreign economic and scientific developments, monitoring and analyzing foreign propaganda broadcasts, compiling data on foreign political personalities and organizations.

For instance, CIA runs what it believed to be the world's single most comprehensive system of information storage and retrieval. It has translation computers that can convert Russian texts into English at 30,000 words an hour. Its global radio listening service relays important foreign broadcasts to Washington almost instantaneously.

Small Operation

Against this broad range of intelligence gathering, the recently disclosed CIA subsidies to student and other private groups have been a relatively small operation undertaken in the first instance at White House orders—not on CIA initiative.

There is some indication that former President Harry S Truman opposed CIA getting into actions to achieve political goals, as distinguished from merely collecting intelligence.

Writing in 1963, the year after the CIA-linked Bay of Pigs fiasco, Truman, who was president when the CIA was created said:

"I never had any thought that when I set up the CIA that it would be injected into peacetime cloak and dagger operations. Some of the complications and embarrassment that I think we have experienced are in part attributable to the fact that this quiet intelligence arm of the President has been so removed from its intended role that it is being interpreted as a symbol of sinister and mysterious foreign intrigue—and a subject for cold war enemy propaganda.

Original Role

"I, therefore, would like to see the CIA be restored to its original assignment as the intelligence arm of the President, and whatever else it can properly perform in that special field—and that its operational duties be terminated or properly used elsewhere."

The White House now says, however, that CIA support of American private organizations was started by the Truman administration under policies set by the National Security Council in 1952 and continued thereafter.

The National Security Council, composed of the top federal government officials with foreign affairs-defense responsibilities, is the President's senior advisory body in this field.

Subsidies to the National Students Association began at a time when government officials and some internationally minded students were concerned about the global Communist campaign to take over nongovernment international groups and use them for the Kremlin's ends.

Propagana Charges

Some American students willing to travel to international meetings to contest the well-financed Red delegations lacked funds. Government officials decided the money for the overseas U.S. student activities should be paid secretly, so as to avoid opening the Americans to propaganda charges of being government agents. Hence the job went to CIA.

This is the official version. Another reason for CIA involvement, according to some who recall the circumstances 15 years ago, was the uproar over the communism in government charges by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R-Wis.

American collegians then as now tended to criticize U.S. foreign policy, and some were far left by McCarthy's standards. Open government subsidies of students who strayed from official policy could have come under McCarthy's attack. CIA's secret payments were hidden from him.

Criticize Policy

The National Student Association and some other groups getting CIA aid have, in fact, taken some positions critical of U.S. policy. Defenders of the subsidies say, however, that the students did a highly effective job overseas when they found the anti-Yankee drive led not by "liberals," but by hard-core Reds.

A variety of undercover methods of payments have been developed by the CIA. Foundations, trusts and special funds have been pipelines for CIA payments to nongovernment organizations.

One version works this way: Foundation X is set up under control of a person working for or trusted by CIA. The CIA becomes an anonymous donor to Foundation X, which in turn gives directly to private organization Y or gives indirectly through some other group which makes donations.

Sources Concealed

This way the sources of the funds are concealed and the number of persons knowing about it can be kept to a minimum. In some cases even the officers of the private organizations were unaware, they said, that money their organizations received really came from the CIA. Rank-and-file members of the organizations generally knew nothing about it.

Calls for closer supervision of the CIA have erupted again in the wake of the latest disclosures, but it remains to be seen whether they will have much effect.

Last July the Senate—after a rare secret debate—voted 61 to 28 against a move to widen the select panel of seven Armed Services and Appropriations Committee members which had been privy to CIA matters. However, the chairman of the group, Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., broadened the membership last month to include three Foreign Relations Committee members.

Within the executive branch, the CIA is supposed to be supervised by the National Security Council and by the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board. Its budget comes in for a Budget Bureau review as do those of other agencies.

Presiding over the far-flung intelligence operation is a 53-year-old former newspaperman, Richard Helms, a Navy lieutenant in World War II who rose through the ranks in agencies which developed into the CIA.

State-Wide Measure

Air Pollution Control May Receive Approval

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The legislature appears disposed to launch a state-wide air pollution control program, but some of its members have reservations about the expenditure requirements of such an effort, informed sources reported here today.

The reports appeared to be corroborated when the Republican Assembly majority caucus put off approval of a substitute amendment offered by Gov. Warren P. Knowles to replace a bill previously introduced by the Democratic minority leadership.

The governor's bill proposed to enlarge expenditures beyond the $475,000 biennial level suggested in the Democratic proposal. The Assembly Republican leadership is apprehensive about state budget trends, and apparently is hesitant about the appropriation level asked for the first state program to establish air pollution standards and give the state Department of Health enforcement authority.

Gov. Knowles listed air pollution regulation and prevention as one of the major objectives of his administration in a message to the legislature last month.

Such legislation would require written approval of state officials of some contamination producing installations, establish motor vehicle pollution control criteria and require control devices on such vehicles, and require cities of more than 39,000 and counties of more than 50,000 population to enact their own local air pollution ordinances to back up the state legislation.

Some federal financial assistance for the administration of such a program could be expected, officials have said.

The pending bill under Democratic sponsorship apparently is based on public statements about the menace of contaminated air made in several recent sessions by state health authorities.

Children's Aspirin To be Packaged Only In Small Containers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Your child soon will be better protected against the chance of taking an overdose of children's aspirin.

The Food and Drug Administration announced Thursday that no more than 36 children's aspirin can be packaged in one container and they cannot be larger in dosage than 1¼ grains. They still may be flavored.

The packages also must carry a warning to keep them out of reach of children and to contact a physician immediately in case of overdose.

State, National Dairy Promotions at Stake At ADA Convention

EAU CLAIRE — The stage for deliberations on their state and national dairy promotional operations will be set for dairy farmers at the kickoff luncheon of the American Dairy Association of Wisconsin annual meeting March 7-8 in the Eau Claire Hotel, according to Robert A. Bird, Brownsville, president of the association.

Elsmer Berg, Brownsville dairy farmer and chairman of the resolutions committee, will offer resolutions submitted by district committees, with final action scheduled during the morning session on March 8.

UW Research

Three speakers also are scheduled for Wednesday. Don Wilkinson, assistant director of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, who spoke at the ADA District 4 annual meeting, will repeat his views at the delegates' breakfast Wednesday.

Calbert, chairman of the Food Science and Industries department of the College of Agriculture, will review dairy product research projects at the university and A. J. Francour of the university's Cooperative Extension Service will represent David H. Williams, state June Dairy Month chairman, in giving a report on June Dairy month activity plans.

Greenville Grange Sets Camping Session for Young Adults Group

GREENVILLE — The young adults and young marrieds camp at Camp Byron March 11 and 12 was announced at the South Greenville Grange meeting Friday.

Featured will be a centennial play honoring the National Grange's 100th birthday, workshops and snowmobile rides.

For the lecturer's hour under the direction of Royden Hart, Vernon Peroutky, agricultural agent for Winnebago County, spoke on pesticides and pollution.

Reports were given on the card party. There will be two more in the series March 4 and March 11.

Restore Chicago Market

Deadline Set for Milk Order Views

A proposal by eight dairy cooperatives to re-establish the Chicago federal milk order and merge it with three existing southern Wisconsin orders is being held by the U.S. Department of Agriculture awaiting further interest to develop.

The area represents the urban complexes of southern Wisconsin, particularly the Milwaukee, Madison and Rockford order areas, and northern Illinois.

This is the first time since the Chicago order was voted out last May 1 that Wisconsin order areas have been included in any proposals to reinstate the market order.

In a letter this week from H L. Forest, director of the dairy division, Consumer Marketing Service, USDA, member co-ops were told that the agency will accept views of other organizations concerned in the market until March 25. As director he supervises the milk orders.

A spokesman for the group said the USDA will wait to see if the proposal gains significant support before calling a hearing after the March deadline for proposals.

He said it would hesitate to call a hearing for fear of a repeat of the May vote which killed the Chicago order. Two-thirds of the producers voting through their dairy organizations as a bloc must approve an order proposal advanced by the USDA after formal hearings. If a third disapproves, the proposal is killed.

Country Cheese Co-Operative Accepts Changing Times

BY ANGELA HUEBNER
Post-Crescent Correspondent

FOREST JUNCTION — Bringing an old country cheese factory in step with 20th century changes is no small achievement, but directors of the School Grove Cheese Co-Op factory near here decided several months ago they were up to the occasion.

The first step was to purchase a truck to pick up bulk milk from patrons.

This, in turn, required new equipment, according to manager and head cheesemaker Don Deffke.

Since the milk and cream must first be separated a new cream pasteurizer was necessary. A cream holding refrigerator also was added.

After the cream is bleached, enough is returned to the milk so it will test at 2.4 per cent butterfat.

Deffke said manufacturing this type of cheese requires more manpower for a shorter period so the total working day is shorter. He is assisted by Mrs. Deffke and Gary Pautz plus other part-time help.

The new system also offers the advantage of cheaper supply costs, Deffke said.

When the cheese is finished, it is placed into two large brining vats containing salt water with a specific gravity high enough for cheese to float. The product is kept in the vats for about four days and then shipped to Fond du Lac for more extensive brining for about 20 days.

Edwin Seybold, board president, said the original factory was located at the Seybold corner in the early 1890's but was later moved to its present location about a half-mile east when a new building became necessary.

There have been various owners through the years but it began operating as a co-operative in 1946.

Within the past 25 years many changes have taken place. Wood and coal were replaced by oil as heating fuel. Automatic can washers and can conveyors were installed. The cooler room was enlarged. A pasteurizer for the milk became part of the equipment. Automatic paddles to stir the milk in the vats were added. Whey is automatically pumped from the vats to the separators.

The farmers feel that financially this change may be to their advantage. It is being tried on an experimental basis, said Seybold. "We will still make periodic batches of American cheese for our customers who have come to enjoy Deffke's product," he said.

Other directors of the co-op are Elden Schnell, Bert Stapelle, Allen Knoespel and Earl Boettcher.

Search for Simple Farm Life Elusive Goal; Must Alter Shabby Treatment

BY ROGER W. DANA
Special to The Post Crescent

Finding a way to live a simple life on a farm is today's most complicated job. Farming is one of the few occupations left where one has to work like a dog to live like one.

The shabby treatment of the farmer by everyone in general is a condition that must be changed in a big hurry. More families are leaving the farm every year and this is a serious problem.

Society should remember and ponder this fact:

You should never get smart with—
For he is a guy.
You're unable to part with.
Especially if we want to go on eating.

That Seventh Day

Farming is a seven day a week job. Few people would care to have to work seven days a week year in and year out. You may ask why a farmer works seven days a week. The following story will explain.

A farmer was finishing his haying on Sunday morning as the pastor of his church stopped by. "Don't you know that the Creator made the world in six days and rested on the seventh?," lectured the minister. "Yes," replied the farmer as he looked uneasily at the rain clouds in the west. "I know all about that. But he got the job done and I didn't."

Another disadvantage of being a farmer is that he has to take his coffee breaks on his own time.

It also costs a lot of money to farm today and getting city merchants to accept your credit is not easy either. I know a farmer who wrote to a mail order house asking. "Please send me one of those plows you showed on page 256 of your catalog, and if it's any good, I'll send you a check." In time the farmer received the following reply. "Please send check. If it's any good we'll send the plow."

Farming may not be as hard as it used to be, but it is sure a lot more taxing. He has his animals to worry about too. Loss of livestock and chickens can be costly too. Like the lonely chick taking a turn around the electric incubator of unhatched eggs that said. "Well, it looks like I'll be an only child. Mother's blown a fuse."

Vet's Advice

Or the case of the farmer who had a sick cow. "What should I do?," the farmer asked a veterinarian after explaining that his cow had spells which she can't get up for a day or two. "Next time she's up," the vet replied, "sell her."

Yes, city people really don't understand the problems of the farmer. The sad part of it is they are not interested either.

A farm boy was going to explain to the city boy from Brooklyn how cattle breed. "Don't bodder," said the Brooklyn lad. "I already know how dey breed. It's trew dere noses."

Besides, the farmer has the government with which he must contend. When the government left crop control to the bugs and grasshoppers we didn't have a crop control problem.

Today on the farm the hen is the only bird that can sit and still produce anything. A farmer also has to worry about his crops. But sometimes that doesn't help much. A farmer put a tuxedo on his scarecrow. It didn't protect his corn, but it attracted a better class of crows.

The reason so many farmers don't live within their incomes is that they don't consider that living. Running into debt on the farm isn't so bad. It's running into creditors that hurts. By the time a farmer finds greener pastures, he can't climb the fence. As one farm wife remarked to her husband. "Dear, if we continue to save at our present rate, at retirement we'll owe $25,000."

A farmer I know told me it wasn't the up's and down's that made him quit farming but just too many Up's.

"First, you have to wake up, then you have to get up. Next you have to wash up, feed up and hitch up. Then you have to catch up and keep up. When you check up, you find you hardly have enough to pay up. That's when I gave up."

Farming may be losing popularity, but there never will be substitute as a satisfactory place to eat fresh corn on the cob.

Besides, how you gonna keep them off of the farm after they see parity?

Bell Corners Club Gains 15 Members

BEAR CREEK — Fifteen new members have joined the Bell Corners 4-H Club after ceremonies last week conducted by Randy Riehl and Calvin Kasper at the Bear Creek Town Hall.

New members are Sandra Plumb, Roy Plumb, Patricia Orr, Karen Daebler, Gerard Rohan, Sandra Schertz, Susan Wisneiski, Larry Wisneiski, Diana Wisneiski, Colleen Rohan, Steve Surprise, Debra Clinton, Diane Clinton, James Clinton and Dennis Knapp.

SHIOCTON — The Chief Shioc 4-H Club will participate in the county 4-H music contest at Freedom on March 13. Mrs. Donald Ronk and Mrs. Jack Lammers are in charge of the music.

Speeches were given by Sonja Curtiss on white horses and by Susan Conradt on the "piranhas" species of fish.

Corn Borer Population Doubles in Wisconsin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says the destructive European Corn Borer increased its population in all states reporting last year.

It said populations were more than double those of 1965 in Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota and Wisconsin. Substantial increases also were noted in Delaware, Maryland, Indiana, Missouri, Nebraska and Arkansas.

Keeping Abreast of Change

Knowledge of Farming Gleaned From Records

In this day and age when changes are taking place so fast, the farmer can no longer operate his farm like he did even 10 years ago.

As a result, a farmer will have to increase his knowledge of his own farming operation, so he can adjust to these changes and improve his present situation.

Today a farmer must run his farm as a business organization and should keep accurate records of his operation. The days of keeping farm records in a shoe box or jotting notes on the kitchen calendar have passed. Running a business with this type of records is like running a clock without hands. You will never really know how or what you are doing.

If a farmer keeps a good set of farm records it will provide accurate information for filing income tax returns, show the financial position of the farm business, show whether the farm has made or lost money during the year, and is helpful in determining which farm enterprise has made money during the year.

Little Value

Most farmers keep some farm records, but often these don't give a very clear picture of the farm business. The income and expense items are sometimes entered together on the same page or kept in several books, and they are so difficult to separate and analyze that it is seldom, if ever, done.

There are still too many farmers that never keep a record book. These individuals keep the income and expenses in desk drawers, and as a result will never really know if they have everything at the end of the year.

In most cases, some expenses get lost and they can't remember the amount paid and don't have a receipt to prove that they paid for it.

Kind of Records

The kind of farm records to keep will depend on what the farmer wants to know about his business. If there is no particular information he desires or needs, he had better not spend the time to keep a record. But, usually the farmer wishes to learn ways of increasing his net income in order to have a more satisfactory living.

The first essential of a farm record is that it should be simple and not too detailed. Any method or accounting system is worthwhile if it shows the farmer what he wants to know. If all that he wants to know is whether he is getting ahead or going behind, an annual inventory is sufficient.

When the farmer wishes to know from what sources the income is derived and for what it is spent, he needs in addition to the inventory, a record of cash receipts and cash expenses. If he wishes to study any one of his farm enterprises, it is necessary to keep detailed cost account records of the particular enterprise.

Should Contain

A simple farm record book should provide space for a detailed inventory of all farm property so that the farmer can find the net worth and the gain or loss for the year. The receipts and expenses should be classified by column or page distribution according to the main sources of income and important items of expenses.

Space should be provided for recording acreage and production of the crops grown and the amount of farm products used by the family. Then, from these farm records, the summary and analysis can be made at the end of the year.

If you are having difficulty keeping good records, get in contact with your local University Extension Office for additional information.

Prepare for Further Integration In Agri-Business, Farmers Told

WINNECONNE — "We are being integrated into the agri-business economy of industry and must join it as owners if we are to survive," said Ken Wallin, manager of Midwest Breeders Co-op in discussing the future of co-ops with the Winnebago Farm Bureau here recently.

"Change is inevitable and we must adjust to it," he challenged.

He advocated using cooperatives on a contract or price arrangement basis for numerous services. "The farmer who ties his farm to the co-op program shares in the decision making," he said. There would be less price setting on individual commodities, he admitted, but farmers would benefit from the overall program.

He felt co-ops could be used to greater advantage if they offered more services. "In view of mergers and consolidations in the market today why not expand into other areas with existing organizations?" he suggested.

Beef Industry

For example, he said, the beef industry is about where the dairy industry was 20 years ago in use of artificial insemination "We must broaden our function to better serve the rural community. If we stop growing we start to die," he said.

"Make your own cooperatively owned organization more effective, develop comprehensive marketing and lower costs," he urged. Improving the public image of cooperatives is in their best interests. "We need some soul searching by our boards of directors. Provincial attitudes are preventing growth. We must update our equipment and management," he said.

"Effective co-ops are needed to help other countries develop." Wallin said. "Rather than exploiting member loyalty for inadequate performance should demand tangible, sound business management," he concluded.

The 19th century fear of bigness as something evil must be discarded and instead cooperatives must be merged and modernized, Frank Meyer, public relations director for Consolidated Badger Co-op, said.

"We must recognize marketing changes if we are to survive," he commented. "It is painful getting modernized because the roots of dairying go back many years," he admitted.

Meyer said he felt members of most progressive cooperatives were ahead of their directors in desiring expansion and merger. He said the resulting bigness was a quality that could be harnessed to improve the industry.

AFL-CIO Calls Farm Labor 'Most Exploited'

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The AFL-CIO Executive Council said recently that farm workers are the most exploited group in American labor and that their economic salvation lies in "building a strong arm workers union."

The labor federation, which for years made virtually no headway in organizing agricultural workers, said recent legislation bringing some farm laborers under federal minimum wage coverage is a modest first step.

Farmers Selling Milk Too Cheap, NFO Official Chi des Dairymen

WINNECONNE — A spokesman for the National Farmers Organization (NFO) told 500 members and wives here Saturday night they were selling their milk too cheap.

Erhardt Pfingsten, NFO vice president, noted that children drank twice as much soda pop last year than milk, but there were no complaints from their parents about the higher price paid for pop.

He said it killed the argument that withholding milk from the market would force consumers to turn to substaitutes or other bevergaes and pointed to the difference in price between pop and milk for comparable quantities

"You and I are told we have to get the price from supply and demand, but there is only one way that can work — if the bargaining power on both sides of the table is equal. As individuals we are no match for the large corporations. They can let us sit with our production and we can't have any effect on them," Pfinsten said in promoting increased membership.

Depress Prices

He accused packers in the Iowa area of glutting or withholding their cattle herds from the market in an effort to keep the prices depressed

Pfinsten compared the present milk pricing situation to purchasing a pair of work shoes and then paying for them two weeks later depending on how they worked out on the job or what they were used for.

He charged Wisconsin dairymen allowed processors to take their milk and pay them for it two weeks later on a basis of how it was utilized in the market.

Manufacturers set the price they will recieve for their products and nobody complains, he said, but cited the alarm shown when milk withholding for that same purpose is proposed.

Other Views

Pfingsten also expressed his views on:

Efficiency — Farmers today are the most efficient industry in the U.S and yet are told they must seek greater efficiencies rather than seek higher prices through withholding.

Farm federation — Church leaders were pushing the idea but farm organizations were able to agree on only rural beautification

Merger with the Grange — We are very close in our thinking and when it comes the Grange will probably concentrate on legislation while we (NFO) continue our more aggressive policies."

Cattle sales — They doubled earlier expectations. Sales will continue until somebody recognizes NFO price demands. The lag in milk production should be felt by early summer.

Future Activities — We will be making moves on grain to reduce the supply.

Effects of Sales — Each sow sold takes a ton of pork production off the market in fall. Each cow sold means four to six fewer calves plus the loss of milk.

Ohio farm numbers — "The state secretary of agriculture told me that the state had lost 700 grade A milk producing farmers and 1,400 grade B producers in the past nine months and they are not even a leading dairy producing state," he noted.

Mid-Winter Time to Inventory Remaining Forage, Grain Supply

BY JOE L. WALKER
Waupaca Agricultural Agent

WAUPACA — Dairymen tell us that about half of the winter's feed supply should still be left to carry the herd through the stored feeding period.

Though spring is officially one month away a word to the wise suggests we take a little inventory of the amount of forages and grains left and consider, not only the quantity, but the quality and determine about how much is still needed to carry the herd through to pasture or green feeding.

Terry Howard, University of Wisconsin Dairy Specialist, says we should have about two tons of hay or hay equivalent left per cow to carry us through the balance of the season. Hay prices tend to rise in April when the mows are more apt to be empty and the cows a bit more hungry.

If additional hay is needed, it should be purchased now rather than later. For those in need of hay, we still have quite a list in the Extension office of dairymen, from Manitowoc County, who have hay for sale.

Seed Catalogs

The eastern part of the state had a good hay crop last year. After two years of ice and one without moisture, it seems 1967 should be our year to catch up on this hay situation again.

However, these seed catalogs are arriving and, as in past years, they show many new varieties of garden vegetables. The selection of good adapted varieties is the first step toward a successful garden. Since this is the case, a new Special Circular No. 536 was put out by the University of Wisconsin Horticulture Department and covers the selection of recommended varieties for our area.

This circular, available on request, emphasizes vegetable varieties that are recommended for table and freezing. High quality seed is as important with a vegetable garden as it is in alfalfa, corn or oat crop. The gardener who uses poor quality seed is starting his garden under a big handicap. Even if he has good soil, properly fertilized, and uses other recommended cultural practices, the harvest is likely to be inferior in terms of yield and quality if he doesn't plant good seed.

Garden seeds left over from last year may be suitable if they were stored in a cool, dry place and protected from rodents. If there is any question regarding the quality of the old seed, it is best to throw it away and purchase good seed of known variety and germination.

Variety Important

Seed cost isn't so important that one can risk half a crop as a result of poor germination. Therefore, though gardens won't be planted for quite sometime, purchase of garden seeds can be done anytime and, here again, the early purchaser stands a good chance of getting the variety he wants in plenty of time for spring planting.

Quite frequently we are asked about a soil test for a garden and, though it might be a good idea, we usually find that our gardens are exceptionally high in plant food. This being the case, we quite often come up with a blanket recommendation of 25 to 30 pounds of 5-20-20 or 10-10-10 per 1,000 square feet.

This may not seem like much but on a per acre basis this is 1,000 to 1,200 pounds, which is quite comparable to a potato grower's fertility program. However, it is three to four times greater than a field crop fertility program.

In any event, most root crops have a great need for potash and a complete fertilizer for our garden does a real good job. I think the gardener would be money ahead in the long run if the garden soil test cost were spent for fertilizer.

Meat Institute Official Defends Packer Feeding

Herrell De Graf, president of the American Meat Institute, told members of the Alabama Cattlemen's Association recently that the USDA claim that packer feeding is harmful to livestock producers is an attempt to "drive a wedge between farmers and packers."

He said the number was not significantly large in relation to the national cattle production. He said the farms were important to "maintain steady operations of packing plants who must supply their customers 52 weeks a year.

"The whole marketing system for livestock and meat consist of many interdependent units and the packing industry has shown willingness to provide some of the missing links in areas and cases where they don't exist.

"On the part of some persons there appears to be an almost irrational fear that the packing industry is out to destroy the farm feeder. Nothing could be further from the truth. Packers are as dependent on feeders as feeders are on packers." De Graf concluded. His views were outlined in the Feb. 23 issue of Drover's Journal.

Hollandtown 4-H Club Collects for UCP

HOLLANDTOWN — Members of the Hollandtown 4-H Club collected money for the United Cerebral Palsy fund drive and discussed dates for future activities at their February meeting.

Bernard Mury will speak at the March 9 meeting. The family picnic will be July 23 at Erb Park. Talent roundup March 19 and paper drives and roller skating party also were discussed.

Northport Hilltoppers Select Play for Contest

NORTHPORT — The Northport Hilltoppers 4-H Club has selected the play, "The Farmer's Daughter," as their entry in the Waupaca County 4-H Drama Festival at Manawa Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Simon Wilson and Mrs. Paul Rohloff are directing the club's entry. Participating in the play are Diane and Donna Rohloff, James Bodoh, Janet Wilson, John Backes and Walter Rasmussen.

Eye Northern Ice Sheet Crop Threat

Feed Supply Good; Milk, Egg Production Climb in State

The Wisconsin Statistical Reporting Service in its Feb. 1 Crop report indicates an increasing concern relating to the effects the ice sheets in northern Wisconsin will have on alfalfa and winter wheat.

January thaws caused frost penetration to decline in some areas. However, in the west and central regions the penetration was deeper with the state average reaching 12.5 inches by late January. Frost penetration was deeper a year ago in comparison with present depths.

Feed supply is generally fair to good throughout the state with main farm activities being winter chores, machinery repairs, and making plans for the 1967 crop season.

Milk production in Wisconsin increased seasonably from last month and was estimated at 1,534 million pounds for January 1967. This was 7 per cent above the previous month, and 8 per cent above the same month last year. The increase in milk production is primarily the result of an increase in production per cow. Output per cow averaged 805 pounds compared with 755 pounds per cow last month and 729 pounds for January 1966.

Hens Are Busy

Egg production is estimated at 127 million eggs during January, about the same as a month earlier but 4 per cent above the same month a year ago. The number of layers on hand during January this year was estimated at 6,712 thousand birds. This is 1 per cent fewer layers than in December 1966 but 1 per cent more layers than January the previous year. Rate of lay is also higher this year. Eggs per 100 layers is 1,385 compared with 1,366 in December and 1,343 in January last year.

There were about 170,000 family workers on farms, 7 per cent below January last year, and as much as 16 per cent below the 1961-65 average. There were only 10,000 hired workers compared with 12,000 for the same month last year and the 5-year average of 15,000 workers. The average hours worked per week by family workers was 44.3 hours compared with 34.8 hours worked by hired labor.

Suggest Precautions for Use Of Pesticides; Fear Residue

If you plan to use the pesticides aldrin or dieldrin for cropland or orchard insect control in 1967, there are precautionary measures you should follow which are listed on special stickers or labels.

The Wisconsin Department of Agriculture requires the precautionary labeling as a condition for registering these two chemicals for sale or distribution in the state for agricultural uses.

The new label requirement is a result of the department's investigations of the effects of these chemicals on the state's dairy industry.

Further use of aldrin on crops and dieldrin on orchards might cause residue in the soil which may appear in crop grown on this soil, and in turn, in the products from animals eating these crops.

The labels will appear on all packages and containers of these chemicals, including products now in dealer or distributor stocks.

Observing the following label precautions will help prevent pesticide residues in crops and dairy products:

Do not use aldrin or dieldrin on Wisconsin dairy farms for any purpose other than seed treatment; do not use aldrin or dieldrin on dairy animals; do not permit animals to have access to cropland which has been treated with aldrin or dieldrin during the past two years; do not permit dairy animals or other animals being finished for slaughter to graze in operating or abandoned orchard areas having a history of dieldrin application.

Farm Real Estate Taxes in 1965 Hit $1.65 Billion Mark

Total Only $931 Million Decade Ago; Per Acre Average Lower

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department today reported state and local taxes levied on U.S. farm real estate in 1965 set a new record of $1.65 billion.

This was $100 million more than the year before and marked the 23rd consecutive yearly increase. By comparison, the tax totaled $931 million 10 years ago.

The department said the average tax rate per acre —$1.02 of assessed value — is lower than during the 1926-41 period, when it ranged from $1.12 to $1.52 and averaged 15 cents above present levels nationally.

Most Taxes Higher

The department said taxes per acre last year were higher in 45 states than the year before. Greatest increases were in Florida and Nebraska, with 19 per cent each, and California, with 16 per cent. Georgia and West Virginia increased rates slightly more than 10 per cent.

Five states showed decreases — Idaho, New Mexico, Arizona, Oregon and Kansas.

New Jersey continued to have the highest tax per acre —$12.62. New Mexico had the lowest, 17 cents.

California farm land owners paid the largest total tax — $224.6 million. Illinois was second with $148.7 million, Iowa third with $128.7 million, and Texas fourth with $85.1 million.

Valley Registered Holsteins Set New Production Records

Fox Valley area dairy herds of Registered Holstein cows have established new lactation averages for milk and butterfat production.

George Brennand, Oshkosh, has 43 completed production records averaging 16,664 pounds of milk and 600 pounds of butterfat.

Edward Buehring, Oshkosh, has 31 completed production records averaging 15,942 pounds of milk and 555 pounds of butterfat.

Willard W. Commings, Valders, has 28 completed production records averaging 14,918 pounds of milk and 544 pounds of butterfat.

Grundy Farms

Grundy Farms, Oshkosh, has 91 completed production records averaging 17,136 pounds of milk and 608 pounds of butterfat.

Earl M. Holverson, Larsen, has 12 completed production records averaging 15,471 pounds of milk and 556 pounds of butterfat.

Joseph Keuler & Son, Kiel, have 32 completed production records averaging 17,352 pounds of milk and 666 pounds of butterfat.

Leonard Kobiske, Waupaca, has 35 completed production records averaging 15,738 pounds of milk and 565 pounds of butterfat.

McSchooler Herd

O. G. McSchooler, Omro, has 31 completed production records averaging 16,284 pounds of milk and 609 pounds of butterfat.

Amos Natzke & Sons, Greenleaf, have 63 completed production records averaging 15,403 pounds of milk and 563 pounds of butterfat.

Eugene Roepcke, Seymour, has 10 completed production records averaging 15,251 pounds of milk and 566 pounds of butterfat.

To provide a uniform means of comparing Registered Holstein herd performance, lactation averages are reported on the industry standard, two milkings per day, 305-day, mature equivalent basis. These production levels compare favorably to the average U. S. cow's annual production of 8,080 pounds of milk and 299 pounds of butterfat.

The University of Wisconsin supervised the sampling and production testing procedures in cooperation with the official herd testing programs of the national Holstein Association.

Family Couldn't Duck Citations

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — After receiving three citations, the Ted Rothner family got rid of Samantha who had been quacking, to neighbors' protests, for two years.

The pet duck was an Easter gift to the Rothners' two children and her constant quacking irritated neighbors who complained to police. After the third citation the family gave in Thursday and presented the duck to the zoo.

The Rothners said they don't anticipate buying another duck, a chicken, a bird or anything alive this Easter.

"It's just not worth it," said Mrs. Rothner.

Meeting for Teachers

School Board Candidates Present Qualifications, Answer Questions

Four of the five candidates running for the two positions open on the Appleton Board of Education presented their qualifications, and answered questions, in a forum discussion Tuesday. The meeting was organized for teachers by the Appleton Education Association (AEA).

Present were Kenneth Sager, incumbent, instructor at Lawrence University; Don C. Smith, general manager of a business consultants firm; Warren Hahn, sales engineer, and John Stevens, salesman.

Absent, due to illness, was Victor Sumnicht, incumbent, businessman. Hahn told the audience of about 200 his major qualfication was his experience as an engineer.

Need Experts

"I feel the board needs someone who can understand the mechanical things involved in building and maintaining schools," he said.

He also quoted figures on federal funds available to school systems, and compared them to funds Appleton receives.

"According to national figures, Appleton misses out on about 7 per cent of federal aid and about 10 per cent in state funds," he said. Later he added that it was not the fault of the board but just a fact that should be investigated.

Sager told the group there are no material profits nor chances for advancement in the position, but the stakes are high and the judgement significant.

"The issues involved include building projects, teaching materials, programs and at what price paid for, and by whom," he said. He added, "unfortunately, we have to spend so much time on the bricks and mortar part of the program."

Student Issue

The real issues, Sager said, have to do with students. We must see to it that everyone is included — the slow, the average and the quick learners — to make sure no one is left out. We must make sure we, the board and teachers, help each other."

Smith, in turn, answered the three questions involved in each race: why is he running for the position? What has he got to offer? What does he think he can accomplish?

"I have a great interest in the school system since I have three children, one in each of the levels; I have also been concerned over the antagonism raised over something so important and necessary as the school budget and the proper allocation of the tax dollar," he said.

A graduate of the University of Wisconsin he's in the business consultation field and spent four year on the library board.

The platform of John Stevens concerned teachers, and a central purchasing program in the maintenance department.

Stevens, a six-year Appleton teacher, told his former colleagues it is necessary to keep in mind "that the backbone of our education system is not the tax dollar but the teacher. Without good teachers no system can educate, whatever the tax rate and revenue collected might be."

A graduate of the Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh, Stevens has served on the school study committee for Grand Chute. He was a member of the county zoning board, past building and plumbing inspector and served on the original Fox Valley Planning Commission. He is still active on the housing and building code committee.

In a question and answer period many of the questions concerned lack of communication between teachers and board members.

Both Stevens and Sager indicated that there are proper channels between the superintendent and the school authorities.

Sager indicated, too, that anyone is allowed to be heard at regular board meetings.

To that Hahn added that statistics show very few people take advantage of the open board meetings; less than 1 per cent of the public has ever attended a board meeting.

Asked what he thought was one answer to keep teachers happy and retain them in the system, Smith answered that recognition was the key word. He felt something more could be done in this area.

A question of discipline and dress code, cropped up. All four candidates felt that certain rules should be okayed and teachers should have the right to make many decisions which would be backed by the board. But he said teachers would have to go along with the trends.

Year-Round State School Operation Proposal Rejected

MADISON (AP)—A bid to begin year around operation of Wisconsin's state universities was turned down Wednesday by the Assembly Education Committee.

Action on the measure, also rejected by the 1965 Legislature, was indefinitely postponed by a 6-4 vote.

Authored by Assemblyman Kenneth Merkel, R-Brookfield, the bill would require the nine state universities and the University of Wisconsin to adopt either the tri-semester plan or quarter system.

The universities now operate for two 16-week full semesters and brief summer sessions yearly.

AAL Donates $2,500 To Building Program Of Lutheran Seminary

Aid Association for Lutherans (AAL) has donated $2,500 to the building fund of the Northwestern Lutheran Theological Seminary, which this year will move from its Minneapolis campus to new buildings adjacent to Luther Theological Seminary, St. Paul.

The money will purchase furnishings for the seminary conference room which will be used as a meeting place for The American Lutheran Church (TALC) and Lutheran Church in America (LCA) seminaries.

Construction began in May, 1966 and the buildings are expected to be ready by September, according to Dr. C. H. Zeidler, seminary president and former pastor of Trinity Church in Appleton.

Lawrence Students Publish Liberal Arts Magazine 'Idea'

A new magazine of the liberal arts named "Idea" has appeared on the Lawrence University campus under the editorship of William Brouwer, Wauwatosa, and Timothy Jorgenson, Prescott, Ariz.

The first issue contains work by both students and faculty. An essay "Mores and Morals" was contributed by Dr. Carl P. Wellman, who holds the Lee Claflin-Robert S. Ingraham chair in philosophy, while five pieces of art work by Jerry Carl Schwartz, art instructor, are reproduced in a center insert. The works were originally etchings and engravings.

Other articles appearing in the first issue are "Motivation and Moral Judgment" by Florence Epperson, a sophomore from Worthington, Ohio; and "Moral Condemnation" by Stuart Reese, a junior from Chatfield, Minn. Future issues will continue to present both student and faculty writing, according to Brouwer.

The publication is an outgrowth of a journal "Symposium" produced by the sophomore studies class last year, in which Brouwer and Jorgenson were members. The journal presented the best critical writing of that class, which studied intellectual history in the English speaking world from 1890-1914. It is expected that "Symposium" will be continued as a class project.

The emphasis in "Idea" will be on scholarly work rather than creative writing. The latter is fostered by the student magazine "Troops." "Idea" is an independent publication, not subsidized by student activity funds.

Associate editors are: Elizabeth Boardway, Clinton, Iowa; Martha Brown, Wauwatosa; Dennis Delap, Williams Bay; Florence Epperson, Worthington, Ohio; Ann Finney, Linwood, N.J.; Sarah Hoebel, Princeton, Ill.; James Joesten, Freeport, Ill.; Cathryn Piehl, Seymour; Margaret Quinn, Washington, D.C.; Mary Ann Small, Freeport, Ill.; Mary Sorenson, Racine; Jacob Stockinger, Bethany, Conn.; and Toni Weller, Wisconsin Rapids.

1,214 Students Take Tuberculin Skin Test

KAUKAUNA — A total of 1,214 students, or 86.5 per cent of those eligible, received tuberculosis skin tests administered through the city health office, according to Mrs. Mary Yingling, city nurse.

Youngsters in grades, one, two, seven and eight were eligible to receive the tests. Local physicians are currently in the process of reading tests.

Weighty Matter Concerns Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — "To condone plaintiff's overcharging would have been a signal to all carriers, each monopolistic in his own right, to mulct the public for all the traffic would bear."

Those words, handed down Monday in a Supreme Court ruling, had the ring of court decisions breaking up America's great trusts and destroying monopolistic dynasties.

Target of the court's wrath this time? A newspaper carrier in St. Louis who charged patrons $1.70 a month when the newspaper itself charged $1.60.

Hortonville Driver Fined for Speeding

Lambert E. Kramer, 57, route 2, Hortonville, Wednesday afternoon was found guilty by Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller of speeding 69 miles an hour at night Dec. 18 on U. S. 45 in the Town of Greenville.

Judge Keller fined Kramer $25 and costs or 12 days in jail. Kramer and the arresting state patrolman were the only two witnesses at the hour-long trial in Branch 2.

Second Man Arrested in Bank Robbery

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A second person was arrested Wednesday by the FBI on charges stemming from last Friday's armed robbery of the Rosendale, Wis., State Bank.

FBI agents arrested Raymond V. Morel, 21, in St. Paul on a charge of aiding in the robbery, in which a lone gunman took $4,700.

Morel's home is at Dickinson, N.D., an FBI spokesman said.

Morey appeared before U.S. Commissioner Robert Chial Wednesday and is being held in lieu of $25,000 in Ramsey County jail.

Issue Red Cross Caps To 3 Kimberly Girls In Volunteer Work

Three Kimberly high school girls, all junior Red Cross volunteers who will work at Family Heritage Home, were capped and received their certificates and pins Saturday at the home.

Lynn Van Eperen, Jill Forster and Tina Hantschell received the certificates from Lloyd Taylor, vice chairman of the Outagamie County Red Cross, and were capped by Mrs. Robert Petersen, chairman of volunteers.

These girls along with three others who began last year, will participate in the activities at the home.

All the residents attended the capping, and according to Mrs. Shirley Wydeven, activities director of the home, the program is a great success.

Bill Asks Investment Income Use in Setting Auto Rates

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — In a surprise move, one of the leaders of the Republican state Assembly majority has introduced a bill that proposes to require the investment income of auto insurance companies to be taken into account in the establishment of their rates.

The measure was offered by Assemblyman Kyle Kenyon of Monroe County, chairman of the Insurance and Banking Committee of the lower house of the legislature.

The bill will be heavily opposed by the underwriters on the basis of legislative history of the issue.

Kenyon's formal statement said the measure results from hearings by his committee during a period of several weeks on "alleged abuses in the insurance industry," and that it will be one of a series of bills designed to "correct some of those abuses."

Under present regulatory practices, rates are based on carrier operating costs. Kenyon said that because such costs are now close to premium income, "there will be no chance to reducing rates or preventing future increases."

Bunche Alters Plan to Retire From U.N. Post

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Ralph J. Bunche, U.N. undersecretary for special political affairs, announced this week he has given up plans to retire March 15 and will stay on for a new term.

Bunche, an American Negro, has been in the U.N secretariat from its beginning in 1945 and is 62, two years over retirement age.

The announcement, read by a U.N. spokesman, said he once notified Secretary-General U Thant of his "firm intention to leave the secretariat in mid-March."

"This decision has now been reversed, however, in response to a strong request by the secretary-general, and Mr. Bunche has accepted the secretary-general's offer to him of a new term."

The spokesman said Bunche's new term would run for the next five years, like the secretary-general's.

Village to Air Bids On Street Improvement

As Bill Sees It:

Gardening Project Requires Planning

BY WILLIAM SHAW
Outagamie 4-H Agent

Members enrolled in the gardening project for 967 should be considering a garden plan. Although planting time is still several months away, now is the best planning time for a summer garden.

A good garden plan should include the size and location of available planting site, crops to be grown, arrangement of them and the selection of seeds.

Good vegetables can be grown in almost any soil if it is properly handled Ideally, soil should be loose, fertile and well-drained.

Pepare Plan

Once you have decided upon the garden site, prepare a careful crop plan. Several crop lists are available though the Extension Sevice. They give special emphasis to plants adapted to the Wisconsin climate and include recommended planting times.

A good crop plan will list crops to be grown, number of different plantings of each crop and the time for each planting.

While you are still in the planning stages, arrange your crops. The spacing of individual crops and rows is important. Don't leave these decisions until you are out in the field sowing seeds.

The aim should be to grow the vegetables in the smallest space. Weeds must be controlled and less space means fewer weeds.

Short Rows

The vegetable specialist recommends short rows. With most crops he says a 20-30 foot row is best. Plant several rows of the same crop, if necessary, instead of one very long row.

Direction of the rows is generally not too important. On sloping land, however, rows should run across the slope. Always use the best seeds you can get. Don't try to cut corners by buying the cheapest seeds.

Saving seeds from last year's garden is a questionable practice. Seeds sometimes carry diseases and it is easy for varieties of certain crops to become badly mixed through crossing.

However, it is possible to save unused seeds from one year to the next. If kept in a cool dry place and protected from mice and rats, god quality vegetable seeds will sprout very well for about three years after purchase. Leek, oka, onion, parsley, parsnip, pepper, salsify and sweet corn are exceptions.

Buy your seeds from a reputable seed dealer. To insure early delivery for spring planting, order should be placed in Febuary.

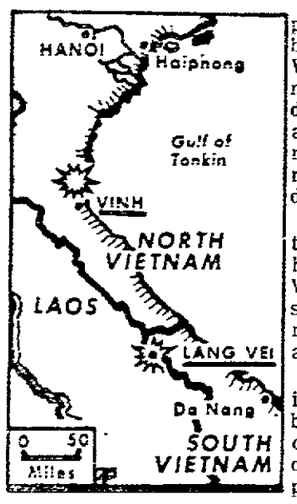
Possibility Act Was Done by Communists Admitted by U. S.



SAIGON, (AP) — Two jet planes that knifed in from Laos, bombed and strafed the South Vietnamese village of Lang Vei near the Laotian border Thursday night, killing 83 civilians and wounding 200, the U.S. command announced today. The raiders' identity remained undetermined.

One American spokesman said the planes were presumed to have been American or South Vietnamese. But there was speculation the Communists may have staged it as their first air strike into South Vietnam.

"I would say that the possibility of that (as a Communist blow) is so far out it can be discounted," said a U.S. Air Force officer in Da Nang, "but it is possible."

Capt. J. Duffy, 23, San Diego, Calif., who commands a Special Forces camp that overlooks LANG Vei from a hill 500 yards away, said he could not determine the make of the planes, but they were delta-winged.

Not in Area

The Soviet-designed MIG jets that make up the bulk of North Vietnam's air force have this type of swept-back wings.

A U.S. Air Force officer said the only delta-winged American craft operating in South Vietnam is the Air Force's F102.

"It is strictly an air defense bird and there were no F102s in the area," he said.

The bombs and fires they set off destroyed about 100 of the thatch, bamboo and wooden houses over a 400-yard path within the village. It has been home to about 2,000 people, mostly Montagnard mountain tribesmen.

If this was an accidental bombing, it would be the worst such tragedy announced so far in the war.

The bombing took place five hours after a U.S. helicopter was shot down in the area and was carried out virtually under the noses of the Special Forces men stationed on a hill above the village. The village is filled with refugees who had fled from the Viet Cong for government security.

Assemblymen Approve State Oleo Hearings

Legislative Clash On Repeal of Ban May be Delayed

MADISON (AP)—An Assembly showdown on oleomargarine may be delayed three or more weeks by a proposal permitting public hearings on the controversial issue throughout the state.

Assemblyman Norbert Nuttelman, R-West Salem, Chairman of the Agriculture Committee, said he hopes a single bill to repeal Wisconsin's 1895 ban on colored oleo could be reported out by early April.

But a resolution approved 55-49 Thursday would allow special statewide hearings and possibly postpone floor debate on any bills, the West Salem dairyman said.

The hearings proposal, which still must be passed by the Senate, sets a May 1 deadline for reporting back to the legislature.

Hopes It's Killed

Nuttelman said he prefers not to hold hearings outside the capitol, but added the rural-dominated Agriculture Committee "may force me to."

"I hope this resolution is killed in the Senate," the chairman said.

A hearing on oleomargarine, scheduled March 15 in Madison, will be held even if other hearings were approved, he said.

Before the Assembly passed the resolution, Nuttelman had said he planned to report out a single bill from his committee.

Brown County Crash Kills 2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The deaths of two persons in a Brown county accident have brought Wisconsin's 1967 highway toll to 113, compared with 136 on this date a year ago.

Mrs. Vic Lough, 59, and Marvin Gorman, 20, both of Green Bay, were killed around 1:30 this morning in the collision of their cars on U.S. 41 and 141 about eight miles north of Green Bay. Authorities said they were alone in their vehicles.

35,000 Reds Massed Near South's Border

Possible Invasion Force Being Eyed By U. S. Command

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese army has built up a possible invasion force of some 35,000 men along the 17th parallel separating North and South Vietnam, informed sources said today.

The sources said three Communist divisions are in the area — one immediately north of the demilitarized zone dividing Vietnam and two operating from the six-mile zone or the adjoining South Vietnamese province of Quang Tri.

The North Vietnamese have maintained two divisons in this area for several months, intelligence officers say. The additional division apparently moved to within striking distance of the border within the past 30 days, the sources said.

Plans Unknown

Although the U.S. command doesn't know what plans the North Vietnamese have for their troops along the 17th Parallel, informed military sources said the force once again has the capability of attacking across the demilitarized zone.

Such an attack was anticipated last year but the U.S. Marines launched Operation Hasting and badly bloodied North Vietnam's 324B division. U.S. officers said the Reds then had a well developed plan to push two divisions into the northern part of South Vietnam to try to seize control of Quang Tri Province at least.

Informed sources said the present role of the North Vietnamese troops in the area appears to be largely to pin down

Illinois Boys Shot to Death

Two Teen-Agers Forced to Knees Before Shootings

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — Two teen-age cousins were forced to kneel against the stone wall of an isolated park pavilion Thursday night and then were shot to death at point blank range, police said.

Police squads rushed to the area after an anonymous tipster, believed to be a woman, called the Winnebago County sheriff's office and told deputies where to find the bodies.

"To hell with them," the woman shouted over the phone. "Just let them lay there and die."

The bodies of the two boys were found lying on the pavilion's cement slab floor. Each boy had been shot in the stomach and the back of the head with a small-caliber weapon.

Wayne Mullendore, 14, was dead on arrival at Rockford Memorial Hospital. His first cousin, Ronald Johnson, 14, died in the operating room two hours later. He never regained conciousness.

"These were clean-cut, church-going boys," said Sheriff Herb Brown. "They had never been in any trouble. We have no idea why this happened."

LBJ, RFK Clash Over N. Vietnam Bombing

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy Thursday night discusses his Senate speech in which he called for a suspension of the bombing of North Vietnam. (AP Wirephoto)

Senator Says Pause Would Lead to Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's icy repudiation of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's call for a peace-seeking halt to bombing of North Vietnam emphasizes their escalating differences.

Johnson twice defended the bombing almost as Kennedy spoke Thursday, but the White House said he would not comment on the Kennedy proposals.

Within hours, however, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. military commander in Vietnam, rejected the New York Democrat's proposal that the United States stop bombing the Communist North and announce: "We are ready to negotiate within the week."

Rusk said the Communists already have spurned such a formula. Westmoreland said in Saigon that any pause in bombing "will cost many additional lives and probably prolong the conflict."

Serious Move

Johnson forearmed a Senate ally with a letter declaring the air attacks imperative and saying they will persist until the Hanoi government makes a serious move toward peace.

It bore Wednesday's date and provided an instant rebuttal when Kennedy stood in the Senate to deliver his well-advertised speech on peace moves in Vietnam.

Shortly before, Johnson had discussed the bombing at a surprise news conference.

Kennedy sent an advance copy of his proposals to the White House — which said the manuscript had been passed on to the State Department.

George Christian, press secretary, said Johnson did not read the text.

Suharto Caught In Middle Over Sukarno Status

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Gen. Suharto has worked himself into a corner over the crisis surrounding President Sukarno. It could vitally affect Suharto's future.

Suharto, strong man of the military forces which in effect rule the country, seems increasingly to be caught between the dangers of having Sukarno dismissed from office or letting him hang on as president in name only.

Informed sources say Suharto believes it would be better to keep Sukarno in office as a stabilizing factor in this divided and troubled land. But powerful forces in the military, in Congress and student groups are pressing to see that Congress dismisses Sukarno when it meets Tuesday.

Sizable Groups

If Suharto forces his will on Congress he will risk alienating sizable political groups. If he goes along with letting Congress dismiss Sukarno, he risks an explosion from increasingly restless pro-Sukarno elements.

The 65-year-old Sukarno ruled for 21 years as a near-god. His words, if ever issued, could call literally millions of peasants to his defense.

Marines and police elements in east and central Java, heartland of support for the embattled president, still lean toward Sukarno.

Some elements are hoping Sukarno will leave the country. But Cabinet sources say he has made it clear he won't.

"He is totally unpredictable. He could say that today he will stay and tomorrow change his mind," one source close to the ministers said.

Promise Given

Several high-level political sources here believe Suharto has already given Sukarno a promise that he will not be dismissed by Congress, possibly because a dismissal could disrupt the delicate balance of power.

Or a dismissal could lead to a trial of Sukarno on charges of Communist conspiracies. Military and Congress hawks are pushing hard for this.

Newhouse Buys Cleveland Paper For $50 Million

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Samuel I. Newhouse has purchased the Cleveland Plain Dealer — reportedly for $50 million, the highest price paid for a single newspaper in the history of American journalism.

The short and peppery 72-year-old Newhouse now has 22 newspapers coast to coast, counting morning and evening papers in the same city separately but not counting Sunday editions. Their total circulation is about 3.3 million.

The Plain Dealer — Ohio's largest morning paper with a circulation of 377,089 on weekdays and 526,401 on Sundays — is now the largest in the Newhouse newspaper group.

Mountain Ordeal Ends for 2 Students

Hunger, Cold For 2 Weeks in Baja California

SAN FELIPE, Mexico (AP) — A college student and his bride-to-be, rescued after a two week ordeal of hunger and cold on a desolate Baja California peak, attribute their survival to skill, determination — and a mountain rescue specialist.

"We never panicked. We've both had lots of mountain climbing experience," Miss Eleanor Dart, 20, said Thursday.

And she said that she and Ogden Kellogg Jr., 21, plan to be married.

"We had been talking about it before, but he asked me to marry him while we were on the mountain and I agreed. We don't know when it will be, but we have marriage plans," she said.

Daring Rescue

Kellogg was brought down from the 7,200-foot level of Mt. Diablo late Thursday in a daring helicopter rescue in semi-darkness.

Mountain rescue teams from the San Diego and Los Angeles areas lifted him by rope up a 250-foot cliff from a ledge where he had been trapped since about mid-February.

The helicopter took him to the base camp near the foot of the peak, about 160 miles south of San Diego, Calif., where he had an emotional reunion with Miss Dart.

She was found Wednesday in a canyon on the mountain slopes, and said she last heard Kellogg calling from the ledge about five days before.

"Then I didn't hear any more and I didn't know if he was alive or dead," she said. "I'm so glad he is safe."

Ready to Descend

Miss Dart and Kellogg reached the top of the mountain after about five days and were ready to descend when "the wind blew for two days and it was too cold to travel."

"We just stayed in the sleep-

Military Authority

Some of Lin's Duties Being Done by Chou

TOKYO (AP) — Premier Chou En-lai's star rose higher over turbulent Red China today with an indication from Peking that Mao Tse-tung has given him some of the military authority of Defense Minister Lin Piao.

The Maoist-controlled New China News Agency reported that Chou spoke at a Red Guard rally Feb. 22 on behalf of Mao, Lin and the Communist Party central committee's military affairs commission, the country's supreme military body.

Chou has not been listed as a member of the commission, which Mao heads with Lin as its active director. Continuing reports of agitation against units of the 2.5-million-man Chinese army may have prompted Mao to name Chou to the military commission. As a vice chairman of it, he would be empowered to issue orders to the army, which Lin presumably has not been able to do for some unexplained reason.

Still No. 2

However, the Peking report made clear that Lin is still No. 2 to Mao, referring to him as Mao's "close comrade-in-arms," a distinction accorded no one else.

Lin, who suffers periodically from tuberculosis, has not been reported seen in Peking since last November.

There have been unconfirmed but persistent reports of army rebellion against Mao in Tibet, Sinkiang, Inner Mongolia and Szechuan Province.

Domestic radio broadcasts made available in Tokyo today told of agitation against and resistance to the army — presumably by supporters of President Liu Shao-chi — in the Manchurian city of Changchun and the city of Tsinan, in Shantung Province.

Other domestic broadcasts from Kweichow Province, which the Maoists claim to have seized, and from Yunnan Province next to North Vietnam pointed up the existence of more trouble in rural areas where spring planting is under way.

Undersheriff 'Impatient' Over Salary

Spice Asks for Decision to Make Plans for Future

Outagamie County Undersheriff Calvin L. Spice is still drawing $577 a month — the lowest possible salary in his designated pay grade — and he indicated Thursday afternoon that he is growing impatient with county supervisors' indecision over whether to raise it or leave it as it is.

Spice, who appeared briefly at the county board's law enforcement committee meeting, inquired about the status of action on his salary — a matter that has been kicked from committee to committee since the executive committee voted Jan. 4 to set it at the bottom of grade 19.

Spice, who served four years as sheriff, 11 years as county traffic patrolman, and five years on the Kaukauna police force, said he was asking the committee about his salary, "so I will know where I stand," and "... so I will know what plans I should make for the future."

First Indication

It was the first indication from Spice that he might consider other employment if his salary is not raised. Under pay grade 19, he could receive up to $732 monthly.

Appleton Supv. George Greisch, committee chairman, told Spice he "wants to do some checking" on the salary matter. Greisch, who this week was released from a hospital after a two-month stay, indicated he has not been able to study the matter thoroughly. He said he will report to his committee.

Sheriff Norbert Marx submitted a letter to the law enforcement committee Thursday asking for action on Spice's salary. Some members of the law enforcement committee have attempted unsuccessfully to get the executive committee to reconsider its action on the salary.

It was learned Thursday that the law enforcement committee received a letter from Village of Shiocton officials, suggesting that "... a salary schedule be assigned to the undersheriff, commensurate with his past experience as a law enforcement officer." The letter stated that the matter of Spice's salary was brought up at a February village board meeting.

The letter to the committee, through Appleton Supv. John R. Schreiter, former chairman of the committee, was drafted following unanimous approval of the formal motion.

Judge Dismisses Move to Block Outagamie Site Suit

Says Clarification Unnecessary; Importance of Case Stressed

Post Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Dane County Circuit Court Judge Edwin Wilkie Thursday dismissed a motion by the state to force Outagamie County to make clear the nature of its complaints brought in a suit to void the selection of the Shorewood golf course site of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay.

The motions, brought against state officials involved in the decision and those charged with releasing money for the construction of the school, are sufficiently clear to allow the case to proceed, he ruled immediately following the presentation of the motion and arguments.

In making his ruling, Wilkie commented that the case is so important to all of the state that it should be brought to trial as soon as possible.

'Frivolous' Suit

He stopped short of agreeing with special counsel for Outagamie County, Stewart Honeck, in saying that the latest state motion was "frivolous," however.

Wilkie made his decision after hearing the arguments, and prefaced his ruling with comments regarding his philosophy that too many courts are allowing cases to be delayed while purely technical matters are decided during the legal process.

The points raised by the state are of a nature which should be deliberated during a pretrial conference between the contending parties, he said, and not in separate motions before the case actually begins.

The state argued that Outagamie County and the individual taxpayers bringing suit against state officials had not made their complaints sufficiently clear as to allow the trial to proceed.

Secrecy Questioned

In the complaints, the county had charged that the actual site selection was made in "secret" sessions of the statutory site selection committee, and that the criteria for the selection of the site of the UW branch campus had been changed after adoption.

Brown County forces had been informed of these changes and of the actual site selection before it was made public, the Outagamie forces charged.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Charles Bleck asked Wilkie to order the attorneys for the county to specify exactly what is meant by "secret" sessions of the site selection committee.

The state's anti-secrecy statute deals with "closed" sessions, he pointed out, and does not attempt to contend with allegedly "secret" meetings.

Asks Clarification

What are the duties of participants in "closed" or "secret" meetings to the public and interested parties, he asked, and how did the actions of the site selection committee violate those provisions.

Who was involved in the alleged "secret" sessions, where and when did they take place, and were any decisions reached, he asked.

Bleck said the motion was not frivolous, but the case is of special importance because it is the first to raise such questions under the state's anti-secrecy law. Great care must be taken in bringing the questions to trial, he said.

Change Defendants

Wilkie ruled that the questions were not proper matter for pretrial motions, and should be dealt with at the time of the trial. Most of the answers to the questions, he agreed with Honeck, rest with the state defendants to the suit and not with the Outagamie County plaintiffs, he said.

Wilkie also allowed the attorneys for the contending sides to substitute two new state officials for two former legislators defeated last fall.

Angelo Greco and Frank Nikolay, former Democratic Assemblymen from Milwaukee and Abbotsford, were members of the state building commission and were named as defendants in the original suit.

Substituted were two new Assembly members of the Commission, Robert Kordus, D-Milwaukee and Harvey Gee, R-Wisconsin Rapids.

Manpower Sunday Set At Lutheran Parishes

KIMBERLY — Manpower Sunday will be observed by most of the Wisconsin Lutheran Synod Churches Sunday with pastors to speak on the topic, "'Go Ye' — Then and Now'."

Special hymn written for the service is entitled, "A Royal Priesthood, Here We Stand." Inserts have been prepared and will be included in bulletins for three consecutive Sundays asking those who feel they have a calling to the ministry or teaching profession to step forward and be heard.

Although synod educational institutions are experiencing record enrollments, the need for additional teachers and pastors is acute, thus special Sundays have been set aside each year for five years to encourage young people in vocations, the pastors said.

Sheriff Asks For Deputy

'Extra Man' Would Serve All Units as Vacation Relief

The Outagamie County Board's law enforcement committee Thursday morning moved to refer to the personnel committee a request by Sheriff Norbert Marx for a deputy sheriff to serve as "an extra man."

Marx said he was making the request after conferring with Board Chairman Sylvester Esler.

The sheriff said the man would work as substitute in each of the sheriff department bureaus during vacations and when regular men assigned to those jobs are ill. The extra man, as Marx termed him, would be trained in all phases of police work. Marx suggested the man be placed in pay grade 14.

The present full-time men, or specially-retained part-time personnel, now are hired to fill in during vacation periods, Marx said. He explained that part-time men no longer can be found and the full-time men have had to work too much overtime when they have had to fill in.

The personnel committee will meet next week.

In other action this morning, the law enforcement committee recommended steps be taken to hire a traffic patrolman to bring the traffic bureau up to the full 17-man strength, and approved the permanent appointment of George Hanlon as a sheriff's investigator. Hanlon successfully completed his probationary period, Marx said.

$19,230 Allocated for Manawa, Waupaca Parks

Claim Loss of $236,000 if Site Is Sold

Legislature Told Of Possible Effects Of Lorge Bill

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — It will cost the state $236,000 if Sen. Gerald Lorge's bill to allow the sale of the Shorewood site of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay is enacted into law, the legislature has been told.

In an official fiscal note prepared by the State Department of Administration, the cost-estimate was based on a purchase price of $523,900 for property already obtained for the campus location, a projected loss of $26,195 to the county through the sale of the land through public auction, $10,000 in consultant's fees, and planning costs of $200,000.

Exclude Land

But excluded from the fiscal note is all consideration of the cost of a major part of the proposed property for the campus, including the Shorewood golf course, land which has a reported appraisal price of between $1 million and $2 million. Addition of possible losses to the county from the sale of this land, after purchase, would drastically alter the fiscal impact of the bill on the state.

Under the proposal, all costs incurred by the county in the purchase of the land, and not regained through sale at public auction, would be repaid from the state treasury.

Interest also would be paid by the state on such funds lost to the county.

Hire Firm

The special site selection firm, according to the bill, would be an out-of-state consulting firm which would have specific instructions to exclude the Shorewood site from consideration.

Under the provisions of the Lorge bill, the county could request the sale of the land by the state at any time. The bill also specifies that such procedures will be followed if a pending court case to void the Shorewood site is won by Outagamie County forces who have argued that it is too remote to provide commuter - education opportunities for students from the southern Fox River Valley.

3 Boys Blamed For Fire Which Destroyed Barn

Fire Feb. 12 that destroyed a large barn and about 100 tons of hay on the Wilfred Van Handel farm south of Kimberly apparently was started by three youngsters, according to State Fire Marshal Earl Schwabe of Green Bay.

Schwabe and Outagamie County investigators concluded their study of the case Wednesday afternoon, it was learned.

The boys reportedly had started a fire in the barn earlier in the day, but thought they had extinguished the fire with snow. However, it apparently flared up early in the evening and totally destroyed the barn and its contents, authorities said.

The boys, whom authorities said started the fire, "unintentionally," included two 11-year-olds from Kimberly and a 12-year-old route 4, Appleton boy.

Bright Red Envelopes to Herald Unpaid Water Bills

WAUPACA — In a drive to reduce the number of delinquent water bills the city will start sending out cutoff notices in bright red envelopes.

The idea is to discourage persons from not paying their water bill until it is necessary to stop service, Mrs. Harriett Ward, city clerk said.

A 20-day notice will be sent informing the customer of the unpaid water bill. The first notice will be sent in a plain envelope but the five-day disconnect notice will be sent in a red envelope, she said. After the five-day notice and the bill still has not been paid or payment arrangements made the service will be disconnected without any further notice, Mrs. Ward said.

The notice and cutoff regulation has the approval of the Public Service Commission and has been a city ordinance since 1960 but it has not been strictly enforced until now, she added.

The first red envelopes will be mailed March 9, she said.

County Committee Closes Meeting to News Coverage

A secret meeting was conducted Thursday morning by the health, education and institutions committee of the Outagamie County Board.

Supv. Russell DeLaHunt (Kaukauna), committee chairman, requested that a Post-Crescent reporter leave the meeting "since personalities will be discussed."

The reporter refused to leave, citing Wisconsin government anti-secrecy laws, so DeLaHunt asked the committee for a unanimous vote so that it might go into executive session. Supv. Merritt T. Kavanaugh (Kaukauna) made the motion that the committee go into executive session and it was passed unanimously.

The secret meeting of the committee apparently involved Outagamie County Hospital matters since two members of the hospital board of trustees were present.

Attending the meeting from the board of trustees were Lloyd F. Taylor and Erich C. Wussow, both of Appleton.

Members of the health, education and institutions committee present, in addition to DeLaHunt and Kavanaugh, were Supvs. Eugene Kloes, Herbert H. Helble and Arnold Welch, all of Appleton.

The talk will deal with the responsibility of parents to inform their children about the facts of life. Since it is felt this subject is of major importance, the meeting is open to all adults of the parish. Both speakers have frequently addressed area meetings on subjects of interest to parents.

Mothers of third grade students under the direction of Mrs. Richard Giordana and Mrs. Daniel Voet will have charge of the social.

Mill Pond To Become Play Area

A total of $19,230 in federal money has been allocated for recreational land development in Waupaca County, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said Thursday.

The grants include $10,387 to the City of Manawa and $8,843 to the State of Wisconsin to use in additional construction of camping facilities at Hartman Creek State Park, four miles west of Waupaca.

The money is from a fund established two years ago to receive fees paid at national parks and other federal sites, and is part of a $71,642 grant to 10 Wisconsin communities.

Confirmation Received

Alvin A. Handrich, Manawa Park and Recreation Committee member, received confirmation of that city's grant by telegram today from 7th Dist. Rep. Melvin R. Laird, R-Marshfield.

Lowell Feathers, Manawa park and recreation committee chairman, said the funds will be used to further develop the City of Manawa park on the mill pond, and the area known as "The Polliwog" at the east entrance to the city.

The city park area is being developed for swimming, boating, fishing and ice skating to provide year - round recreation facilities. The beach has already been leveled, and permission has been obtained from the Public Service Commission to bring in additional sand to finish the beach area. The road has been built and graveled.

Additional Aid

The additional money will help carry out plans to construct a bathhouse which will include changing areas and showers, install picnic tables and grills and build a parking lot. There will also be moorings for boats on the pond.

"The Polliwog," approximately 3½ acres, will be developed mainly as a winter recreation area. A small lake at the site has been dredged and brush cleared from the hills. Although major plans are for skiing, sledding, tobogganing and ice skating, there will be a picnic area for summer use.

The Waupaca park money is allocated for the campground. Hartman Creek Park opened in July, 1966 with 34 campsites ready in a 100-campsite area.

Adjoining the campsite is a picnic area, part of which also was in use in 1966.

Youths from Mecan State Youth Camp, near Wautoma, have been working on the campsite for two years. When it is completed, along with extensive fishing and swimming facilities on three lakes, the state expects the 950-acre park to accommodate 10,000 persons a weekend.

Plans are to have one swimming beach ready for the 1967 summer season. One lake was opened for fishing last summer.

She is a member of the Christian Mothers Society of St. Mary Catholic Church, the Catholic War Veterans Society and the Knights of Columbus Auxiliary Council 4302.

Mrs. Malliet is also a member of the Telephone Pioneers of America, a social - service organization of telephone workers with 21 years or more of service.

Her husband, James, recently retired from Allis-Chalmers, Appleton, after 20 years of service. The couple has five children and 26 grandchildren.

Hydrologist to Study Outagamie Health, Sanitary Needs

Wolf Planners Agree to Survey for County

Outagamie County Thursday entered into an agreement with the Wolf River Basin Regional Planning Commission on a reconnaissance survey of the health and sanitary needs of the county.

The survey will be conducted by a hydrologist who will join the commission staff later this month.

The study, which is not intended to be an "in-depth study," will be undertaken at no cost to the county, according to commission executive director William E. Morris, "because such a study is related to the overall objectives of the commission."

Morris, who attended Thursday's meeting of the county board's health, education and institutions committee, said in a letter to county executive secretary Alvin Woehler that he has "received a letter from the hydrologist indicating he is agreeable to conducting such a study."

The committee, in past meetings, has discussed the possibility that the county hire a full-time sanitarian who would perform such duties as the survey. However, Corporation Counsel A. W. Ponath advised the committee that a county cannot legally hire a sanitarian. A Wisconsin Board of Health representative, who was attending today's meeting, questioned Ponath's ruling.

In his letter to the committee, Morris said "sanitation is another field and it requires special training of which he (the hydrologist) has limited knowledge, but no practical experience. I do agree with him when he says his engagement with the commission will afford him this experience. He concludes by saying he should be considered qualified and is most agreeable to conducting the investigation . . ."

The hydrologist will meet with the health, education and institutions committee in April to discuss the scope and range of the study.

Morris said, in his letter, that the survey would require 10 work days.

The formal request for the study to begin will be made in a letter to the commission, signed by members of the health committee.

The county has been under pressure in recent years to conduct such a survey, with particular emphasis on the Town of Oneida where Menominee Indians live in what have been called poverty conditions. The League of Women Voters has been in the forefront in pressuring for such a survey.

Amherst Youth Arraigned on New Charge

Claim Kealiher Contributed to Delinquency

WAUPACA — David E. Kealiher, 19, route 1, Amherst, who is being held in the county jail on charges of attempted armed robbery of the First National Bank and armed robbery of a Waupaca service station, Thursday was arraigned in Municipal Justice Court on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

He was taken into court after sheriff's department officials discovered a warrant in their files dating back to Jan. 12, 1966. The warrant alleges that Kealiher contributed to the delinquency of a 16-year-old Waupaca youth. It was later learned that early in 1966 Kealiher and the Waupaca youth left Waupaca and went to Arizona. The warrant was issued after parents of the minor complained to authorities that their son accompanied Kealiher without their permission.

Kealiher was bound over to County Court for trial on the charge and Municipal Justice George Whalen set bond at $500. Kealiher is being held in lieu of a $15,000 bond on the robbery charges.

No Penalties For Mailed Tax Payments

Clerk Announces Waupaca Deadlines For Part Payments

WAUPACA — Any real estate tax payments received this week by mail will not be considered delinquent and no penalty will be charged, Mrs. Harriett Ward, city clerk-treasurer said Thursday.

Feb. 28 was the deadline for the payment of real estate and personal property taxes in Waupaca.

Taxpayers who have not paid their taxes must now make their payments to the county treasurer and an interest rate of 8 per cent per month will be charged from Jan. 1 until they are paid, Mrs. Ward said.

Partial Payments

The Feb. 28 deadline does not apply to those taxpayers who made arrangements to make partial payments. The deadline for the first payment was Jan. 31 and the next payment must be made by July 1.

Of the more than 1,673 property owners in the city, 310 took advantage of the delayed tax payment arrangement this year, Mrs. Ward said. The total amount of taxes still due from those taxpayers who are paying their real estate taxes on the delayed payment program is $47,363, she said

Because payments are still being received through the mail, it is not known what amount of the 1966 taxes will be classed as delinquent, she said.

Expansion of Sheriff Area Is Stymied

Property Committee Votes 3-2 Against Remodeled Quarters

By a 3-2 vote Thursday afternoon, the Outagamie County Board's public property committee stymied expansion of sheriff department quarters on the first floor of the courthouse.

The vote was called on plans prepared by an Appleton architectural firm for expansion of the sheriff's department into quarters recently vacated with the relocation of state probation and parole department facilities.

Voting against the plan were Supvs. Patrick Mares, Arthur Hoolihan, and Bernard Tillman. Supvs. Andrew Jimos and Waldemar Klein voted for the project.

Indications were another attempt will be made to win committee or board approval.

Office Space

Architectural plans provided for expansion to include office space for investigators, investigation lieutenant, juvenile officer, sheriff, undersheriff, traffic lieutenant, and traffic sergeant. Also included were space for a squad room, main office, interrogation and storage.

The proposed remodeling of former state probation office quarters would cost about $3,500, supervisors were told. The space has been vacant since the probation office was moved across the first floor hall to larger quarters last year.

The vacant quarters under consideration are immediately south of the sheriff's office. Plans called for knocking out part of the wall separating the sheriff's office from the vacant quarters.

Although public property committee members were meeting alone when they made the decision, members of the board's law enforcement unit, meeting elsewhere in the courthouse, went to the property committee session and requested reconsideration.

Piecemeal Remodelling

Sheriff Norbert Marx said "the sheriff's department cannot operate more effectively unless more room is made available." He said one of the biggest needs is for an interrogation room.

Supv. Emil Diestler of Hortonville, vice chairman of the law enforcement committee, urged the property unit to reconsider its action, explaining more space is needed because the sheriff's department is getting larger in number.

Mares, an Appleton supervisor and vice chairman of the property committee, said he does not want to see "piecemeal" remodeling of the courthouse. He indicated that if the sheriff department remodeling were part of an overall courthouse plan, he would "go for it."

Pravda Claims CIA Recruiting Student Spies

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda has charged that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency has used American exchange students in the Soviet Union for espionage work.

The CIA "would like to replace the lofty cause of cultural and scientific exchange with the dirty cause of espionage," said a long article in the Soviet Communist Party paper.

"Of course," Pravda said, "far from all American scientists and students who arrive in the Soviet Union are professional agents of U.S. intelligence or are 'volunteers' who took upon themselves the fulfillment of espionage functions.

"But one has to take into consideration that the CIA tries by any means to involve in espionage work as many American students studying in the Soviet Union as possible."

Practical Electric Car Still 10 Years Away, Report Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government experts said recently that the electric automobile may soon be practical for short haul trips.

But when the family wants to hit the road for several hundred miles at expressway speed they will still need their gasoline driven car.

This was the gist of a Federal Power Commission staff study made at the request of the Senate Commerce Committee, which is concerned about air pollution.

In sending the study to Chairman Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., FPC Chairman Lee C. White said "we found that the technology for limited range electric battery-powered vehicles exists today," although the report itself estimated it would take about 10 years to develop, test and tool up for mass production of acceptable short-distance vehicles.

Objections Lifted on Industry Relocation To Greenville Site

Resolution Defeated Censuring County Corporation's Proposal

The Outagamie County Industrial Corp. won a major victory Wednesday night when the Appleton Council decided not to object to the group's proposal to relocate a local industry in Greenville.

By a 15 to 5 vote the council voted down a resolution, recommended Tuesday by the city attorney and board of public works which would have filed official objection to the corporation's plan.

According to law, the city had 45 days in which to object to the corporation's plan to assist the Wisconsin Wire Works in building a new plant in the Town of Greenville. The deadline for council action would have been Friday.

Original Stand

The board of public works had taken its original stand after it was agreed a new city industrial development committee should be appointed, and that an objection should be registered to relocating Appleton industries outside the city.

Walter Rugland, president of Aid Association for Lutherans and head of the County Industrial Development Corp., urged aldermen not to object to the Wisconsin Wire Works transaction.

He said the corporation, formed of Chamber of Commerce and Outagamie County officials, was organized to serve the entire county and the City of Appleton, too.

Rugland said the purpose of the corporation was to help firms with financing at lower than regular rates, thus encouraging them to stay or locate in the county.

The city, according to Rugland, was approached last summer by the Wisconsin Wire Works which wanted to buy some property on the southside in an area being proposed as an industrial site by a realtor.

City officials, according to Rugland, told the firm it could not extend municipal utilities when they would be required so the firm started looking outside the city.

Anxious to Help

Rugland said the corporation could not tell industries where to locate in the county but that his group was anxious to help the city and was "not out to pirate any industries from the city."

"I urgently ask you to vote against this resolution," Rugland declared, adding that it would create problems, along with creating an image that a city versus county feud existed.

Rugland said if the council did not want to vote to defeat the resolution, it should refer it back for further study. Under the latter the 45-day objection period would have automatically expired.

Asks Cooperation

At one point, Ald. Roy Pointer (14th), council president, suggested that if the Outagamie County group would withdraw its notice for the time being, the city would then be in a position to withdrawn any objections.

However, Rugland said he did not have any authority to make a withdrawal.

At one point, both Alds. John MacDonald (7th) and George Schwartzbauer (10th), who opposed the resolution and sided with Rugland's group, considered asking for an automatic referral.

Schwartzbauer said he would not want to see the county group proceed through default (automatic referral of the resolution back to the board of public works) and he feared Wisconsin Wire Works might move out of the state if it did not build on the site selected out in the county. Schwartzbauer said the area would then lose jobs.

Consider Appleton Sites

During a question period, Rugland emphasized his group was not working for locating industry in any given area. He said Appleton sites would be given consideration as well as those around the city out in the county.

Ald. Glenn Thompson (13th) told the council it should adopt the resolution objecting to the county group's action, and said machinery had been established in recent weeks to make land in the city available to Wisconsin Wire Works.

"I would like to have the opportunity to sell them (Wire Works) on staying in the City of Appleton," Thompson declared.

Resolution Opposed

MacDonald, who said he strenuously opposed the resolution, told the council he didn't want to serve on any city industrial committee "If this is the way you're going to treat industry."

Referring to the drafting of the resolution and recommendation of the attorney and board of public works, MacDonald declared, "I think it is a spiteful act and the delay in bringing this to the council at this time was deliberate."

Pointer injected that he, as an alderman, wanted to "sell the City of Appleton first to any and all industries."

And Ald. Clifford Radder (16th) remarked, "If the county corporation is interested in the city — then why wasn't the City of Appleton chosen as the site for the new plant?"

City Forgotten

"It looks like Mr. Rugland and his associates have forgotten the city and gone out to help only the county," Radder added.

Both Alds. Walter Kalata (2nd) and Norman Beyer (20th) said they thought the resolution should be defeated, claiming it would then set the stage for "a fresh start" to work with the county, and get industry into Appleton.

"We have to get along with the county," Beyer, a former county board member, added.

Five Approve

A two-thirds vote of the council was needed to adopt the resolution. It received only five affirmative votes while 15 were cast against it.

The state law which permits corporations such as the Outagamie County Industrial Development Corp. to operate has a clause which says that any industrial development agency is prohibited from entering into a transaction which results in moving a plant from a municipality to another location in the county, unless the municipality waives objection.

No information was given on the status of the plant relocation or reports of other plants locating in the Town of Greenville, an area selected for development of an industrial park by the county corporation.

There may be further trouble ahead for the corporation, depending on what attitude the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) takes. The IRS has been ruling against such corporations, declaring their projects are not entitled to tax-exempt privileges. A court test involving a similiar Milwaukee County development group is pending.

In other action, Mayor George Buckley appointed the following aldermen to the city's new industrial development committee: MacDonald, Kalata, Beyer, John Steidl (19th) and Al Stoegbauer (4th).

Perjury Count Filed Against Appleton Man

Involved Earlier In Beating Case; Chicagoan Cleared

A perjury charge was brought against a 20-year-old state reformatory inmate and two charges were dropped against a Chicago man this morning in the case of the beating of an 80-year-old Appleton woman in her home Oct. 21.

The perjury charge was brought against Roland L. Roberts, 916 W. Winnebago St., who originally was charged with aggravated battery in connection with the beating of his former landlady, Mrs. Clara Gipp.

However, the battery count was dismissed Feb. 8 at the request of the district attorney's office after Roberts was given a series of lie detector tests at Green Bay. He did, however, plead guilty to a theft charge brought in connection with the taking of $13 from Mrs. Gipp's purse Oct. 21.

On Feb. 9, a John Doe hearing was held before Judge Gustave J. Keller. It was partially on the basis of the hearing that a warrant was issued for Robert J. Hein, 25, formerly of Appleton and now living in Chicago, charging Hein with aggravated battery and theft in the Gipp case. Authorities alleged he was Robert's companion in the Oct. 21 incident.

Roberts and Mrs. Gipp testified at the John Doe hearing, it was learned.

Hein was arraigned Feb. 17 in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 and was placed in the jail in lieu of posting a $2,500 bond set by Judge Keller. On Feb. 21, Hein's attorney, Allen Cain, asked for a preliminary hearing which had been set for this morning.

Hein has been in jail since Feb. 17. He was brought here from Chicago on that day after he waived extradition.

Richard Hamilton, assitant district attorney, said today, in asking for dismissal of the charges, that it was learned Hein was working in Chicago at the time the alleged beating of Mrs. Gipp occurred.

Hamilton explained that his office contacted Chicago authorities and "received sufficient verification that Hein was at work during the time of the alleged crime," which reportedly occurred about 6:30 or 7 p.m. Oct. 21.

Hein reportedly was working the 4 p.m. to midnight shift on that day.

The complaint prepared this morning by the district attorney's office, alleges that Roberts, who now is serving a term on parole revocation at the Green Bay reformatory, perjured himself at the John Doe hearing by stating that Hein was with him at the Gipp home.

This morning's complaint and warrant were issued after a conference with Appleton detectives, who have been investigating the case.

Good Old Hash

Any modern woman today can prepare a casserole dish that will leave you wondering. But the real test of her cooking skill is whether she can come up with a good plate of honest hash that leaves you feeling grateful.

Show me a guy under 30 who has his fingernails done by a manicurist, and I'll show you a guy that will never keep any woman happy for long.

Any day in summer you can see sailors rowing their girls in Central Park Lake. But here's $1 to $18 you'll never see an admiral in a boat there.

Nothing turns a bachelor more against marriage than seeing a wife in the office anteroom on payday waiting to pick up her husband's check before he can cash it himself.

Ask an old man what is the best age to be, and he'll generally say "25." Ask an old woman the same question, and she'll say, "20."

The quickest way for a boss to cut down on the number of interoffice romances would be for him to issue an order that all secretaries must show up for work wearing hair curlers.

The Draft Must be Improved

The Selective Service Act expires next summer and two committees have been working on recommendations for changes. The present provisions seem to emphasize rather than minimize the inequalities which are bound to exist unless an absolute universal military training program is put into effect.

President Johnson last year appointed a committee to study the matter and its recommendations have gone to the White House but have not yet been made public. Last November the House Armed Services Committee also appointed a group, headed by retired General Mark Clark, and this committee's suggestions have now been released.

The major change and one that is expected to be recommended by the President's committee as well, is that the younger men classified as 1-A would be drafted first. At present local boards must take those who are the closest to the cut off age of 26. From the practical point of view, this would encourage military service after high school graduation and before a young man had put in much time at a particular employment. It would also be more likely to catch him before he had marital responsibilities. It would also be more equitable in that now those who marry young and father children are exempt while the longer remaining bachelor is not.

The recommendations would continue college deferment but only until graduation. Graduate students would not be deferred except for certain studies. We must suspect today that a lot of the "perpetual" students continue at their classes to try to beat the draft rather than because they are seriously interested either in education or improving their future employment opportunities. Those deferred as college students would also forfeit the right to be deferred at a later time because of marriage or fatherhood.

The House committee "flatly rejected" the idea of a lottery among those classified as 1-A. Here may be the biggest area for future Congressional debate.

There is something uncomfortable about the recommendation to take the younger men, those 18, 19, or 20, too young to vote, in some places too young to be served an alcoholic drink. They are more pliable, in all likelihood, than those in the mid-twenties. They are agile, strong, at a peak of physical ability. But the need for them belies the idea that ours is a largely citizen army, representing the dedication of the mass of American manhood to the ideals of liberty, justice and the need to defend them. At this time in our history our military forces are largely professionally run but they need underlings and the upper teen-age boy is a better subject than the mid-twenties man.

Considering the situation in which we are in Vietnam and our other massive commitments around the world, there seems to be no alternative. But how many of our ancestors left their homes to escape serving in military forces of European countries obsessed with maintaining their place in the sun?

Except for the war in Vietnam, military service actually is an opportunity for a lot of American men to be trained for careers at a minimum cost to themselves, to mature and perhaps to appreciate civilian life. When the Selective Service Act is revised this year it must close the escape hatches for the privileged, the wealthy and those who know people in the right places. Such inequalities are far more dangerous to our principles than even the opposition to the Vietnamese war.

The Farm Bureau Leads

The Wisconsin Farm Bureau Federation has long been recognized as the most progressive as well as the largest and most influential of the various farm organizations in the state. That such a reputation is deserved was illustrated again recently when the Federation announced it was dropping its long-standing opposition to the sale of colored oleomargarine in the state.

The announcement represented not so much a major change in policy as it did a tactical recognition of the probability that repeal of the state prohibition against colored oleo will be adopted at this session of the legislature. "We're being realistic," is the way the Federation spokesman put it.

The Federation will now work for some restrictions in the legislative act of repeal which will benefit butter producers. Their demands will include labelling and packaging of oleomargarine to meet federal standards, insistence that public eating places inform customers that they are being served oleomargarine, and continued use of butter in state institutions. The chances are that because of the Federation's stand legislators will seek to accommodate them on some of these points.

Meanwhile the Federation is being subjected to public and private abuse from other farm organizations which adamantly stick with their traditional stands on this matter. The purpose of this editorial is to compliment the Federation and to express the wish that the Farm Bureau in the future remain as willing to pioneer with new ideas in agricultural legislation.

The Second Miranda Case

Ernesto Miranda has been judged guilty by a jury in Phoenix, Ariz., of a four-year-old charge of rape. The verdict is a fact which must now be included in the national debate over whether recent United States Supreme Court rulings on the rights of defendants in criminal cases are placing an unnecessary hardship on the police and on the state in getting convictions.

Miranda's original conviction on the same charge was set aside in the landmark Supreme Court case which established the rule that a defendant's constitutional rights are violated if he is not informed of them formally before the police begin their questioning. Miranda's first conviction was based largely on a confession he made to police before being informed of his constitutional rights.

In the second trial, Judge Laurence Wren ruled that no evidence obtained after the confession could be admitted. The judge, however, allowed testimony from Miranda's common-law wife in which she said Miranda admitted to her during a jail visit that he had raped the girl as charged.

The jury deliberated less than an hour before bringing back the verdict of guilty. While no generalizations for other cases can be drawn from the guilty verdict against Miranda after a trial under the safeguards set down by the Supreme Court, the fact is that he was found guilty in a trial conducted under these rules.

As critics of the Supreme Court have pointed out, it is the professional criminal who is most likely to make use of the new rules of constitutional protection. It is a close question, but the second Miranda trial will strengthen the case for agreement with the Supreme Court that the rights of the individual must be the first consideration.

Taylor Writes

Now Is Time for Congress to Kill President's Tax Increase Request

BY HENRY J. TAYLOR

Time runs out on President Johnson in the recession question. White House insiders say the stock market upturn eased Washington's worries. But a leper's bell is warning us just the same.

Taylor

Congress should kill Mr. Johnson's tax increase pitch, and lift the suspense about this threat, at once.

At the same time we can take heart by putting the whole question of recessions into better perspective. We're entitled to stop thinking in terms of the Great Depression. Nothing, blessings be, is less realistic for the public to fear today or to serve as a basis for government counterplanning.

It was no more typical of America than the Alaskan earthquake.

First, the Great Depression was a world-wide depression. the Austrian Credit-Anstalt bank failure in Vienna marked the beginning of the financial collapse of all Central Europe. For innumerable reasons, this spread over there as relentlessly as a cancerous growth. European unemployment and business failures rose like bubbles of putrefaction in a muddy marsh.

The United States was the major nation affected. The politically partisan blame heaped on President Herbert Hoover was totally unjust and is one of the darkest chapters in our nation's book of political falsehood.

Mr. Hoover was no more responsible for the Great Depression than President Johnson caused the Alaskan earthquake. In fact, many of the most effective countermeasures to offset it were begun by President Hoover and the actual turn for the better (October, 1932) occurred while he was still in office.

The economic barometer fell more than 50 per cent in 1929-32. But the point to remember is that the Great Depression was totally unique in the entire economic experience of the United States.

26 RECESSIONS

In contrast, we've had at least 26 recessions. The longest (1873-79) lasted 65 months; the shortest (1919-20) only seven months. Consumer income actually advanced during the brief 1960-61 recession.

The Great Depression — a phenomenon totally apart — represents no pattern whatever.

Increased taxes mean increased prices. Yet the economy is already caught in a cost squeeze, producers and consumers alike. In addition, instead of the heralded labor peace, strikes in 1966 set a four-year record in work hours lost and 1967 threatens to break that record.

In spite of all the automation in American industry since 1961, output per man-hour is lower today than it was in 1361 or in any year since. President Johnson's own Department of Labor figures show this.

Labor costs per unit are rising rapidly. Labor efficiency is down. And when wages and prices leapfrog each other, as they are doing today, no one winds up ahead.

The results creep up on us like the changes that occur when you reach the serious defenses of a high mountain.

UNSOLD GOODS

A persistent slackening in consumer demand has piled up unsold goods. High inventories forecast a further lessening of production, payrolls, etc. This implies a drop in capital investment, because businesses no longer feel they just expand production at the previous rate. And what we've really seen from 1961 to mid-1966 is basically a capital-investment boom. That's been its essence. Plant investment increased an average 14 per cent a year. It has totalled about 70 per cent.

From 1961 through mid-1966 commercial bank loans and investments have risen about twice as fast as the Gross National Product in physical terms, if you strip off the increased prices. The output of durable goods has risen half again as fast as nondurable goods. Private debt has risen twice as fast as private income. And profits peaked out in the first quarter of 1966.

These and other features are characteristics of a fully developed business cycle and the warnings are as heedworthy as a leper's bell.

President Johnson is attacking the politics of this problem more than the problem itself. While so much talk is about military spendings as if we couldn't help these costs, nondefense spending has risen 9.2 per cent since 1961. Instead of cutting this spending on the basis of priorities, as Mr. Johnson should, nothing could more surely tilt the delicate balance toward recession, or guarantee its prospect under today's conditions, than to increase taxes.

Protests Use of Fish Flour, Milk Substitute

Editor, Post-Crescent:

To all good consumers: For several years dairy farmers have been fighting against an article called "fish flour." Fish, especially rough varieties not usually eaten, down to eels, seined from any waters, were taken, dumped into containers, and later emptied, (just as caught, no scaling or cleaning) into cookers. Pulverized and dried it was ready to market as Fish Flour. It could be used in bread, pastries, or as a part milk substitute, according to the manufacturers.

They claimed foreign countries would buy it, and it could be used here, chiefly by bakeries, because of being very cheap. Processing would remove disagreeable tastes. It was claimed to be O.K. as food because it was pasteurized by cooking. There are few dairy farmers compared to our total population so they lost the fight. Congress is allowing the product, and the Food and Drug division has accepted it as a "Pasteurized Product."

It is now left to you, as consumers, to accept or protest. Pure Food and Drug says it must be labeled. (Do you read all labels?) As a University Extension man told a group of city, urban, and farm people recently: "If people accept fish flour, farm inspection of milk should stop. It would make no difference what goes into the milk pail if it is pasteurized."

Magazines have publicized it: dairymen tried to stop it and lost. It is up to the other groups, individuals. Write or contact:

Wisconsin Report

Proxmire Endorses Idea of Open Primary Statute for Wisconsin

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — Sen. William Proxmire's forthright endorsement of the pending bill to reform the Wisconsin presidential primary law to make it an effective instrument of popular expression was apparently designed to prod the balky Democrats in the state senate.

Wyngaard

Perhaps because the Republican leadership in the legislature, as well as Gov. Knowles and Chairman Ody Fish of the Republican state organization, are pushing the revision of the quadrennial presidential primary. Democrats are suspicious and hostile. They have chosen to forget that the commission which produced the bill was in fact a bipartisan organization. Some of their own leaders endorsed its conclusion that the existing law, as the senior Wisconsin senator put it, often hinders rather than aids the people of Wisconsin in expressing themselves on presidential nominations.

THE GOAL IS CHOICE

The essence of the change proposed is that it would provide a reasonable assurance that the candidates who are actually running for presidential nomination in both parties will be on the Wisconsin ballot, and that the people of Wisconsin thereupon will have an opportunity to choose among them as they pick their convention delegates bound to support their choices.

Few men in Wisconsin have had the practical political exposure and convenience of the Wisconsin senator. He puts the case explicitly when he recalls that the last "presidential" primary in this state, three years ago was a "travesty" with the listing of a Wisconsin congressman, the incumbent governor, and the governor of Alabama as "candidates" for the presidency. It excluded all of the others who were known to be true candidates and were actively pursuing their campaigns.

"So the people of Wisconsin had no choice and no voice in determining who the parties would nominate in 1964," Sen. Proxmire says, truthfully enough.

"Again next year," he continues, "unless something like this bill is passed, the Democrats will in all likelihood not have the President of the United States on the ballot. They will have George Wallace of Alabama and some Wisconsin Democrat who is not a presidential candidate." (As a stand-in for President Johnson, the senator meant to convey.)

"The Republicans will not have Nixon or Romney or Reagan; but some non-candidate Wisconsin Republican," the senator predicts. All of which, he concludes, would be "an incredible distortion of the people's right to have a voice in the determination of the man who will be the most powerful figure in the world."

PUBLICITY VALUE

Parenthetically, there has been some criticism about the first draft of the primary law revision because it had asked for a later primary date than now provided. That would sacrifice some of the national and international publicity that Wisconsin has had because of its early date, among the states of the country, runs the complaint.

The dating of the election is a detail and is obviously not integral to the reform question. Chances are that the election day will be unchanged from the present law, if the legislature adopts the bill as a whole. Yet the objection is a puzzling one. Is there some special benefit to a man in Stevens Point because a Philadelphia political reporter writes about a Wisconsin primary. Or that he sees a tired politician on a windy Wisconsin street corner on national network television.

The publicity value of the Wisconsin primary obviously would be greater, as would the democratic interest be better served, if the Wisconsin primary results truthfully mirrored Wisconsin's early sentiments in a realistic test as provided by a listing of all the candidates. That is provided in the bill which would set up a commission to make an objective selection of the kind that Sen. Proxmire among many other serious students and leaders in public affairs has suggested.

The Art of Life Is Art of Combination

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Don't you imagine that if there were one single answer to the problem of human beings living together, that we would have long ago found it and applied it to the human society?

Harris

This is the question I always feel like asking the "single-minded" people who write to me with their definite recipes for curing our ills. These people have what someone has called "monocular vision" — they see through a glass eye darkly.

They fall into three principal groups — the religious-minded, the political-minded, and the psychological-minded. And none of these groups is very interested in what the others have to say.

What they fail to understand is the difference between the necessary and the sufficient. It is necessary to adopt an ethical viewpoint based on common religious beliefs — but it is not sufficient. It is necessary to evolve a poltical and social order of great flexibility and fairness — but it is not sufficient. It is necessary to have deeper insight into the emotional working of ourselves and others — but it is not sufficient.

The art of life — if we ever master it — is the art of combination. The single-minded people cannot see this; they remind one of the old fable about the different organs of the body arguing about which was the most essential — the lungs, the stomach, the liver, and so on.

Of course, in physiological terms, we know that it is the process that is most important — the interaction of the organs, the combinations, the dynamic relationships that obtain among them. Good medicine is always "holistic," in that it considers the entire person as a patient, and not just a part of him.

In the same way, the person as a social being cannot be considered in a religious vacuum, or a political vacuum, or a psychological vacuum. It is the ways in which the various aspects of his personality combine and function that determine what sort of person, and what sort of community, we shall have.

What is so hard about creating a good human society is not that we do not have the answers, but that everybody has a part of the answers, and thinks they are the whole. We will not combine our truths, modify our assumptions, integrate our world view into someone else's. For no error in the universe is so dangerous as a part-truth that is tenaciously held as a full truth.

Big Drain Caused By Tear Ducts of An Indian Maiden

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn. (AP) — The true source of the Mississippi River, nearby Lake Itasca, in northern Minnesota, was discovered and named by explorer Henry Schoolcraft in 1832. He combined the last two syllables of the Latin "veritas," meaning truth, with the first syllable of "caput," meaning head or source.

Chippewa legend, however, maintains that I-tesk-ka, daughter of Hiawatha, was carried away to the region of darkness by Chebiabol, ruler of the netherworld. Her tears, the Chippewa say, united with springs and rivulets to form the Mississippi.

Kennedy Twice Rebuked by Johnson in Day

President Avoids Appearance of Answering Address

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — It might have been just a presidential coincidence, but the timing was terrific.

There is no doubt Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., gets in President Johnson's hair with what he says on Vietnam. But, while earlier this year he must have made it look wind-blown, Thursday he blew a gale.

Yet before the day was over Kennedy, who might have had the front pages to himself, had to share them with Johnson who butted in not once but twice.

Earlier this year, while skipping around Western Europe, Kennedy got worldwide attention with some statements he made, like saying the next few weeks would be critical in the war.

Secret Talks

He was reported saying secret talks were going on But he said this wasn't what he had said. He said contacts were being made The White House said it knew nothing special about the next few weeks. And Johnson said he knew of no serious efforts by Hanoi to end the war.

Then, a sensation. Newsweek magazine must have rocked Johnson with a story saying Kennedy, while in Paris, got a peace-feeler from North Vietnam. Asked about it, Kennedy at first refused to comment.

Naturally, this raised a number of questions, one above all. Wouldn't it be strange if Kennedy could start the peace ball rolling and Johnson couldn't? Kennedy came home and saw Johnson.

After that get-together Kennedy said he hadn't brought any peace feeler. And more reports, unverified, said Johnson had bawled him out. Not long after that Kennedy let it be known he was preparing a major speech on Vietnam.

News Conference

Thursday was the day he chose to deliver it. He was a cinch to make front pages. Then something happened. Maybe it was only a coincidence. But Johnson suddenly called a news conference a few hours before Kennedy's talk.

Johnson quickly announced the Soviet Union, through Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, had agreed to discuss halting the arms race. This could have been the only reason for calling in the newsmen.

But one of them, and it was certainly a convenient time for Johnson to be asked the question, raised a point about peace with Vietnam. And Johnson at once made it clear there would be no let up in the pressure on Hanoi.

But Kennedy's whole speech was to be a proposal that U S bombing stop for a while to see if North Vietnam wanted to talk peace. Now Johnson had answered him before Kennedy could start. Was this just a coincidence?

Steal Spotlight

Later in the day a newsman told Johnson's press secretary, George Christian, "some suspicious people" wondered if Johnson had not called the news conference and made the war statement to take the play away from Kennedy.

Christian expressed innocence. And later in the day Kennedy made his speech but had hardly started before Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., a Johnson supporter on Vietnam, made public a letter from the President.

In the letter Johnson said the bombing had been effective and would continue Was this a coincidence, too? The timing couldn't have been better, from Johnson's viewpoint.

Exact Timing

Here he was throwing cold water on Kennedy's speech before Kennedy could finish it. Johnson's letter, dated March 1, reached Jackson at almost the moment when Kennedy began speaking.

Kennedy, it turned out, had sent a copy of his speech (before he made it) to the White House but Christian said Johnson hadn't seen it and that it was Jackson who made the decision on when to make the letter public.

Thus twice in one day Johnson answered Kennedy without anyone being able to say positively Johnson was replying to Kennedy at all. In fact, Christian said the White House would have no comment on Kennedy's speech.

peace," the 12 pages that followed were dotted with harsh words about American tactics in the Southeast Asian war.

It added up to a major expansion of the gap between the President and the senator, political heir to his brother, President John F. Kennedy.

"We should reach for the moment of promise which may have come," Kennedy told two dozen Senate colleagues and an audience that crowded the galleries. "The fact of the matter is that the bombing of the North can be stopped as a step toward peace without effectively weakening our position in the South."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., was Johnson's spokesman on the Senate floor. It was Jackson who made public, minutes after the Kennedy speech began, the President's letter praising, defending and standing firm on the air war in North Vietnam.

'Must Continue'

In that letter, Johnson said: "Both the reasons for — and the results of — the bombing of North Vietnam make it imperative that we continue to use this instrument of support for our men and our allies.

"It will end when the other side is willing to take equivalent action as part of a serious effort to end this war and bring peace to the people of Southeast Asia."

Jackson said Johnson wrote the letter in response to his request after a dinner conversation Feb. 18. The senator, a staunch administration ally in the Vietnam debate, said he asked that the President's position on the bombing be spelled out in one document.

Kennedy said a halt in the bombing would, "test the sincerity of the statement by (Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and others asserting that if the bombardment of the North is halted negotiations would begin."

Agreement Needed

The others:

He said the United States must make clear that there cannot be prolonged peace talks without an agreement that neither side shall substantially increase the size of the war in South Vietnam.

"An international group should be asked to inspect the borders and ports of the country to report any further escalation."

"And under the direction of the United Nations and with an international presence gradually replacing American forces, we should move toward a final settlement which allows all the major political forces in South Vietnam to participate in the choice of leadership and shape their future."

Rusk said such peace overtures have been tried in recent days without success

"Proposals substantially similar to those put forward by Sen Kennedy were explored prior to, during and since the Tet truce — all without results," he said

Tet was the Lunar New Year, and that holiday truce was accompanied by a six-day bombing pause which ended Feb. 13

"We encountered only hostile actions in response," Rusk said. "There is therefore no reason to believe at this time that Hanoi is interested in proposals for mutual de-escalation."

ing bags," Miss Dart said.

"We were running out of food and I was becoming weak from exposure, so we decided that Ogden would go for help."

She camped for several days alone, then began to work her way down, she said, "then I had to camp because I was too weak to go any further."

The next day Edward Bernhard, an experienced climber, found the girl where she had camped in a canyon. Brought out by helicopter she directed him to the area where she had last heard Kellogg's voice.

Bernhard, a member of the Sierra Club, found Kellogg Thursday morning, trapped on the ledge.

Kellogg, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Kellogg Sr. of Gold Hill, Ore., said he had fallen down the cliff soon after leaving Miss Dart.

"I was trapped on a snow ledge beside a waterfall and couldn't go up or down," he said. "I had only a little food with me. I was very hungry."

Kellogg was thin and bearded following the long ordeal.

Told that Miss Dart had heard his shouts and directed the searchers to him, Kellogg said, "That's wonderful."

Miss Dart, daughter of Dr. and Mrs Francis Dart of Eugene, Ore., commented, "Everything turned out just right. It's lucky we did what we did.

"We climbed Mt. Diablo and that's what we set out to do."

Senator Proposes Bill, Alters Mind

MADISON (AP) — A senator urged defeat of his own bill Thursday.

Colleagues agreed heartily as they shouted down the bill by Sen Norman Sussman, D-Milwaukee, to cut state income tax rates approximately in half for married couples.

Sussman said it was "just a little bill to do something for the poor people."

But he explained, he was calling for its defeat because tax experts figured the cost of the proposal to the state the next two years at $242 million.

Parachute Jumps Bring Traffic Jam

CEDAR FORT, Utah (AP) — A contingent of paratroopers of the Army's Special Forces parachuted into Utah Sunday near busy Highway 73, causing a two-hour traffic jam.

The 350 troopers, transported from Ft. Bragg, N.C., landed in snow-covered lowlands about 40 miles southwest of Salt Lake City to begin an unconventional training exercise called "Westward Ho 1."

The Utah Highway Patrol said the highway was clogged with about 600 cars whose drivers stopped to watch the troops jump from C130 troop transports.

U.S. and South Vietnamese troops in order to weaken their pacification efforts in the 1st Corps area, a region of traditional dissidence to the Saigon government.

Covering Force

The Red force in the rugged, jungled area in the western part of the demilitarized zone is also a covering force for the infiltration of men and supplies into the South.

Informed military sources said there has been no sign of any decrease in the flow of troops and supplies from the North.

The U.S. command admits that it has no reliable up to date figures but the U.S. military evaluation is that the flow remains whopping

The Communist supply system is directly supporting about 50,000 North Vietnamese troops in the South and providing much of the muscle for some 234,000 guerrillas.

Most of these troops are armed with Red Chinese and Soviet weapons.

Informed military officers believe that the Communists may well have slowed their buildup in the South at about the present level. However, they are "fleshing out" the military structure which they began building in 1965.

This "fleshing out" accounts for the difficulty in assessing the flow of supplies and manpower into the South.

Used to be Easy

One officer pointed out that in the early days of the Communist buildup it was fairly easy to detect the movement of complete units and assess their strength.

The Communists' present need is largely for replacements, ammunition and other supplies less easy for intelligence officers to weigh.

American planners in Saigon believe, however, that the movement is as large as it ever was, in terms of supplies if not manpower.

The U.S. Command in Saigon is evidently touchy about estimating publicly the flow of men and supplies into the South. This sensitivity has grown because of conflicting statements within the past few months in which Washington appeared to be casting doubt on the accuracy of figures in Saigon.

About 150 of the most seriously wounded villagers were taken to government and U.S. hospitals near the coast.

The worst previous accidental bombing of a government village occurred in the Mekong Delta when 63 civilians were killed and 33 wounded in Phuoc Dinh Province last Aug. 9 The worst reported disaster involving civilians happened on Christmas eve when a chartered four-engine cargo plane crashed into a civilian residential section near the Da Nang runway and killed 21 civilians.

The U.S. military was reported flying blankets, clothing and food to the villagers still in Lang Vei, which is 20 miles south of the frontier with North Vietnam. There has been heavy activity by infiltrating North Vietnamese troops in the area.

The U.S. command also announced that U.S. warships in the Gulf of Tonkin have begun bombarding surface-to-air missile sites in North Vietnam. The first attack was Thursday 13 miles north of Vinh, and the Navy reported a huge column of smoke over the missile site.

The Navy said the cruiser Canberra and two destroyers shelled a number of other targets including radar installations and antiaircraft batteries.

UW Queen Loses Leg in Accident

MADISON (AP) — Donna Schueler, 19, Madison coed recently named a University of Wisconsin beauty queen, suffered the loss of her left leg Wednesday after walking into the side of a city bus on University Ave.

Authorities said Miss Schueler had waited for one - way westbound traffic to pass, then crossed the street apparently unaware of an eastbound bus in a special lane.

been offered in the Assembly, and two others in the Senate.

"I can't promise what the bill will look like or if it will be recommended for passage, but I'll have a bill out," he said.

Nuttelman said he prefers reporting out only one bill which would be written by the committee and which would represent a consensus of views expressed at the public hearing.

He also said he favored a deadline, probably in five years, for eliminating any tax that might be levied on oleomargarine.

Of the nine repealers introduced in the legislature, five provide no tax. The levies on yellow oleo proposed in the other four would range from 3 cents to 10 cents a pound.

The uncolored product now is taxed at 15 cents a pound.

In order to soften the dairymen's defeat if the color ban is erased, Nuttelman said he was supporting a provision that would earmark funds for agricultural research.

He said he was especially interested in the construction of an agricultural research building at the University of Wisconsin.

Other have suggested any tax levied on colored oleo be allotted specifically for agriculture law enforcement, the state universities or the University of Wisconsin extension centers.

Heart Murmur Causes Woman Great Concern

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER M.D. M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is a heart murmur anything to be concerned about? I had a physical three years ago and the doctor said I had one but not to let it bother me.

A few days ago I read an article that said nausea and dizzy spells went along with a murmur, and I have been having them all the time but the doctor did not tell me this. Is it true? I am 39. — Mrs. E.G.

I can't make out from your letter whether you have a problem or just have the jitters over whatever you read.

If you were having dizzy spells and nausea all this time, I can't fathom why you didn't tell the doctor.

As to these symptoms necessarily being related to a heart murmur — no, that doesn't follow. A murmur means that the blood swirls through the heart in such a way as to make a distinctive sound which can be heard with a stethoscope.

A murmur may mean nothing; it may mean a great deal. It depends on what kind of a murmur it is, and where it is heard, and what other signs are present. While it is not impossible for nausea and dizziness to accompany some forms of heart disease, it is far more likely for these symptoms to occur from other causes.

If it's three years since your last physical, and you are 39, I have a suspicion that you are going to worry your head off unless you do the obvious thing: Go have another checkup — including a Pap test, which is very useful at your age.

Tell the doctor about your dizzy spells. Remind him that he told you about the murmur. Tel him about what you read if you care to; after examining you, he can do a more authoritative job of calming your nerves than I can.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband is suffering from a myocardial infarction. Please explain this to me. — M.H.

This is a "heart attack," or damage to the heart muscle from interruption of arterial blood flow to the heart muscle.

Being a common — and dangerous — situation, it is discussed thoroughly in my booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart," and by reading it you can learn far more than I could crowd into this daily column in the paper. Send 20 cents and a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me, in care of this newspaper, for a copy of the booklet which I think will answer your questions.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am trying to mend a fractured hip bone. Eating lots of meat but avoiding desserts (other than fruit) as I don't want to gain weight. I get around with a walker. Is too much protein harmful? — P.N.

Sufficient protein is necessary. Your appetite usually indicates when you have had enough. A realiable medical rule is that a high-protein diet is not doing any harm so long as kidney function remains normal.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am on a very strict diet, forbidden to eat any fresh fruit or vegetables, because of a bowel disorder. What other foods can I eat that are rich in vitamins? — I.L.

Juices of fruits and vegetables can provide sufficient vitamins. Alternatively, multivitamin supplements can be taken.

Note to Mrs. L.E.: Cosmetic plastic surgery is perfectly feasible at your age (in the 30's). It would not entail "months of hospitalization," but only a few days as a rule. To learn the cost in your particular case, ask your regular physician to refer you to a plastic surgeon, and discuss cost with him before deciding what you want to do.

Seymour Players to Give 'Hatful of Rain'

First of Three Weekend Performances Tonight on Community High School Stage

A courageous group of thespians at Seymour have taken upon themselves to present a challenging drama that takes some doing to come across the footlights.

The Seymour Community Players open tonight in "A Hatful of Rain," a play that brought overnight success to playwright Michael V. Gazzo when it came to Broadway in 1955. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. at Seymour Community High School.

The drama was the turning point in the young actor-author's career, but it also brought an upturn to the dramatic careers of the three leading players. Shelley Winters, in the role of the devoted wife, proved she was as outstanding on stage as in the movies.

Ben Gazarra established his reputation as a top actor in the tragic role of the narcotics victim. Anthony Franciosa got his start as the sympathetic brother and was to climb to the top as a leading stage star and later motion picture and television star.

Bill Stephani has the star role in the Seymour production; he plays the man caught in a terrifying trap. Tina Landwehr plays his wife, the role Shelley Winters had.

Others in the Community Players cast are Tom Suttner, Bill Tubbs, Tom Duffey Jr., Ron Mills, Bob Coonen, Tom Landwehr Jr. and Kay Mettlach.

Betty Butcher is directing the drama, a play that has excitement, compassion and tension in its dramatic makeup.

Bullets Will Fly on 'The Green Hornet'

BY TV SCOUT

6:30-7 Channels 11-6-9 — The Green Hornet starts on a happy note: a birthday party is in full swing for handsome Britt Reid who gets presents such as a gleaming bone handled .45 automatic. But before you know it, the gun goes off killing Reid's arch rival.

6:30 - 7:30 Channels 4 - 5 — Victoria Meyerink, who is usually found on Danny Kaye's knee, is found lost in the jungle on Tarzan. Her daddy, in this highly energetic episode, has been killed by restless natives, and the little girl is (as you might suspect) in deep shock.

6:30-7:30 Channels 2-7-12 — Back for the seventh time to upset The Wild Wild West is Michael Dunn as the tiny evil genius Dr. Loveless. Again, he has big, bad ideas of taking over the world.

7-8 Channels 11-6-9 — "Mio cane — mai piu? Impossible!" screams a man who calls himself Machiavelli, the multi-lingual villain on The Time Tunnel. So is this script impossible. Our wandering heroes, Tony and Doug, find themselves caught between Union and Confederate crossfire on the eve of Gettysburg.

7:30-8:30 Channels 4-5 — "The Matterhorn Affair" on The Man from U.N.C.L.E. is a maddening romp involving the world's smallest atomic reactor which would make any nation a nuclear power.

8-10 Channels 2-7-12 — The Friday Night Movies presents "The Pigeon That Took Rome," a 1962 comedy which never really gets off the ground. Charlton Heston, as an Army officer who is trying to keep 1944 Rome an "open city," resorts to carrier pigeons when he discovers his radio messages are being intercepted by the enemy.

8-8:30 Channels 11-6-9 — A pretty girl is more than a melody on Rango. Highlight of this amusing episode, "Diamonds Look Better Around Your Neck Than a Rope," has Tim Conway leaping (or is it sloshing through the mud?) to the aid of Linda Foster who is robbed of her uncle's gems.

9-10 Channels 4-5 — There's another ghost story on Laredo. Our healthy Texas Rangers almost turn green when a saloon operator (Jeanne Cooper) spreads the rumor that a ghost — a poltergeist — has invaded her town.

Feminine Pop Bands Scarce in Big Time

BY CHUCK POSNIAK

While looking at the latest record charts this week, I noticed that there was not one female vocal-instrumental group to be found on them.

I then began to search the cobwebs of my mind and could not come up with the name of one group of feminine instrumentalists that has ever made big time.

There have been many female vocalists such as the Supremes, Petula Clark, Cher, etc., who have hit the big time, but never a female group which both played their own music and sang. (Editor's Note: Columnist Posniak means today's crop, within his own time; oldtimers certainly will recall the big time, all girl orchestra of Phil Spitelny and others of the 1920-1930 big band era.)

The first thought was the foolish notion that females are too talentless and too disinterested to be involved in the instrumental aspect of show business.

Mostly She-Students

That idea however became a flop when I discovered that almost 30 per cent of the music students in a few of the local music stores are females. These students vary in age from 6 to somewhere over 39 (none of the elderly students would give their true ages).

Within my next thoughts came the idea that maybe these women weren't interested in performing in public.

However, one fast glance at the entertainment sections of a few of the state's newspapers, catches the names of female bands such as The Tremlons, The Girls, The Boys, The U.F.O.'s, The Mother-in-Laws, and of course Appleton's She Five. There even is a female road group called The Loved Ones playing in town this week.

My first two ideas having been proven wrong, I decided to get an expert's opinion. I asked The She 5.

Frowned Upon

The girls feel that even in this modern day and age society frowns on the female musician. It also is a fact that teen-age girls form a majority of the record buying public. These girls like to buy the records of groups they can have crushes on. After the girls have set the record trend, the male members of the record buying public soon follow.

With the trend as it is, it is pretty hard for the feminine group to hit big time. However, trends have changed in the past and will change in the future.

As more and more girls become interested in music, they will begin to buy the material on the records rather than who is performing. When this happens, I'll probably have to write an article on the disadvantages of being a male musician.

Sen. Kuchel, California GOP Heal Differences

Both Sides Accepting Reality In Interest of Party Success

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

LOS ANGELES — Secret, highly delicate negotiations to re-unite liberal Sen. Thomas Kuchel with the California Republican Party and thereby save his Senate seat reached a climax Feb. 24 in an exclusive luncheon at Los Angeles' Statler-Hilton Hotel.

Novak

Evans

Surrounding Kuchel at the luncheon table were his closest supporters, including a few who maintain close contacts with conservative Gov. Ronald Reagan. The advice was unanimous: Kuchel must make public gestures, consistent with his principles, supporting Reagan and his fledging administration in Sacramento.

Suprisingly enough, Kuchel shed his usual intransigence in dealing with the Republican right and promised to follow the advice. If he does, chances are he will be renominated in 1968 with only token opposition and then go on to easy re-election against a hopelessly divided California Democratic Party.

Was Lonely Liberal

Such a cheerful succession of events for Tommy Kuchel would have been an hallucination only weeks ago. Kuchel then seemed a lonely liberal about to be smothered by a Reagan-dominated conservative Republican Party. He was considerably less than an even shot to be renominated by his own party.

Kuchel, the last political protege of Earl Warren, simply had failed to realize the end of the Warren Era, when every Republican politician was a separate island and the party was a party in name only.

In 1964, he not only refused to support Barry Goldwater, but did not endorse George Murphy's successful bid for the state's other senate seat. Worse yet was 1966 when Kuchel, despite pleas from his own supporters, would not endorse Reagan's candidacy for governor. In all this time, Kuchel returned only briefly and infrequently to California.

Given Warning

Consequently, it was a matter of great joy for Kuchel's dwindling circle of supporters when he returned to California for two weeks in mid-February. They greeted him with an unpleasant warning: Unless he came to terms with Gov. Reagan, he could count on a bloody primary and probably defeat.

By the Feb. 24 meeting at the Statler-Hilton, Kuchel was well aware of his situation. At that meeting were Kuchel men with ties to Reagan: Assemblymen Jack Venneman and William Bagley, ex-movie mogul Jack Warner, industrialist Leonard Firestone. Significantly, also present was William Roberts of Spencer - Roberts & Associates, the campaign management firm that handled Kuchel's 1962 campaign and then — much to Kuchel's anger — managed Reagan in 1966.

They informed Kuchel it was absolutely imperative to make common cause — publicly — with Reagan early and often, starting with his tax-increase proposal.

Kuchel fully agreed. What's more, he admitted that he had been overly harsh on Reagan in the past and conceded now that Reagan was by no means a right-wing extremist.

Reagan Still Hurt

Meanwhile, similar efforts have been underway to soften Reagan's attitude toward Kuchel. The governor's closest aides — Executive Sec. Phil Battaglia and Press Secretary Lyn Nofziger — are all for a Reagan-Kuchel detente. Millionaire Los Angeles auto dealer Holmes Tuttle, the money - man closest to Reagan, also is moving in that direction.

Reagan himself remains hurt and angry at Kuchel's 1966 non-support and has not yet been convinced. But his friends tell him his national prospects would only suffer by a bitter primary attack against Kuchel.

Besides, there is no obvious right-wing opponent. Maxwell Rafferty, the rightish state school superintendent, is drooling for a shot at Kuchel, but conservative money-men have all but vetoed him. A recent secret right-wing meeting at Wilbur Knott's Berry Farm in Orange County inconclusively discussed retired Air Force Gen. Curtis Le May.

It is now an even chance, then, that Kuchel will go into the 1968 primary campaign without serious opposition, without hostility from Reagan and with the direction of the Spencer-Roberts firm. It all depends on whether he can conquer his pride enough to prize Ronnie Reagan.

At one point in the Feb. 24 meeting Kuchel commented, "Listen fellows, I know Earl Warren isn't governor anymore." It was a sign that he at last is facing reality.

Weddings, Women 'March' Into News

With February's departure and the appearance of blustery March, spring looms nearer than it did a week ago, despite huge piles of snow enshrouding Wisconsin's lawns.

The new month offers several signs that spring is just around the corner. St. Patrick's Day and Easter are two promises sure to heighten the anticipation and excitement of the approaching season.

Ushering out the last days of February at the world premiere of the film, "The Taming of the Shrew," was England's Princess Margaret. Prior to the benefit performance at London's Odeon Theater Monday evening, she chatted with the film's costars, Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor. Also present were Sir Michael Redgrave, Laurence Harvey, Mia Farrow and Per Oscarrson, a Swedish actor. The princess' husband, Lord Snowdon, was in New York.

Other royalty in the news this week are Gerald Lucas and Nancy Patrick, of Indianapolis, Ind. The two seven-year olds were named Poppy King and Queen of the local VFW Post. The young queen's father is stationed at Pleiku, South Vietnam.

Holy matrimony! Batman's sidekick, Robin, also known as Burt Ward, was married to Kathy Kersh Saturday in Las Vegas, Nev. The new Mrs. Ward, previously married to actor Vincent Edwards, made her nightclub debut last week in a musical review.

The fight for women's rights continues in some parts of the country. Princess Nowanda of the Shinnecock Tribe is fighting for the right of women to vote in tribal elections on their reservation in Southampton, N.Y. Known as Lois Marie Hunter, she claims women should be allowed to vote each April when the tribe elects trustees of the reservation.

In Wisconsin, Leanne Shreves, an art instructor at Wisconsin State University-Whitewater, won $1,500 for her entry in a Chicago Art Institute exhibit. However, her "Events" was considered "too far out" for public showing.

Finally, 66-year-old Anna Anderson's claim that she is Grand Duchess Anastasia, daughter of the last Russian czar, was rejected this week by a Superior Court in Hamburg, Germany. Speculation is that when Czar Nicholas II and the rest of his family were executed, by Bolsheviks in 1917 his youngest daughter somehow escaped death.

Ryan O'Neal and Lee Taylor-Young, above, costars, of television's "Peyton Place," were married Tuesday in Honolulu, Hawaii. The bride wore a floor-length blue and pink muumuu. Both she and her husband wore the traditional Hawaiian leis of maile leaves. At right, wooden beads, pearls, and sequins of turquoise, pink and black are embroidered on the African-styled fashion for spring. A matching collar, wooden earrings and golden sandals complete the outfit. Below, when Giles Giddings was married, he had a streak of white hair, the first known of in his family. When his daughter, Laura Anne, was born Saturday in Corpus Christi, she also had a white streak in her dark hair.

When David Lee Schacherel and his bride, Miss Sandra Magestro, planned their wedding reception in Milwaukee, they wanted to be sure there would be enough cake to go around. Their wedding cake, assembled in the shape of an arch was nine feet high, seven feet wide and weighed 500 pounds. The couple had to climb a ladder to cut the traditional first piece. (AP Wirephotos)

John Coates, Oakville, Conn., above, proposed to Mattie Darling, Detroit, Mich., three times through letters before she accepted. The couple, both 78, have been pen pals for a year. Mr. Coates, a retired mill worker and father of seven children, traveled 700 miles by bus to meet his bride-to-be. Below, Princess Margaret and her photographer husband, Lord Snowdon, say that the rumors of a rift in their marriage are untrue.

Marriage Ceremony Performed

Miss Patricia Ann Hatch, 927 E. Eldorado St., and Ronald E. Koski, 813 W. Taylor St., exchanged wedding promises at 4 p.m. Saturday at First English Lutheran Church. The Rev. Leonard Ziemer officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Hatch, Genoa, Ill. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Emil Koski, Ishpeming, Mich.

Mrs. Koski, who attended the University of Wisconsin Fox Valley Center and City College of Cosmetology, is employed by Fashionaire Beauty Salon. Her husband is with Perfect Patterns Inc.

After a wedding trip to Las Vegas, the newlyweds will reside at 818 W. Taylor St.

Chagrined Career Girls Cringe At Tiresome, Routine Remarks

Hold Your Ears, Miss:
These are remarks that pall
On career girls one and all

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that career girls get tired of hearing:

"After all, she's wedded to her work."

"If you ask me, a woman's place still is in the home."

"What's a nice dame like you doing working in a sweatshop like this?"

"To be as tactful as possible about it, Joan, I don't think that dress is for you. In a job like yours, you don't want to look too young."

Awarded Pin

"Congratulations, Joan. As the first girl in this firm ever to win her 25-year pin, you have every right to be proud of yourself."

"Sorry Miss, but we don't serve unescorted ladies at the bar. Would you care to sit at a table?"

"Let's all go dutch."

"Yes, I admit you deserve the promotion, but you know how some of the men feel. They don't want to work for a woman."

Cooking Talents

"Don't tell me you can cook, too? I thought all career girls were helpless in the kitchen."

"Okay, okay, Sidney. I don't mind your hiring a woman for the job, but couldn't you at least pick one with a better figure?"

"What'll you have for lunch, Ma'am — the same? Coffee and a peanut butter and jelly sandwich?"

"We're giving a shower for Rosemary. She's getting married to the head of her department next month."

"I do believe it's your first gray hair, Miss. Shall I tint it or pluck it for you as a souvenir?"

"I don't care whether she can type or not — she's still not my type."

"...And, of course, after

Many Benefits

you've been with us for 40 years, you're entitled to the full pension."

"That's the trouble with having dames in the office. Every time you want one she's away in the washroom powdering her nose."

"She must have her eye set on the boss. Why else would she stay here at her salary?"

"So you're the young lady who works in my husband's office. Well, well, well. Somehow I hadn't expected you'd turn out to be so pretty."

"I'll handle this problem myself, Joan. I feel it needs a man's touch."

Disputed Equality

"For Pete's sake, why should a career gal expect to get the same pay as a man? He's got a family to support. All she usually has to support is a pet cat or a couple of goldfish."

"They ape everything we do. The next thing you know they'll start carrying brief cases to and from the office."

"Hey, Joan. It's my wife's birthday. Would you mind trotting out and buying a couple dozen roses for her? While you're at it, pick one out for yourself. I'll pay for it."

"In the home or at the office, they're all the same. A man can't get along with 'em or without 'em."

"I wouldn't mind asking her to join us at lunch, but it'll kind of limit the conversation, won't it?"

Familiar Sounds

"Instead of the patter of little feet, she listens to the patter of little memos."

"You can be sure of one thing: If she were a man, she couldn't get away with it."

"They're all just marking time until they can catch themselves a husband."

"Gee, Joan, sometimes I forget you're a gal. I guess I tend to think of you as just another one of the fellows."

Blackest Crime of Century

"This is the blackest crime of the century!" Sherlock Holmes exclaimed as he watched today's hand being played. Dr. Watson shook his head in bewilderment. "What's so black about a bad break in hearts?" the good doctor asked.

Declarer won the first trick with dummy's ace of spades and led a trump to the ace.

"This is hopeless," South announced. "I'll give you a spade, a heart, two clubs and one diamond. Let's get on with the next hand."

Watson followed the great detective out of the card room, eager to find out what crime had taken place. See if you can detect it for yourself before you read on.

Rarest Play

South was the criminal, for he should have made four hearts. He should take both top hearts, both top diamonds and the ace of clubs. Then he should lead a spade, allowing West to take the spade and the queen of hearts.

At this stage West has only spades left. When West leads a spade, declarer must not ruff. Instead, he discards a diamond from dummy and a club from his own hand.

West must lead another spade, and dummy ruffs while South discards his last club. South can get to his hand by ruffing a club and can then ruff his last diamond in dummy.

"The double discard is the rarest play in bridge," Sherlock Holmes explained to Watson. "You might wait a hundred years for your chance to play a hand like this, and it's the blackest crime of the century to muff your chance."

Daily Question

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player makes a weak jump overcall of two spades. You hold: S A 5, H 7 6 5 3 2, D K 7 2, C A 8 2. What do you say?

Answer: Bid four hearts. A raise to three hearts would be enough if the opponent had bid only one spade, but it does not show the strength of your hand when the opponent has jumped to two spades. You must make a jump response to show that your bid is voluntary rather than "stretched."

Former White House Residents Remember Life as It Once Was

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP) — A foursome of "ex-inmates" — as Margaret Truman dubbed them — sat in the White House and discussed life there as they knew it: The pranks, the pressures and the "pinch-me" feelings.

Their memories spanned 62 years of life with father — the President.

At Buffet Supper

The historic soiree took place Thursday night at the last of a series of six reception-buffet suppers President and Mrs. Johnson have been giving for members of Congress.

Downstairs, the President and top officials briefed some 70 congressmen on serious political matters.

Fascinating Life

"Living in this house is fascinating, but it's not what you'd call lots of fun," concluded Harry Truman's daughter, Margaret, now the wife of New York newspaperman Clifton Daniel.

"I always had that pinch-me feeling," said Barbara Eisenhower, daughter-in-law of President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Charles Phelps Taft, now 69 and a Cincinnati resident, could remember lots of youthful pranks when his father, William Howard Taft, was president. They included jamming the elevator and playing a game of charades with brother Bob, the late Sen. Robert A. Taft, dressed in his mother's clothes.

Stopped for Speeding

And, he remembered being stopped for speeding at 30 miles an hour in the Taft family's Pierce-Arrow by a policeman — riding a bicycle.

"Sistie" Dall, beloved granddaughter of Franklin D. Roosevelt and now Mrs. Van H. Seagraves of Washington, had fond memories of visiting "Poppa" Roosevelt while he breakfasted in bed and of "Grandmere" Eleanor teaching her grandchildren manners with such advice as "never make yourself disagreeable in public."

Once when grandson "Buzzie" (Curtis) Dall was making himself disagreeable by crying loudly in the hall, "Sistie" recalled Mrs. Roosevelt admonished him to find a bathtub to cry in. An hour later, when she found Buzzie still crying — this time in a pillow — he explained: "I tried to find one — but all our bathtubs are full," an indication of the busy presidential homelife.

Teen Years Hardest

"Sistie," who spent youthful years in the White House, said the teen years were the hardest. "It made me withdraw from the world" because, she explained, living in that grand atmosphere made one feel so unimportant.

Margaret Truman's remembrances included her discovery of a secret wartime maproom at the White House. "Never tell anyone until I tell you you can," Truman warned his daughter when he found she had located the secret operation.

Margaret also recalled "mother and I played ping pong on the third floor — mother was a whiz" and they lost numerous balls batted through a skylight.

Life with father Truman had its testy moments, Margaret revealed. He came by and knocked on her door every morning because he "never had any confidence in my getting up — and he was right."

Life at Blair

The three years they lived across the street in Blair House during a White House renovation "was heaven," said Margaret. But Truman organized family expeditions every Sunday to inspect the White House work.

"Daddy was a great one for checking up on everyone," she noted. "He was always checking on me to see if I was in."

Barbara Eisenhower, who didn't actually live in the White House, told how she and her family stayed there frequently to keep the President company while First Lady Mamie visited her mother in Denver.

Great Vacation

"It was a great vacation for me," said Barbara, but hard to adjust to her modest home afterwards.

On their last night in the White House, Barbara recalled the last Secret Service man coming to say good-bye. "This is the end of something beautiful," she said as she watched him depart down the path.

"Don't worry, mother," son David consoled her. "I put notes behind all the pictures and they say 'I shall return.'"

Deny Rumors Sophia Loren To Adopt Child

By DAVID MAZZARELLA

ROME (AP) — After losing four children in miscarriages, Sophia Loren may be planning to adopt or raise an orphaned baby, a magazine says. Associates of the actress denied the report.

The weekly magazine "Stop" said Wednesday it was rumored in Miss Loren's home town of Pozzuli, near Naples, that she has agreed to care for 18-month-old Ernesto Capasso. His parents were killed in a highway accident in Australia.

Miss Loren is in Switzerland on vacation. Her husband, producer Carlo Ponti, had no comment. But associates who handle her relations with the press said the story was baseless.

Adoption Rumors

The rumors say Miss Loren will adopt Ernesto "or at least will raise him and educate him and love him as her own," the magazine reported. It said the baby would be taken to visit the actress in Switzerland and then would go to her villa at Marino, near Rome.

Miss Loren, 31, and her husband, producer Carlo Ponti, 53, are vacationing in Burgenstock, a Swiss resort area on Lake Lucerne. They were not available for comment.

Wants Children

The actress has often said beauty, fame and fortune mean nothing to her compared with the joy of being a mother. She has said she wants nothing more in life than a child.

Miss Loren's most recent miscarriage occurred Jan. 12 in a Rome clinic where she had gone six days before for a series of tests related to her pregnancy.

Make Up Bibs For Children

Simple-to-make "balloon" bibs are practical party favors for very young children.

For a pattern, cut an oval shape out of brown paper, making it long enough to reach from a child's neck to his waist. At one end of the oval, cut out a round neckline. Edge the bibs with bias tape, and use tape for neckline ties.

Use Sizing To Cover Oil Base

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: I am using plasterboard panels for the partitions of attic rooms I am finishing up. Is it necessary to use sizing on the plasterboard before painting?

A: For oil-based paints, sizing is highly recommended. For latex paints, not needed.

Q: I am obviously paying the penalty for buying lower grade pine for a home-made wardrobe. I thought the knots would not be noticed, since I planned to paint the wood. But knot sap is "bleeding" right through the paint. How can I stop this before repainting?

A: Sand all the paint down to bare wood around each knot (be happy this isn't bird's-eye maple!) Then apply special knot-sealer to each knot. Two treatments are better than one. If this sealer is not available at your paint or hardware store, use a couple of coats of aluminum paint or pure, fresh shellac. This should stop the bleeding and your repaint should be OK.

Q: Before a solid bank of poison ivy gets a chance to start next spring, where can I find out how to eradicate it once and for all?

A: Once - and - for - all is almost wishful thinking. But good preparations are widely available at garden centers and hardware stores, complete with full instructions. You can send for "Poison Ivy, Poison Oak and Poison Sumac, Identification, Precautions and Eradication" from Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20024.

Q: When I returned from shopping, I found our concrete front steps decorated with blue and green crayon designs. While I have already taken care of the young artists, how do I do the same for the steps?

A: Easiest method is to get a small package of stone cleaning preparation from a building cleaning contractor; also available at some janitor supplies stores. Follow directions. If unavailable, make a thick poultice of powdered chalk or corn meal, and cleaning fluid, and cover the crayoning. Over this place a sheet of metal or plastic to retard evaporation. When dry, remove and repeat as often as needed. A slow job! Suggestion: Confiscate the crayons, substituting the new water-soluble kind.

Ann Says Slanderers Destroy Out of Unhappiness, Misery

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The other evening I was with a group of new friends. Most of them did not know I was a registered nurse. Two of the women present do volunteer work in a hospital. For no reason whatever they began to speak in an unbelievably vicious way about nurses.

One woman said, "All nurses are sadists. The reason they go into nursing is because they enjoy seeing people suffer. They take delight in witnessing grief, pain and death. They are hard-boiled females without a single decent emotion. I was shocked. I recalled the times I had gone home heartsick after trying to console anguished parents who learned that their child had an incurable illness. I recalled the times I was moved to tears by the death of a young husband or the agony of a mother who had given birth to a stillborn baby.

How can people say nurses are sadistic and hard-boiled? Rhy did these women speak so disparagingly about some of the finest people in the world?—R.N.

Dear R.N.: Because the slanderers are unhappy and unfulfilled failures. People who are unable to build something must destroy something. Forget about these miserable wretches. They are not worth your wrath.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been reading your column for a long time and I am sorry I didn't pay more attention to your advice. I am 22 years old and I already know what it is to be "The Other Woman." If I could live my life over I would tell the rotten bum to get lost.

I started going with him when I was 16. He was married and I thought this made me sophisticated and glamorous.

The man's wife waited three years for him to "regain his sanity," as she put it. Then she gave him a divorce. Like a fool I married him three weeks later. Now I know why he always looked so nice. His wife was a wonderful shirt-ironer. She pressed his suits and even shined his shoes. I'm just no good at valet service. He yells all the time that I am lazy — and could do better if I tried.

He never paid any attention to his kids when we were going together but now all of a sudden he misses them something awful and goes to see them four and five evenings a week — unless, of course, he is lying and going someplace else.

Landers

I am sick of this whole rotten mess and I want out before I become pregnant and get stuck. What do you advise?—Lame-Brain From Arizona.

Dear Lame: I hope that a divorce would not be a violation of your religious beliefs because your life sounds miserable.

I am sure your husband is as unhappy as you are and he would probably return to his family if he could unload you. See your clergyman, and good luck.

Live Within Your Income

Young Wage-Earners Fail To Accept Responsibility

BY MARY FEELEY
Consultant in Money Management

Your often hear the expression "Young people grow up so much faster these days than they used to". Well, I'm not so sure that I buy the idea. True, they get well-paid jobs early in life, they buy cars, they proclaim their "independence" before they're out of high school.

But from the letters that come in from parents all over the country, in all income brackets, it seems that so many young people don't know what "growing up" really means—which, in my book, means assuming responsibility. I'm talking now about the working sons and daughters living at home who are either reluctant to contribute to their own room and board, or who just think that handing Ma a few bucks out of the paycheck is carrying a fair share of the load.

Often the parents are reluctant to take a firm stand. They enjoy having the family all under one roof. But they ask, apologetically, how can they explain today's high cost of living to these "grown" children? As if it needed any explaining.

The problem is further complicated when a stepfather or stepmother is bearing the burden of support. I think it's only fair to all concerned if the matter of room and board is estimated on a business basis—from one-fourth to one-third of the young wage earner's income. It usually works out to the young person's advantage, when the cost of living away from home is considered.

In today's mail, Mrs. W.C., of Westport, Washington, is worried about being fair to both her son and his stepfather:

Dear Miss Feeley:

My son, 29, lives with me and my husband, his stepfather. Both are commercial fishermen. My husband's gross income ranges around $7,000-$8,000. My son grosses around $10,000.

My son has all the privileges and services of our home, including use of the phone, TV, garage workshop, laundry service including mending, and of course, his board and room. For all this he pays $70 a month.

Do you consider this a just and equitable figure? We have an amicable family relationship, which I am anxious to maintain. I'm also concerned about fairness to my husband. We will be grateful to you for an objective opinion.

Dear Mrs. G.:

I don't doubt that your son (as well as your husband) has substantial business expenses in connection with his job. However, I think he could be expected to pay $35 a week for room, board, and services—or, at the least, $140 a month. He could hardly expect to maintain himself with the same comforts on any less if he sets up his own establishment.

Since you do have an amicable relationship, why not ask him to itemize his expenses (allowing for some recreation expenditures) and perhaps the two of you could discuss his budget in more detail. In return, tell him frankly what it costs you to maintain the home and buy the groceries.

Dear Miss Feeley:

My husband's son by a former marriage is 25, has a job, but lives in another home owned by my husband. This son has no independence, no respect for himself or his father.

All his bills are paid by my husband — heat, light, phone. Yet he is never satisfied. He wants his father to buy his cars or anything else he can use his father for. I say he's a clever operator, but my husband doesn't seem to realize this.

How much longer is he going to cover up for this free-loader? After all my husband is pushing 60. I'd appreciate your help.

K.T., Phoenix, Ariz.

Dear K.T.:

Try to persuade your husband to give his son what he really needs—a chance to stand on his own feet. Don't harp on the theme that his son is being unfair. Instead try to make him understand that he's being unfair to his son—by paying all the bills. Does he want to leave a helpless incompetent to shift for himself after he's gone?

Let's EXPLORE YOUR MIND

By Sylvanus M. Duvall, Ph.D. and Evelyn M. Duvall, Ph.D.

No, of course not. But, in some ways, it is freeer from bias than certain special interest groups. In determining the merits of oleo as against butter, for example, the soy bean people naturally are on one side of the fence and the dairy interests on the other. The public, of course, has a concern, but it is not as intense as that of special groups. Therefore the general public can examine many questions with less bias.

Getting married is no guarantee that a girl will "live happly ever after".

Indeed it isn't, as so many married girls discover for themselves. Here is the way one young mother describes her life in the fascinating book, "Workingman's Wife:" "My days are all busy, busy . . . and dull, too. All I ever do is mess around. I get up at 8 a.m. — I make breakfast, so I do the dishes, have lunch, do some more dishes, and then some laundry and cleaning in the afternoon. Then it's supper dishes and I get to sit down a few minutes before the children have to be sent to bed . . . That's all there is to my day. Humdrum!"

Does overcrowding affect people's emotions?

Yes —— No ——

Yes. One of the dangers of our modern way of life is the stress we feel when too many people crowd too close — in a neighborhood, on a busy highway, on a city street, or in a public place. Anthropologists point out that all people and animals have a sense of "psychic space" — a sense of how far or how close one should be to others. Population crises in animals occur when their sense of psychic space is invaded by overcrowding: their birth rate drops and they die by the score. It could happen to you and some experts warn that it may.

The problem of everyday stress is the subject of the pull-no-punches booklet, "Tensions and How to Master Them." To get your copy, send 25 cents and your name and address (including ZIP Code) to "Let's Explore Your Mind," care of The Post-Crescent.
